SENATORS BITTERLY ASSAIL EACH OTHER

Stone and La Follette Attack Aldrich and Penrose Questions La Follette's Veracity.

SMITH BOLTS ON COTTON

Michigan Senator Serves Notice That He Will Not Vote for Increases—German Incident Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—To-day brought a sharp attack on Mr. Aldrich by Senator La Follette, who not only presented figures on the cotton schedule so convincingly that Senator William Alden Smith was apparently converted into an insurgent, but declared that the clock would presently strike for the Senate autocracy, and a new hour in legislative business follow. Earlier there was an acrimonious colloquy in which Senator Stone denounced Senator Aldrich for referring to the friendly German Government as "impertinent" in the matter of the recently unearthed document furnished by it at the request of the State Department and dealing with the German wage scale.

Mr. Aldrich denied that his remarks referred to the German Government and showed heat when Mr. Stone insisted that they could have referred to nothing else. Even when Mr. Aldrich entered upon a eulogy of the Kaiser and the Germans Mr. Stone would not be diverted from his point.

At the night session Mr. Penrose, when it was announced that Mr. La Follette, after speaking for five hours during the day, was unable to continue, questioned the veracity of the excuse of the Senator from Wisconsin.

Senator La Follette's attack on the cotton schedule was the heaviest which has yet been made. After his general opening of yesterday Mr. La Follette got down to-day to the particulars, and, confining himself to the figures in regard to two or three definite paragraphs, drove the Finance Committee to damaging admissions. It was as a consequence that Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan declared this afternoon that without full explanations from the committee he would vote with the insurgents. Mr. Aldrich promised the explanations to-morrow.

Smith Speaks Out.

"If the effect of the Senate amendments," said Mr. Smith, interrupting the array of figures Senator La Follette was marshaling before the Senate, "is to increase the rates of the existing law, I will not for a moment vote for the amendments. The committee has seen fit to cut down the rates of items of interest to my State and I am not complaining of that, but I will not vote for increases in protection for an industry while those who are engaged in the industry spurn all assistance."

Mr. Smith's outburst followed the reading of the testimony of Mr. Lippett, one of the leaders of the textile association known as the Arkwright Club of Boston, who told the Ways and Means Committee that imports were now at a point sufficient merely to regulate the trade, that the trade was flourishing and that they wanted no increases if they were left alone. The testimony was brought out by Mr. La Follette, Mr. Beveridge, and Mr. Smith, and kept the committee members on the defensive all the afternoon.

Mr. La Follette had several clashes with Mr. Aldrich.

"A system has grown up here," he said once, "by which legislation is in the hands of two or three men whose authority seems to have been recognized here for many years without question. It seems hazardous on the part of any one who wants to know and who fails to come along when he is told. I want to announce to the autocracy of the Senate that the clock will strike presently, and there will be a new hour in the legislative business of the Senate."

The incident of the document setting forth the German scale of wages was brought up during the morning. Senator Stone raised the question soon after the Senate convened by reading a cablegram from Berlin in which it was stated that the German Government had taken offense at Mr. Aldrich's language because of the important position he occupied in his party and in Congress. Reading from Mr. Aldrich's original remarks, Mr. Stone said:

Senator Stone's Onslaught.

"When the Senator from Rhode Island made that somewhat petulant and extraordinary declaration every one here took notice, and I think every one regarded his utterance as impolitic, if not impolite."

Mr. Stone said that he was not surprised that the German Government and the German people had taken notice of this utterance and felt offended by it.

"I made n ocharge against the German Government," said Mr. Aldrich. "I was talking about German manufacturers, whose names were kept from us and who furnished information with the express understanding that it was not to be used in the enforcement of our customs laws. The Senator may consider that information of value. I do not. There is no question about the German Government involved here at all. The German Government forwarded these statements with the understanding that they were not to be used to raise the invoice value of goods imported into the United States contrary to our laws. I repeat that any attempt on the part of any Government to influence legislation on the tariff matter is impertinent. I did not say the German Government made such an attempt, but if any Government made such an attempt it would be impertinent."

At the night session, the first to be held, Mr. Dolliver announced that Mr. La Follette found that the fatigue of the day had been too much for him, and that he could not be present. He asked that the schedule be passed over until Mr. La Follette had a chance to complete his remarks.

"The Senator from Wisconsin," said Mr. Gallinger, objecting at once, "when I asked a question to-day not only refused to yield to me, but was offensive and insulting. If we adjourn whenever a Senator sends word that he is indisposed we will never reach the end."

"And I, for one," said Senator Penrose, who has long borne a grudge against Mr. La Follette, "question the good faith of this proposition."

"If the Senator will prove," interposed Mr. Beveridge, "the falsity of the present plea instead of making a general charge I, too, will refuse to support the plea."

"I am ready to-night," retorted Mr. Penrose, "to present information that will make any man refuse hereafter to trust the veracity of any statement concerning the health of the Senator from Wisconsin."

Mr. Borah interrupted Mr. Penrose to protest strongly against such aspersions on a Senator not in the chamber.

"I think that here in the Senate," he said, "we ought to observe the amenities practiced ordinarily among gentlemen."

LUNA IN ECLIPSE

With Few Persons Apparently Noticing an Interesting Phenomenon.

There was a total eclipse of the moon last night, plainly visible in this city, but it had been almost unheralded and attracted little attention. The streets for a wonder were almost barren of amateur observers.

The sky was hazy when at 7:58 o'clock the moon entered the umbra or deep shadow of the earth, but before the total eclipse began, at 8:29 o'clock, the sky cleared, and the stars were visible.

It seemed then as though a circle of mist shut out the moon. The first seen of her as she reappeared was a faint luminous glow. Then, just as the city clocks were chiming nine a faint edge of the moon's surface appeared. This was at times obscured, but never so thickly that the glow passed out of view. Very gradually the moon became visible again. First there appeared a narrow scimitar, which widened until as the shadow passed there appeared through the mist first a quarter, then a half-moon, which shone brightly. The obscured half-moon in turn passed out of the shadow and at 10:14 a full moon looked down again from the sky.

From the tower of the Times Building there was an excellent view of the eclipse and sveral persons obtained permission to ascend and view it.

In Chinatown, where the sons of the Celestial Empire are popularly supposed to fear that a dragon is eating up the moon on such occasions, not a Chinaman was observed to be interested. The moon is not so important with the electric lights among the tall tenements, as it is in the dim light of streets in China.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 3.—At the Harvard Observatory attempts were made to photograph to-night's eclipse, but clouds interfered, and the exposures were not altogether successful. There was a good deal of popular interest in the eclipse, the warm evening bringing multitudes out into the open to view it.

GEESE DROWN A SQUIRREL

After Their Allies, the Ducks, Had Shaken Him Off Fence Into the Pond.

Jack, a big gray squirrel, who, with his mate, Jill, inhabited the island in the duck inclosure in the Bronx Park Zoo, sacrificed his life yesterday to his love of high living. It was this way:

Jack and Jill long ago discovered that by crossing over the ten-foot-wide stream of water which separates the island from the mainland on all sides they could reach a trough filled with corn, which was replenished daily, for the ducks and geese, which rightfully inhabit the pond and island. A wire fence dividing the inclosure used by the mallard ducks from that enjoyed by the Canada geese offered a means of communication between the island and the corn trough, and Jack and Jill long ago became expert in running along the top of this ticklish pathway.

Daily the two squirrels have made pilgrimages to the corn trough, eaten to repletion, and then returned to the island. The ducks and the geese always swam close to the fence, flapping their wings and uttering hoarse cries of rage, but were never able to catch the nimble squirrels. Little by little, however, Jack lost his native agility as he partook of more and more of the rich food, and yesterday when he started back from a particularly heavy feast he waddled slowly along the top of the fence instead of hopping nimbly along as had been his wont.

One of the mallards saw him and realized that he was too heavy and too well fed to move hurriedly. The duck sounded a cry which brought all of its mates, and they attacked Jack viciously. The squirrel tried to hurry, but at last was pushed off the fence and fell into pond.

In an instant he was surrounded by big Canada geese. Persons on shore saw him fight desperately for life, but finally he was forced under water. The geese churned the pond into a foam, and when they swam majestically away there was nothing to be seen of Jack.

Jill, who ran back and forth on the shore of the island while Jack was fighting for his life, retired to a tree after the tragedy, and has not been seen since. Keepers think that she will not try to reach the corn trough any more.

MRS. PEASE BADLY HURT.

August Belmont's Cousin Not Expected to Live After a Runaway.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., June 3.—Mrs. W. Albert Pease, daughter of Rear Admiral Rogers, U. S. N., and a cousin of August Belmont, was probably fatally hurt in a runaway accident to-day between here and Garden City. She is suffering from a fractured skull, a broken nose, cuts and bruises of the face, and contusions of the body. Dr. Louis N. Lanehart, her physician, is with her constantly.

Mrs. Pease, with Mrs. Helen Holt of Manhattan, who has taken a cottage here for the Summer, was driving toward the Mineola dog show in a light runabout. Mrs. Holt handled the reins over the horse, a broncho trained for polo and brought on from the West only a short time ago. He gave no evidence of untractableness, however, and the two were conversing comfortably as they passed the fork of the roads at August Porrier's, going toward Mineola.

The trolley tracks run along the side of the highway, and as they neared the Catholic Church at Garden City a car passed. The animal was not frightened at the approach of the car behind him, but no sooner had it passed than a motor whizzed by on the other side, bound in the same direction. The broncho jumped to the other side of the road, jerking the trap after him and slamming it against the hitching post in front of the Catholic Church rectory. Both women were thrown out. Mrs. Holt was unhurt.

Mrs. Pease was flung against a telegraph pole, her face receiving the full force of the impact. Mrs. Holt ran into the rectory, and telephoned for Dr. L. N. Lanehart, who was at a near-by hospital. The injured woman was placed in his automobile and taken home.

The broncho was finally caught.

POLITICIANS GO TO JAIL.

Ex-Members of Boston Council Are Sentenced for Grafting.

BOSTON, June 3.—Leo F. McCullough, President of the Boston Common Council last year, was to-night sentenced to serve two years at hard labor in the State Prison and James T. Cassidy, a lawyer, was sentenced to serve one year at hard labor by Judge Schoefield in the Superior Court. They were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the City of Boston and of stealing $200 by making out a false order for a set of law books.

Ex-Alderman George H. Battis was sentenced to three years at hard labor in the State Prison for the larceny of money in connection with the purchase of prizes for athletic contests held by the city in 1906 and 1907.

FIND BOGUS CROESUS IS ESCAPED CONVICT

A. D. Oliver, Who Duped Georgians Out of Thousands, Identified as Mississippi Fugitive.

BOUGHT BANKS AND LANDS

Special to The New York Times.

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., June 3.—A. D. Oliver, who posed as a multi-millionaire, duped Georgia citizens out of thousands of dollars and married one of the prettiest young women in this section of the State, has been positively identified as an escaped convict with an unexpired term of eleven years hanging over his head.

The identification was made this morning by Sheriff T. O. Jones of Aberdeen County, Miss., and came as a climax to the arrest of Oliver several days ago when he was fleeing with his young bride in an automobile.

Sheriff Jones reached Bainbridge this morning and immediately went to the jail. The moment he saw the ex-banker he positively declared that the prisoner was a fugitive from the Mississippi Penitentiary, where he was known as Charles Harding.

The Sheriff stated that Oliver, alias Harding, was arrested in Aberdeen County, Miss., May 30, 1908, and remained in jail under various charges for several weeks, finally being convicted on all counts brought against him. The Sheriff said that Oliver escaped from the penitentiary on Dec. 31, 1908. Several days after his escape Oliver reached this section penniless, but in a very short time he was reputed to be worth millions and began buying banks, sawmills, and property throughout the whole State. Oliver in a few weeks became famous for his ready replies to all propositions.

This applied to land, houses, and stocks, and, in fact, everything that was purchasable. He had the reputation of never refusing to trade, and he always paid a small proportion in cash, and insisted that the seller deposit the money in one of Oliver's many banks, and thus the endless chain of kiting continued until Oliver's trades amounted into the hundreds of thousands.

He purchased automobiles at wholesale and gave them away right and left to his newly made friends. He built many fine houses, and the whole country stood aghast at his wealth and his business ventures.

Oliver found time to court Miss Rose English, daughter of a prominent family, and married her, giving her diamonds worth $10,000 as a wedding present. He lived like a prince and spent money lavishly upon his young bride. He established elegant stables and bought blooded horses, and almost weekly added to his stock of automobiles.

He bought more banks and more lands and signed contracts for the building of towns in the prairie country, and drew at will on New York banks. His Waterloo came when a check for $10,000 given to an Albany contractor was returned unpaid. A warrant was issued for Oliver, and his arrest followed his flight in an automobile with his bride. When Oliver, alias Harding, was arrested in Bainbridge it is said his automobile was half full of bills of large denominations, wrapped in newspapers.

Immediately following his arrest he suffered a collapse, and was released on bail, as his mental condition appeared to be serious. Additional warrants were issued, and he was again placed in jail. The four banks bought by Oliver have been looted. Oliver is not only wanted in Mississippi, but he is wanted in Atlanta and Birmingham by the Federal authorities.

It is said that he has served a term in the Ohio Penitentiary for obtaining diamonds under false pretenses. It is said also that he has three other wives.

DIES AFTER EDDY TREATMENT.

Mrs. S. F. Fisk, Daughters' Vice Regent, Is Operated Upon Too Late.

Special to The New York Times.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 3.—Mrs. Stephen F. Fisk, State Vice Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and one of the most prominent clubwomen of the State, died to-day at her home in this city "of starvation following Christian Science treatment," according to her attending physicians.

Mrs. Fisk was recently operated on in Boston for cysts, but only after she had suffered for more than a year with the malady, and had taken nine months' treatment at the hands of Mrs. Eddy's disciples. In April she attended the Daughters' Congress in Washington, at which she was elected to the Vice Regency. Every effort was made by the Fisk family here to-day to keep the facts in the case from the press, but Dr. James L. Wheaton, Jr., the family physician, decided that the best interests of the public demanded an explanation, and the following was given out to the press this afternoon:

> In explanation of the causes of death of Mrs. Susan Fisk, I would say that she was operated upon March 24, 1909, by Dr. William C. Conant of Boston for two large cysts. The operation was successful. She had been, however, under the treatment of Christian Scientists for nine months, and for this reason was in very poor condition. The operation was put off till it was too late, the delay having rendered the organs of digestion so inactive that they could not longer perform their proper functions, and she died from actual starvation. All other organs in her body appeared to act normally. Had the operation been done earlier she would be living to-day. This is the opinion of the attending physicians.

Mrs. Fisk was about 57 years of age. Her husband, a prominent druggist, last week assigned his entire property in the interest of his creditors.

WE SHIP WHEAT WEST.

First Time in History, It Is Said—Scarcity Sends Cash Wheat to $1.50.

For what was said on the Produce Exchange to be the first time in history, wheat has been shipped back from New York to the West for consumption. Recent inquiries have been received from as far away as Texas for New York red wheat.

Already two boat loads are en route from here to Buffalo, four more are loading, and some shipments have been made by rail.

This unusual action is made possible by the great scarcity of cash wheat all through the West. No. 2 red sold here yesterday at $1.47 per bushel and $1.50 was asked at the close.

STATE DEPARTMENT STOPS A MARRIAGE

WOMAN A MISS GARWOOD

Sister Applied to Washington and She Was Found in Paris—Man Said to be Austrian and New York Physician.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The Government of the United States has been successful in preventing the marriage of an American girl to an adventurer, and the news of its victory was received to-day. The woman in the case is a Miss Garwood of New York, who is now at the Continental Hotel, in Paris, where the ceremony was to have taken place. The State Department declined to make public the name of the bogus nobleman who sought an alliance with the Garwood family, but he is said to have a wife and two children in New York; some reports even make him a physician of reputation there.

Miss Frances A. Garwood of New York called at the State Department yesterday in company with the Rev. John T. Quinn, assistant rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension. She asked that the State Department aid her in preventing the marriage of her sister, who is an heiress, to the man who posed as an Italian Count and recited plausible stories of his castles on the shores of the sunny Mediterranean.

Miss Garwood wanted the United States Ambassadors to take a hand in the preventive programme, and asked that the State Department's secret code be used.

Miss Garwood gave her sister's address as the Hotel Cecil, London. The State Department got in communication with Ambassador Reid, who ascertained that the woman had gone to Paris. Immediately the department got in touch with Ambassador White, in that city, who found Miss Garwood at the Continental Hotel. Evidently one of the staff of the embassy had a quiet but emphatic talk with the American woman, for the news from there to-day was reassuring.

Miss Frances Garwood went back to New York to-night. The Rev. Mr. Quinn absolutely refused to discuss the affair. It is declared, however, on good authority that the man in the case, far from being an Italian nobleman, is not even an Italian citizen. Ambassador Des Planches, who called at the State Department to-day, had a long talk with Assistant Secretary Wilson.

Miss Garwood has been informed that the man is actually an Austrian by birth and had resided in New York for twenty or twenty-five years.

Other reports about the man allege that he is a physician and surgeon of wide reputation in New York and the head of a hospital, that he is married and has a wife and son, both said to be living in New York. It is believed that the mistake about his being an Italian subject arose from the fact that he frequented the Italian sections of New York. His age is given in one report as about 60 years, while Miss Garwood's sister is said to be at least twenty years younger.

It is pointed out at the State Department that the Government had acted in no capacity other than to transmit the messages to the Ambassadors at London and Paris.

BARUCH BUYS ON FIFTH AVE.

Bernard M. Baruch, the banker, is about to join the ranks of those who have bought or built handsome residences in Fifth Avenue, opposite Central Park, in the region just south of the Carnegie mansion.

As a site for his new residence Mr. Baruch has acquired from Mrs. Anna B. Bliss and Miss Cora F. Barnes the plot, 50 by 100, at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street. This plot has been held at about $450,000 and was purchased by Mr. Baruch through Brokers L. J. Phillips & Co. and Henry D. Winans & May.

At Eighty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue, a block north of the site bought by Mr. Baruch, is the Henry Phipps mansion, and to the south, at Eighty-fifth Street, James B. Clews is building a new residence. No. 1,053 Fifth Avenue, adjoining Mr. Baruch's plot on the north, was purchased recently by George Leary.

For several years Mr. Baruch has lived at 6 West Fifty-second Street, a dwelling at one time owned by the late James Henry Smith. This house is directly at the rear of the Vanderbilt mansions and was occupied by Mr. Smith until he bought the William C. Whitney property at Sixty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue.

WAVED GOOD-BYE AND DIED.

Boy Riding Behind a Coach Is Caught by Wheel and Crushed.

Stealing a ride behind a coach cost John Marella, 7 years old, of 29 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, his life yesterday in a peculiar manner. The boy was at the corner of Carroll Street and Hamilton Avenue when the coach, in charge of Charles Netti of 2,358 Atlantic Avenue, came along.

According to witnesses the boy ran after the carriage and was riding on it behind. While passing his house he waved his hand in mock good-bye to some one he knew. Instantly his arm was caught in the revolving spokes of the wheel, and his body was dragged in between the wheel and the carriage and whirled under the vehicle, which run over and killed him almost instantly.

In spite of the boy's screams he was dragged along for several feet before the horses were brought to a standstill. Netti was locked up charged with homicide.

STRIKE TO BE ENDED, RIOTING CONTINUES

Terms Practically Agreed Upon, but More Cars Are Smashed in Philadelphia.

LEADERS HOPED FOR PEACE

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 3.—The trolley car strike, after six days of rioting, will be brought to an end late tomorrow or early Saturday through the intervention of Senator McNichol, the Republican leader in Philadelphia.

Senator McNichol began negotiations with the representatives of the car men and the rapid transit company on Tuesday, and after several conferences had been held to-day it was announced that satisfactory terms of settlement had been agreed upon by both the company and C. O. Pratt, representing the strikers.

While the Rapid Transit Directors were in conference discussing the terms as submitted by the strike leader Pratt was reviewing the counter proposal made by the company. Senator McNichol acted as intermediary between the two conferences, and the settlement of the strike is due to his conciliatory efforts.

Starting at Wayne Junction, a mob of more than 1,000 people swept down Germantown Avenue as far as Susquehanna Avenue to-night, and for four hours wrecked trolley cars, stoned and beat motormen and conductors, injured policemen and passengers, and strewed their path with the débris of their raid.

Scores of persons were wounded by bricks and other missiles. Seven cars were utterly demolished. Roofs and sides were stove in, poles were smashed, fenders were broken, and seats were torn from their places. The crews of the cars were scattered in every direction, so that at a late hour last night none of them had reported at their car barns. Several are in hospitals, but what has become of the remainder is not known.

While part of the crowd was fighting with the police at Wayne Junction, the rest marched on down to Hunting Park Avenue. Here they found two cars, one north and one south bound. With "scab" as their war cry, the people charged the cars.

Many Women Faint.

At the first volley of stones the windows in all the cars were broken. The passengers had escaped at the sight of the mob, but in the excitement numbers of women fainted. The crowd then started to dismantle the cars. Overpowering the motormen and conductors, they beat them and kicked them until they were nearly insensible. Then they tore the cash registers from their places, ripped up the seats and threw them into the streets, broke in the sides of the cars with railroad ties, and smashed in the roof, using part of the trolley pole, which they had broken in half, for this purpose. Even the wheels were broken off from their axles, and when the police succeeded in driving them away the cars were beyond further use.

Leaving Germantown Avenue, the mob then followed the trolley line to Broad and Erie Avenues, where they found another trolley car. A boy pulled the pole from the wire, and in an instant the car was surrounded and the work of demolition began. The motorman was badly beaten. The conductor escaped by tearing his badge from his hat and mingling in the crowd which was attacking the car.

Numbers of policemen were injured more or less seriously in the fight. The casualties have not yet been reported. From the Germantown Station Sergt. Greeves and Patrolmen Kicker, Gregory, Coulter, Kershaw, and Smith were more or less seriously injured.

Germantown Avenue at the places where the fights occurred is strewn with parts of the cars, railroad ties, and rubbish of all kinds. The damage is estimated to be thousands of dollars.

At Broad Street and Erie Avenue, Thirteenth Street and Allegheny Avenue, and Allegheny Avenue and Clearfield Street the demonstrations early in the evening were almost as serious as those in the Kensington district last night. Cars were wrecked, motormen and conductors were beaten, policemen were assaulted.

Several were injured by the indiscriminate hurling of stones and clubs by the lawless element. No attempt was made to burn the cars, the mob being content with breaking the windows, tearing the curtains to shreds, and splitting the seats into kindling wood.

When it became known that there was a probability of an amicable settlement to-morrow the fury of the mob abated, and at 10 o'clock the disturbed districts were quiet.

After the final conference of the day Senator McNichol left Mr. Pratt and made the formal announcement that the strike would be settled to-day or to-morrow, and that Mr. Pratt had accepted the terms offered by the company and that both parties to the conference had only a few issues to adjust.

"Mr. Pratt is entirely satisfied with the concessions," said Senator McNichol, "and he has assured me that the men will accept the conditions when they are laid before them to-morrow. I, on the other hand, have pledged my word that the company will rigidly carry out its part of the agreement. This means that the strike will end without further trouble and traffic will be restored Friday or early Saturday."

Terms of Agreement.

> That the company will receive committees representing the employes to discuss points of grievances or demands of the employes.
>
> That the hours of employment shall be adjusted to ten hours as near as possible and the shifts shortened.
>

While there are some minor points of concession on the part of both employes and company, which will bring about a better condition for the men and a more satisfactory business arrangement, these conditions, according to Senator McNichol, are the vital conditions of set-

HOLBEIN SAVED BY A WOMAN.

Anonymous Donor Gives £40,000 and Picture Will Stay in England.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 3.—England is jubilant over the fact that Holbein's Duchess of Milan has been "saved for the nation" instead of becoming the property of one or the other of the several American millionaires mentioned as likely purchasers.

The outcry made by a section of the press over the supposedly great loss England would suffer were not the £72,000 required to buy the picture from the firm of dealers collected did not produce the great popular subscription hoped for, only £15,500 being contributed. This, with the £10,000 promised by the Government, left £46,500 still to be provided, and until yesterday it was considered extremely doubtful that this would be obtained.

At the last moment an anonymous donor came forward with an offer of £40,000, and the National Art Collections Fund has undertaken the responsibility for making up the balance. For the present the name of the donor is being kept a profound secret, but I am able to say that it is a woman.

COLLEGES MUST BE MODERN.

President Wilson Says They Cannot Survive Unless They Become So.

CONCORD, N. H., June 3.—"Schools like this and universities like Princeton must pass out of existence unless they adapt themselves to modern life," was the declaration of President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton to-day in an address at a luncheon, one of the features of the closing day of anniversary week at St. Paul's School. President Wilson said in part:

"I believe in athletics. I believe in all those things which relax energy that the faculties may be at their best when the energies are not relaxed, but only so far do I believe in these diversions. When the lad leaves school he should cease to be an athlete. The modern world is an exacting one and the things it exacts are mostly intellectual.

"A danger surrounding our modern education is the danger of wealth. I am sorry for the lad who is going to inherit money. I fear that the kind of men who are to share in shaping the future are not largely exemplified in schools and colleges.

"So far as the colleges go, the side shows have swallowed up the circus, and we in the main tent do not know what is going on. And I do not know that I want to continue under those conditions as a ringmaster. There are more honest occupations than teaching if you cannot teach."

TORNADO LEVELS HOUSES.

Six Persons Injured in Georgia—One Family Buried in Ruins.

SYLVANIA, Ga., June 3.—A half-dozen or more persons were injured in a tornado that passed over the lower part of Screven county this afternoon. The storm came from the direction of Dover and disappeared from there in a northeasterly direction. It wrecked the home of Stephen Thomson, a white farmer, and buried under its ruins the farmer and his wife and children. The elder of their sons, despite his injuries, extricated himself from the fallen timbers and then rescued the other members of the family. Mrs. Thomson was seriously hurt, and the others of the family sustained painful injuries.

Tenement houses were wrecked and several negro occupants injured.

MOUNTAIN MELTS SNOW BANK.

Gone in 48 Hours from Mount Ellott—Volcanic Action Suspected.

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., June 3.—An immense snow bank, sixty feet deep, lying on the slope of Mount Ellott, a 13,000-foot peak in Southwestern Colorado, has melted within the last forty-eight hours and an immense column of steam is rising from the spot. The cloud of steam is visible for miles. It is believed by those familiar with the mountain that the phenomenon is caused by a volcanic disturbance.

A mine located near the basin and worked years ago was abandoned because of the intense heat encountered in the lower levels. The deep snow on the mountainside prevents close investigation.

TWINS, SAID THE MESSAGE

And Then a Policeman Arrested the Happy Chauffeur for Speeding Home.

"Twins. Come at once," was the message which William M. Higgins, chauffeur for S. M. Jervis of the Hotel Ansonia, received while he was with his employer in New Rochelle yesterday afternoon. Higgins is only 29.

"Fine," said Mr. Jervis when the happy Higgins told him the news. "Burn up the roads and get there."

Higgins needed no second bidding. He had every automobile record from New Rochelle to Manhattan broken by many minutes, when Bicycle Policeman Oliver stopped him at 139th Street and Seventh Avenue. Despite the pleading of Higgins and of his employer the policeman insisted on the chauffeur accompanying him to the station. There Mr. Jervis left an Egyptian ring valued at several hundred dollars as security for Higgins's appearance in the Harlem Court to-day, and Higgins hurried home.

Mrs. Higgins and the twins are doing nicely.

TRAINS BLOCKED BY TINY ROCK

An ingenious device of wires runs through the Erie Railroad tunnel in Jersey City to the Erie office in the station, where they record vibrations denoting any disturbance in the tunnel.

These wires, delicately balanced, run the length of the tunnel roof and end in an office in the station with a sensitive electrical arrangement. At 5:40 yesterday afternoon, when commuters were scurrying from the ferries through the station to their trains, and just after a local had run through the tunnel westward the wires in the little office gave an alarm.

Immediately the watcher there telegraphed to the tower at the other end of the tunnel to hold back all trains; at the same time he gave the signal to stop all outgoing trains. Then an inspection car was sent out to find the cause of the vibration.

On the west-bound track only 200 feet from the eastern end the crew came on a four-pound stone that had fallen from the roof to the middle of the track. It was removed quickly, but caused a delay of twenty minutes, which jammed the station with a crowd of about 1,000 angry commuters.

VERY RAPID THINKING IN A 120-FOOT FALL

A BIG TIMBER AFTER HIM

But He Got Out of Its Way and Came Up with a Black Eye, a Craving for Cigarettes, and a Foreboding of Docked Pay.

A section of the scaffolding on which Joseph N. Long of 303 East 122d Street and John Manning of 490 East Sixty-fourth Street were at work riveting into place one of the iron beams in the new Manhattan Bridge structure gave way yesterday afternoon and both men fell 120 feet into the East River.

Long escaped with a discolored eye and a slight shock, but Manning was badly hurt, and will be in the hospital several weeks. That neither lost his life was due to remarkable courage and coolness in the face of what looked like certain death to the hundreds who witnessed the accident.

Despite the suddenness of the fall both men kept their wits about them and managed to hit the water feet first, and when they came to the surface were able to look out for themselves until their friends, hurrying to the rescue, got to them.

As for Long, he met his friends half way, swimming more than 200 feet to meet the boat that was hurried after them. Manning, who was badly bruised, treaded water until a Health Department boat got to him. Then he fastened the line that was thrown to him around his body and was pulled on board.

The place where the iron workers fell was about 200 feet from the shore, opposite Pike Street, at the foot of which a boat belonging to the Health Department is moored. Manning and Long are both young men and skilled iron workers. They were operating what the workmen call "the bull," an automatic, steam-driven machine that drives in steel rivets in steel girders. A big rivet was almost driven home, and the two men were laughing at a joke that William Hanley, a fellow-workmen on a neighboring scaffold, had told them when suddenly the scaffold on which they were gave way.

A fraction of a second later the two men were plunging down to the river, while the hundreds of workmen on the structure watched them, horror stricken. Not a man on the bridge ever expected to see Long or Manning alive again. Even if they escaped death from the water those who witnessed the accident were sure they would be killed by the timbers from the wreck of the scaffolding that were hurtling through the air and seemed sure to overtake them before they struck the water.

Long and Manning hit the water about the same time. In a few seconds—it seemed minutes to those who were watching—the forms of the two men came up. The smaller of them, Long, spat out the water that was in his mouth and with a strong overhand stroke started in the direction of the shore. Manning, unable to swim, managed to keep afloat by treading.

When they saw that their comrades were not killed, and apparently not badly hurt by their fall, the men on the bridge ran over the narrow paths to the elevators in the Manhattan tower of the bridge and hurried to the shore. When they reached Pike Street the boat with Long and Manning on board was nearing the landing. Manning had succumbed to shock and was unconscious on the deck, his face and the upper part of his body badly bruised. Long was standing up, the only sign of his experience being a left eye that was turning blue and his wet clothes.

"Well, I'll be durned!" said Bill in amazement, as he pulled out his papers and tobacco.

A hurry call for an ambulance had been sent to Gouverneur Hospital, and the ambulance was coming down Pike Street by the time the boat was tied up to her pier. The ambulance surgeon had the unconscious form of Manning placed in the wagon, and then told Long to get in, too.

"No, Sir, not me," answered Long. "I'm going home to my wife, and get some dry clothes."

"No you're not; you're going to the hospital with me," the doctor replied, and a policeman made Long climb in. A few minutes later he was in bed in the hospital demanding to know why he was not permitted to go to his family, when, as he put it, "there ain't nothing wrong with me nohow, except a bum eye."

After Long had cooled down and become somewhat reconciled to his enforced detention in the hospital, he consented to tell his sensations while he was tumbling through the air.

"It came so sudden like," he said, "that I was started on my way to the river before I got wise to what had happened. Then I looked up and saw a big piece of timber piling down right on top of me, and I says to myself, 'Joe, old boy, if ever you kept that noodle of yours clear now is the time to do it.' I knew that if I resisted in any way that I would probably be shocked into unconsciousness the moment I hit the water, and with that big plank coming along behind me like the Twentieth Century Limited when she's behind time, I knew it would be all over but the shouting then.

"It seemed like I was in the air an hour before I reached the water, and I was turning around like a wheel all the time. In some way, I don't know how—maybe it was an accident—I managed to hit the water feet first. Then was the time I had to be careful. As I saw the water gleaming below me I simply relaxed myself.

"I think I must almost have hit the bottom of the river. I knew that if I did not keep going down the plank would get me. Finally I came up and saw it floating in the water about a dozen feet away. Then I struck out for the shore and a cigarette."

Long has a wife and one child, a baby. He was asked if he thought of them as he was going through the air and of what would happen to them if he was killed.

"Of course I thought of 'em," he answered, "but I cut out all that death business. I was thinking overtime about life just about then."

"Do you suppose they will dock you?" he was asked.

"Sure," he answered, "for didn't I quit the job and in a hurry, too?"

111 ARE GRADUATED FROM COOPER UNION

INSTITUTE IS 50 YEARS OLD

The fiftieth annual commencement exercises of Cooper Union, marking the close of the first half century since the founding of the institute by Peter Cooper, were held in the main hall of the Cooper Union Building last night. The auditorium was filled to overflowing with the students, their parents, and friends; and on the platform sat the faculty, trustees, and the students who received post-graduate degrees.

To each of the 111 students receiving degrees in the Schools of Technical Science, General Science, and Chemistry was presented, in addition to the diploma and degree of the institute, a medal bearing the likeness of Peter Cooper. The medal was the work of the French medallist, O. Rody, presented to the institute by Mrs. Sarah A. Hewitt, a daughter of Peter Cooper, with the request that copies of it be presented to the graduates at each future commencement.

The diplomas and degrees conferred last night marked the completion by the students of the four or five years' course in general science, the five years' course in chemistry, the course of four years in electrical or mechanical engineering, and the three years' courses in mechanical or architectural drawing. Diplomas were also conferred upon the students of the Woman's Art School and the School of Stenography and Typewriting.

Although courses are given also in the day time at Cooper Union, most of the graduates were students of the various night classes, which they attended after completion of the day's work in stores and shops and offices. Nearly all of them were workers of the type which Peter Cooper, the founder of the institute, himself "a mechanic of New York," had in mind when first, as a poor apprentice, he conceived the idea of the "Union for the Advancement of Science and Art."

John E. Parsons, President of Cooper Union, in his address, declared that he was the only surviving member of the original Board of Trustees selected by Peter Cooper, and, except Mrs. Hewitt, the founder's daughter, who was unable to attend the commencement, the only surviving worker of the institute's early days. He said that Cooper Union was under obligations not only to the founder, but to his descendants and their family, for the larger part of its endowment, fully $2,226,000 of its $3,977,504 endowment having come from them.

"It is imperative," he said, "that the institute secure liberal aid from some source in the near future. At the time of the first opening of Cooper Union, in 1859, 2,000 students were admitted. At the opening of the institute this year 6,084 students made application for admittance, besides 1,789 students promoted from the classes of the previous year. Of these 7,873 applicants, only 3,136 could be admitted as students. This figure, for the night classes, represents the total capacity of the present building.

"It was the purpose of Peter Cooper, the founder, to provide for an ever-increasing number of students; but without the addition of considerable funds that cannot now be done. There are many friends of the Cooper Union here, but, unfortunately, I do not believe they carry millions in their pockets. We must strain every effort, however, to secure additional bequests in order to build on the site of the present old armory building a larger edifice, which shall comfortably and efficiently serve for the instruction of at least 3,000 additional students."

The Cooper Medal presented to the graduates last night bore on its face the portrait of Peter Cooper, and on the reverse, Cooper Union, with an allegorical figure of learning. Beneath it is the motto, "In Labore Quies," then the inscription:

> To honor Peter Cooper, whose life was devoted to the public welfare and the education of all. First half-century of the Cooper Union, 1859-1909. Sarah Hewitt, with love and reverence for her father, the founder.

82 STEVENS GRADUATES.

Institute Holds Its Thirty-seventh Annual Commencement.

The thirty-seventh annual commencement exercises of Stevens Institute of Technology were held yesterday in the institute's auditorium, Hoboken. The degree of Mechanical Engineer was conferred upon eighty-two students. The honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering was bestowed upon Julian Kennedy, B. S., A. M., of Pittsburg.

The valedictory address was made by Evert Nyland of Montclair, N. J.

In the afternoon President Humphreys and Mrs. Humphreys gave a reception in the Carnegie Laboratory of Engineering, which was attended by the Trustees, the members of the Faculty, and all of the students. In the evening the junior class gave a farewell reception in honor of the graduating class.

IVY DAY AT BARNARD.

The Barnard College seniors held their ivy day exercises yesterday afternoon on the college grounds. All the available space in front of Millbank Hall was filled with friends and under classmen when promptly at 2 o'clock the seniors, 100 strong, in cap and gown, filed into the cloister. At their head was the class standard bearer, Miss Eva Von Baur.

After a short speech by the class President, Miss Olga Rilke delivered the "Steps" oration. There are certain steps at Barnard which belong exclusively to seniors, and it was Miss Rilke who handed over these steps to the seniors-to-be. They were received for the class of 1910 by its President, Miss Lilian Egleston. After the graduates had sung all their songs of the olden days, they marched with fitting dignity across the campus to Brooks Hall, where the dedication of the ivy took place.

The oration was given by Miss Lillian Closson, and the ivy song was written by Miss Ethel Hodson. The exercises closed with a May pole dance.

R. Hoe & Co. Apprentices Graduate.

The graduating exercises of the apprentice school of R. Hoe & Co., manufacturers of printing presses, were held last night in the De Witt Memorial Church, 280 Rivington Street. Diplomas were distributed and special prizes awarded to the leaders in the respective classes. The school, which is the first technical school to be established by a manufacturing concern in the United States, is maintained in the Hoe factory in Grand Street.

CHILDREN ORATE FOR M'MANUS'S GOLD

THE BOYS WERE PATRIOTIC

Girls Go In for Hair-Raising Bits of Verse, and One Wins Honors with a Ballad.

For several weeks the pupils in six public schools in the neighborhood of the Times Building have been spending their time in libraries searching through manuals of public speaking and volumes containing "The World's Greatest Poems." Some of them were successful in finding suitable selections for their budding talents. Others were less so, but, at any rate, some twelve of them spoke their pieces last night in the assembly room of School 51, in West Forty-fourth Street.

Senator McManus was responsible for all this youthful endeavor. He had offered four prizes, two of $10 each and two of $5 each—two for boys and two for girls—to encourage public speaking in these schools. Last night's results seemed to indicate that it didn't need encouraging. The pupils from these schools seem ready to go forth and orate any time they may be called upon.

They were almost uncontrollably dramatic, standing on a platform in front of the desk on which reposed six five-dollar gold pieces. The sight of them, or the feeling that they were there, urged the students on to forensic heights which pleased Senator McManus into making a speech himself later in the evening.

A glance at the first part of the programme, which belonged to the girls, showed that there was to be no lack of drama. Miss Mary Purdy recited "The Famine" from "Hiawatha" with an intensity, at least, which was praiseworthy. Two blood-curdling bits of verse followed, and then came the surprise of the evening.

Ethel Remy, a slip of a girl, perhaps 14, with her hair done in Southern style and with a red rose caught in its coils; with a simple green gown and fascinating black tied slippers recited "The Ballad of Sweet P" so charmingly that many of the children and the teachers and the mothers and fathers who were present quite forgot they were in a schoolhouse while they listened to this story of the Revolution told in rhyme. The applause which followed was spontaneous and long, and it didn't surprise any one much when later in the evening the girl got the first prize of $10.

The boys went in for patriotic bits. "The American Speaker," "The American Indian," "High Tide at Gettysburg," and even "Columbus" were shouted out until the rafters would have rung had there been any.

One small William Israel struck the bullseye hard with Kipling's "Gungha Din." Lines like "Your bloomin' nut" struck the humor of the small boys in the audience; much of the Cockney slang was beyond them; but the ending left tears in many eyes.

The judges had their troubles, as the reporter of THE TIMES can testify, since he was in the room with them. Among the girls it was easily decided that Ethel Remey was first, and the second prize was finally awarded to Catherine Small of School 84.

The boys were more difficult. Israel, Joseph Kellman, and John Donnelly were hard to choose between. It was finally decided by the judges to divide the $15 among them, so they all received a first prize of $5.

The schools represented were 84, 17, 58, 67, 32, and 51.

RACING BUREAU RAIDED.

Police Drop In Unexpectedly on a Tribune Building Office.

Capt. Toole of the Oak Street Station, with Detectives McGowan and Walsh, late yesterday afternoon arrested twelve men in an office on the seventh floor of the Tribune Building, in Nassau Street, charging two of them with maintaining a poolroom and the rest with aiding and abetting the offense.

The Captain said afterward that he had reason to suspect that the place he visited was being run as an information bureau. So he took two detectives to see about it.

Two men were seated at desks in the main entrance office, one of whom was Henry Robinson, so he said, and he gave his address as 1,637 Park Avenue. The other man described himself as Albert Goodman of 124 Halsey Street, Brooklyn.

The Captain had made a note of four names he found painted on the door, but there was nobody in the place by any of those names, and Toole then asked Robinson:

"What business do you carry on here?"

"Just a moment, gentlemen," began Robinson, as he pushed a button operating a buzzer in an adjoining room.

"Get in there," the Captain called to his men, who were nearest the room, and taking Robinson and Goodman the Captain went in, too.

Toole says there were ten men in the larger room, all seated at a table in shirt sleeves, with pencils, paper, some printed matter the Captain classed as "racing dope" and "dope books."

The patrol wagon was sent for and the prisoners were taken to the Oak Street Station. Later all twelve were bailed out.

Robinson, the Captain learned, leased the offices from the janitor, who said he was not aware that the men were gambling, or running a poolroom or information bureau.

BREWERS WAR ON DIVES.

Rivals in Beer Trade Agree Not to Sell to Disreputable Saloons.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 3.—Eastern and Western brewers have made a compact whereby they hope to be able to put the low dives out of business. Hereafter brewers will refuse to sell beer to persons whose places are under the ban of other brewers. This agreement was reached to-day at the United States Brewers' Association convention here.

H. B. Scharmann of New York, in a talk before the convention, declared the brewers were only 28 per cent. to blame for all the trouble caused by drink, while the whisky dealers were responsible for the other 72 per cent.

He declared the whisky dealers favored prohibition because where prohibition existed they sold more of their product than under general license conditions.

The following officers were elected for the following year: President—Carl Hoster of Columbus; First Vice President—Jacob Ruppert of New York; Second Vice President—M. Hann of Cleveland; Third Vice President—Edward A. Schmidt of Philadelphia; Treasurer—Anton C. Hupfel of New York, and Secretary—Hugh Fox of New York.

There was a memorial service for the twenty-one members of the association who had died during the year, at the close of which the convention adjourned.

FUND FOR THE HELPLESS.

Widowed Mothers and Orphans' Society Meeting—East Side Women Join.

A meeting of the newly formed Widowed Mothers and Orphans' Fund Society was held in the Synagogue Beth Ha Medrish Hagodel, at 58 Norfolk Street, last night, to arouse interest in the work of the society and to prepare for a big mass meeting which is to be held on the east side in the near future. Dr. Meyer Frankel presided, and among the speakers were the Rev. Dr. Hirsch Masliansky and Mrs. William Einstein, founder of the society and its President. About 500 people were present, the larger number being women.

Mrs. Einstein said that the object of the new society was to keep the home intact, and she solicited the aid of every woman present. At the conclusion of her speech about 200 persons stepped forward and joined the organization, the dues of which are $1 a year.

The society has opened an office at 257 East Broadway.

tlement, all of which have been agreed to by Mr. Pratt, representing the strikers.

Through the intervention of Senator McNichol and Recorder of Deeds Vare, the strike, which was fast approaching a crisis beyond the control of the constituted authorities, has been suddenly ended at a time when riot and lawlessness was becoming rife. The situation has developed to a point when the administration and the Police Department were almost powerless to check uprisings. In some sections of the city the police expressed such sympathy for the striking men that Senator McNichol and those directing the political policies saw not only bloodshed, but a long drawn-out and costly strike and a reaction of the discomforted public that forbode harm for the Republican Party and promised to destroy confidence in the administration.

Championed Laboring Men's Cause.

Senator McNichol championed the cause of the laboring men, and what concessions they obtained toward settlement are largely due to the fight made for them by the organization leader with the traction company. Several critics of the political leader are saying to-night that his interests in acting as mediator were selfish and that he did so to save the organization from danger in the primaries and probable defeat in the November election.

In taking this position Senator McNichol was forced to oppose the policies established by Mayor Reyburn and to condemn the Police Department. That required no little courage. Mayor Reyburn had declared that he would not listen to arbitration, and the Department of Public Safety had made the most elaborate preparations for armed control of the situation, and even gone so far as to promulgate a riot act.

Senator McNichol saw the trend of the situation. He saw it early, and with Recorder Vare and other interests powerful in the city counseled not only a change of policy, but demanded that the strike should be brought to a peaceful and prompt end.

"This cannot go on," said Senator McNichol as he sat in the sickroom of his wife on Sunday and heard Mrs. McNichol ask the children about the strike and its progress. Mrs. McNichol depicted the suffering that would come to the families and children of the strikers, and she expressed a hope that it would soon end with its untold suffering.

Senator McNichol heard the children and his wife talking about the troubles. He says that he had not thought of the political advantage that might accrue to such an initiative. Senator McNichol went immediately to the camp of the strikers, heard their cause, listened to their demands, some of them radical and preposterous, and then compromises were suggested, not by Mr. Pratt, but by Senator McNichol, who came there, as he announced, as the friend of the laboring men.

While Senator McNichol was conducting these preliminary negotiations Recorder Vare was seeing other interests, and late last night these two leaders reported the result of their conferences, and a policy was adopted.

Two Police Captains Suspended.

This afternoon the Mayor ordered the suspension of Capts. Dungan and Thompson, two veterans in the city's police service. It is presumed they are charged with failure to vigorously push the orders against rioting. There are only five police Captains in the city, and the suspension of Dungan and Thompson caused a sensation. In their places were appointed the two Lieutenants from the Tenderloin district, accustomed to the handling of the tough element.

As the result of the disturbances in Kensington last night Lieutenant of Police Sykes, commander of the police in the district, was suspended from duty this morning, and will be tried before a Police Board on a charge of failing to lead his men against the rioters. Sykes, it is said, did not leave the station house during the rioting.

B. & O. STRIKE EXTENDS.

Machinists and Helpers in Ohio Shops Quit Work.

BALTIMORE, June 3.—The strike of the machinists and their helpers in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad shops, originating in the Mount Clare shops, this city, as a protest against the introduction of the piece work system in the erecting department, has now extended to the shops at Cumberland, Grafton, Fairmont, Parkersburg, (Ohio River division shops,) Connellsville, Glenwood, New Castle Junction, Penn., Cleveland, Newark, Chicago Junction, Ohio, and Garrett, Ind., and, the men say, to other shops.

At the railroad company's offices here to-night it was stated that in the shops named 468 have quit work and that 218 remain. The statement was also made that of the total number of machinists, helpers, and apprentices employed by the road in the affected district only about 25 per cent. of the men have stopped work.

This differs materially from the reports received at the headquarters of the strikers in this city, where it was said to-night that up to 6 P. M. telegrams from points along the road show that 85 per cent. of the men have quit work.

Pittsfield Strike Ends.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 3.—The cars of the Pittsfield Street Railway Company were run to-day as usual, the conductors and motormen who were on strike yesterday morning having returned to work. The strikers gain their two principal demands, the increase in wages and a straight ten-hour day.

FAKE LOTTERY MAN FAINTS WHEN TAKEN

Backus Has Operated for Years, the Police Say, but They Never Could Catch Him.

UNDERLING BETRAYS HIM

10,000 Tickets Found in His Rooms Besides Evidence Showing How He Worked the Game.

Post Office and Detective Bureau officers arrested yesterday an asthmatic elderly man giving the name Charles O. Backus, who with two sons and a daughter has been living on the second floor of the apartment house at 507 West 150th Street. He fainted when the officers entered his apartment. He has heart trouble.

In his pockets and on his writing desk the officers found more than 10,000 lottery tickets and almost as many circulars advertising lottery drawings. According to the detectives who arrested him, he is the "King of Fake Lotteries."

The postal authorities have heard of Backus for several years, but have never been able to locate him. Whenever they asked any one whom they had arrested for selling fake lottery tickets where he got the tickets the prisoner would always answer, "Backus," and then refuse to say more.

Yesterday Detectives Wilber and Hughes of the Central Office and Inspector Hill of the Post Office went to arrest Louis L. Levine, wanted for distributing lottery tickets. When Detective McConville arrested Levine for the same offense in February, 1903, the detective was badly bitten by Levine's bulldog.

When the detectives forced their way into Levine's house, at 333 Pleasant Avenue, they were confronted by Levine's daughter with a savage bulldog.

By a show of pistols the detectives drove off the girl and dog and found the father in the basement. On the way to court they asked him where he got the fake lottery tickets, and what he told them made them visit a printing establishment at 119 Fulton Street, from which they trailed a man carrying a bundle of freshly printed fake lottery tickets to Backus's home. After the bundle was delivered the detectives forced their way in and arrested Backus.

When revived from the fainting fit Backus was arraigned in the Tombs and held in $1,000 bail for examination on Friday.

A search of Backus's effects showed how the fake lottery game is worked. The circulars just delivered from the printing shop purported to be a correct list of the successful "May drawings" in the "Mexican National Lottery." According to the circular the holder of ticket No. 11 won $40 and the holder of ticket No. 67,127 won $60,000. These circulars, according to the detectives, are sent around by runners through the tenement districts and are mailed to the farming districts.

Backus's lottery headquarters were at 122 Bowery, according to the detectives, where he operated under the name of Ernest Dahlfues & Co. One hundred and fifty packages of lottery tickets were found in his desk, and there were hundreds of tickets addressed apparently to agents who peddled them in St. Louis, Philadelphia, and other cities.

According to the police, Backus gave back in cash prizes a certain per cent. of the money he took in, which gave his scheme a reputation for honesty.

The police said last night that they had heard of Backus's operations for five years without being able to locate him.

John Armstrong Chaloner of Cobham, Va., a member of the New York family of Chanlers, and former husband of Amelie Rives, yesterday entered suit for $100,000 damages against The New York Evening Post. The action was filed in the Federal District Court in this city.

This action is based on an editorial in The Post, in which reference was made to the killing by Chaloner of John Gillard, an Englishman, on March 15. Gillard's wife had taken refuge from him in the Chaloner home, and Gillard attempted to kill her and was shot by Chaloner. He was exonerated by a jury. In commenting on the case The Post said:

"The latest prominent assassin had the rare foresight to have himself declared insane before he shot his man."

Chaloner has been declared insane by a New York court and sane by courts of Virginia and North Carolina.

There is But One PIANOLA Made Only by The Aeolian Co.

What Provision Are You Making For Music This Summer

If you already own a piano that you use in your summer home, you need a Pianola to go with it.

Even though some member of your household plays, this member is not always present, or in the mood for playing. With a Pianola in the room, ready to be moved in front of the piano, you can always command just the kind of music needed to suit the occasion.

On the other hand, if you have been accustomed to renting a piano each season, you will find it far more satisfactory to purchase a Pianola Piano, and either keep it permanently in the country or take it with you when you go.

The Pianola Piano is not only of exceptionally fine musical quality, and a splendid instrument for hand-playing, but is also very durable and able to withstand hard usage and trying climatic conditions. This was shown by the splendid condition of the 26 Pianola Pianos that were carried around the world by the Battleship Squadron.

There are few things more enjoyable than listening to music well rendered upon the piano. This pleasure the Pianola and Pianola Piano afford. Even more than this, however, these instruments enable you to play the music yourself, a form of entertainment far more fascinating and substantial, than that provided by any other music-producing means.

The LARGEST NATIONAL WASTE

Stopping the waste of natural resources —of coal, of timber, of soil, of water power—is considered a serious national problem.

Yet we venture to say that all of these combined do not represent a fraction of the money wasted every year in the business houses of the country by excessive, inexact, and ineffective routine.

Such waste can be made quickly apparent to the executive head who is willing to investigate it in his own business.

And nine-tenths of it can be promptly checked by certain definite and positive methods.

May we lay our facts before you?

MAYOR HOLDS COURT ON BINGHAM'S CASE

He Begins an Investigation of Charges Contained in Justice Gaynor's Letter.

TWELVE POLICEMEN CALLED

Expresses Confidence in the Police Commissioner and Hopes Their Friendship May Not Be Broken.

All day yesterday, Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell, as the Mayor's legal adviser, examined in his office at the City Hall policemen who could explain what evidence they have against young George E. Duffy, which would justify the inclusion of his portrait in the Rogues' Gallery. Their testimony was taken under oath and put in affidavit form for the Mayor's information.

So thoroughly have Inspector McCafferty and Acting Captain Kuhne of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau gone into Duffy's past that it took twelve men yesterday to tell all that is known about him, and it is said that still others will be called to-day.

Meanwhile Duffy himself continued at work. The Mayor explained that he is not represented at this hearing by counsel because it is an ex parte proceeding for his own information. Mr. Crowell says Duffy will be asked to give his version of the case next week, when the police have brought all the proof they can against him.

The youth's employer said yesterday that he was entirely satisfied with him, and that, even if his picture is at Police Headquarters, so long as he delivers his milk conscientiously and collects his bills accurately he has no fault to find with him.

Police Commissioner Bingham had nothing whatever to say about Justice Gaynor or Duffy, but the Justice in his reply to Mayor McClellan's letter pointed out that the Commissioner was wrong in saying that the opinion of Justice Burr on the Rogues' Gallery did not apply to the present case. He urged the importance in a city like New York of the police looking out for an opportunity to help the so-called "wild boys" instead of locking them up over night without having any charge against them.

The Mayor was present at the beginning of the police examination. He asked a few questions of Patrolman Michael J. Hines. The other policemen, James A. Donlon, William B. Roddy, David J. Barry, James B. Reynolds, Robert W. Clarke, William S. Broslman, and Thomas J. Tunney of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, and John J. Elwood and Bernard W. Dowd, plainclothesmen of the Eighth Inspection District, sat nervously in the reception room across the hall awaiting their summons to face Mr. Crowell.

Rumors About Bingham.

The Mayor left the questioning after a time to his subordinate, and met the reporters. He was asked particularly about his personal relations with Commissioner Bingham. Rumors were current that the present investigation was only the beginning of the end, and that it might easily broaden out into a general inquiry into the Commissioner's administration, which would result in a new chief appearing at 300 Mulberry Street.

"Are your relations with the Commissioner amicable?" the Mayor was asked.

"Gen. Bingham and I have been friends for fifteen years. We have been intimate friends, great friends," replied the Mayor. Then he added with emphasis, "And I hope that nothing will happen to break that friendship."

"Commissioner Bingham has said he will serve out the 216 days left of his term," said a reporter.

"The Commissioner was quoted wrongly," remarked the Mayor. "He has only 211 days left to serve. It is not right to ask if he will serve them. I may not serve 211 days myself."

"Do you agree with the photographing of men under arrest who have not been convicted of crime?" was the next question.

"I have nothing to say on that subject at present," declared the Mayor emphatically.

"If the Commissioner is proved guilty, as charged by Justice Gaynor, will you remove him?" a reporter asked.

"That's an improper question," replied the Mayor with some heat. "I have no more right to answer it than would a Judge concerning a question pending before him."

The Mayor would not say positively that his inquiry would be limited to the Duffy matter, but pointed out that at present the only thing before him was Justice Gaynor's letter. He said, however, that if charges were brought that Headquarters men were expected to make a certain number of arrests to retain their details he would look into them.

Gaynor to the Mayor.

In the afternoon Justice Gaynor sent his reply to Mayor McClellan's letter by his own messenger. The Mayor had gone to the parade of the Street Cleaning Department. Here is the letter:

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 3, 1909.

The Hon. George B. McClellan, Mayor of New York:

Sir: I am much gratified to learn from your letter of June 2, to me, that you are able to examine into the conduct of the Police Commissioner so promptly, considering your many duties.

May I particularly ask you to read for yourself Mr. Justice Burr's full and careful declaration of the law in the case of Gow vs. Bingham, to which I referred, namely, that only those "convicted of crime and sentenced to prison" may be put in the Rogues' or Felons' Gallery, which the Police Commissioner has openly set at naught and defied.

I suppose you noticed that again yesterday he publicly mentioned this decision in terms of disregard. Decisions and injunctions have been repeatedly defied and disregarded by him. This boy has never been convicted or sentenced for any crime.

It is easy to give boys a bad repute by arresting them and locking them up over night, and then making no charge of crime against them before the Magistrate when they are publicly arraigned with all sorts of felons next day.

This is the record of this boy which is said to be bad, and it is made worse every time he is arrested. The laws have not authorized any official or authority, however high, to put the pictures of our boys in the Rogues' Gallery, even though the Police Commissioner may think they are "wild" or "bad."

There are many boys who are called bad boys who turn out not to be so bad after all. A good many of us could serve as examples in proof of this. My understanding is that the Police Commissioner's duty is to guard and protect our children, not oppress and wrong them. Their temptations and annoyances in this great city are many, and we have to do the best we can for them to save them.

I am myself the father of eight children, and know what they contend with. And especially is it one of the first duties of government to protect the weak and uninfluential in the community, old and young. The influential and powerful are generally able to take their own part. I trust I may with propriety say these things to your honor, as chief ruler of this city.

Respectfully,
W. J. GAYNOR.

Duffy's Side of It.

Duffy, whose treatment at the hands of the police has caused all this trouble, was seen yesterday by a TIMES reporter. He looks like an average Irish boy, with red hair and a freckled face, and there is nothing about him to suggest that he is the associate of criminals. In answer to questions about the assertion that the police had been annoying him, he said:

"I hear every now and then that they have been to neighbors and asked particularly about me. They want to know if I am still working and how I am behaving, and then the people round my way got the notion that I'm a crook. One day last year I was down at Coney Island with two friends and a plain-clothes man stopped me in the street and began to examine me. I wasn't doing anything to attract his attention, and it was very awkward to explain to my friends."

Duffy has at least one lifesaving to his credit. Last July 15 he was at Coney Island, when a man was nearly overwhelmed in the heavy sea which was running at the time. Duffy swam out to him and brought him ashore. He has been recommended for the Carnegie Hero Fund medal.

While the investigation of the police was in progress in the City Hall a man appeared at the Mayor's office with his head all tied up with bandages and asked to see the Mayor. He said he was Nathan Stockel, a restaurant keeper of 230 East Fourteenth Street, a member of the Larry Mulligan Association and well known to the Sullivans.

He said that five policemen in plain clothes had broken into his place at 1 o'clock on Thursday morning of last week and attacked him. Then they dragged him without explanation to the Fifth Street Police Station, thrashing him again in Seventh Street till he yelled "murder."

He was released on bail, but was too ill, he said, to appear in the Yorkville Court before Magistrate Herrman for three days. He was then discharged. He also said that his wife took charge of his restaurant in his absence, and that on the following evening the police again entered and ordered every one out, one of them kicking Mrs. Stockel.

The police version of this affair is that a woman ran into Stockel's restaurant to escape arrest and that he closed the doors on them. They forced their way in, cleared the place, and arrested Stockel. On the way to the station they allege that he drew a knife and slashed the coat of Patrolman James Tierney, who had him in charge. The case is now being investigated by Commissioner Bingham.

J. B. G. Rinehart, a lawyer at 43 Cedar Street, told stories last night of his experience of police brutality. He lives at 245 Bowery, and sayes he is often appealed to by his neighbors to assist them.

"Commissioner Bingham and Deputy Woods have no idea of what is actually going on," he said. "Lately I went to see a client in the Detective Bureau who was arrested on suspicion, and a big Irishman in plain clothes came to me and said, 'I hear you are making complaints against Headquarters. I warn you if you come around here doing this I'll have you run out.'

"Why, they are photographing peddlers and crap players. Then they are in danger of arrest at any time as suspicious persons, and if they are taken up several times they are packed off to the island. It's terrible what's going on here, and it's getting worse."

WOODRUFF ANXIOUS TO FUSE.

Would Select a Candidate for Mayor Likely to Please Independents.

There is a very distinct difference of opinion between Republican State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff and President Herbert Parsons of the New York County Republican Committee in regard to the qualifications of the next Republican nominee for Mayor, and incidentally in regard to the fundamental condition for fusion between the Republican city organization and the independent anti-Tammany organizations.

Mr. Parsons is not talking politics in these days, but Mr. Woodruff came out yesterday in an interview in which he declared for fusion with a Republican who would appeal to the independent voters to head the ticket. Mr. Parsons, provided all his district leaders remain faithful, will control the Republican City Convention, but conditions may arise which will render it imperative that Mr. Woodruff have his way.

"It is only fair," said Mr. Woodruff, after declaring for fusion yesterday, "that the Republicans, who must furnish a great majority of the anti-Tammany votes, should be accorded the right to select the fusion candidate for Mayor. That should be a prerequisite to any fusion next Fall. On the other hand, I believe that this Republican candidate should be a man not in any way connected with what is generally called the machine. That might drive independent voters away. I believe he should be a man of high standing—a business man preferably—and I believe he should hail from Manhattan."

Mr. Parsons declined to comment on the Woodruff pronunciamento.

"Generally speaking," said Mr. Parsons, "my preference is for the sort of man who can win. We will have a splendid chance this Fall. But I will have nothing to say regarding candidate, or fusion, or any question with a bearing on the municipal election."

The Voters' Federation, one of the anti-Tammany organizations of recent origin, which, while made up largely of Democrats dissatisfied with the Tammany régime and Murphy's ways of doing things, is entertaining cordial relations with the Republican machine, announced yesterday two meetings to be held this month. It declares it has organizations in forty of the sixty-five Assembly Districts in the city.

THAW ABANDONS HIS PLAN.

Gives Up Efforts to be Taken to Pittsburg in Bankruptcy Case.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 3.—Harry Kendall Thaw has given up in despair his attempt to secure his release from Matteawan through bankruptcy proceedings. Attorney Albert P. Mayer appeared before Judge Young in the United States District Court to-day and asked leave to file a petition for Thaw's discharge from bankruptcy without being present for examination before the referee. The court granted the request, and it is expected that a petition asking that Thaw be discharged will be presented to-morrow.

The court will set a day to hear any objections to Thaw's discharge from bankruptcy. If none is offered Thaw will be discharged, and then the receiver, Roger O'Mara, will settle up Thaw's accounts.

KILLED UNDER CAR IN SAVING SISTER

MOB ATTACKS MOTORMAN

Police Rescue Degnan Just in Time from Infuriated Italians—Victims Daughters of a Widow.

The sudden stopping of a trolley car in First Avenue at 110th Street at 9:30 o'clock last night and the sudden gathering of nearly 200 Italians from near-by houses shouting angrily and struggling to drag the motorman from his platform caused Sergt. McCarthy and Policeman Archiopoli of the East 104th Street Station to start on the run for the car from 111th Street, where they had been standing. Before they reached the car a fighting mob of men had crowded on to the platform.

Several had grabbed Motorman John Degnan of 207 East Eighty-eighth Street by the throat, and although he tried to fight them off, using his controller as a weapon, they were rapidly beating and choking him into insensibility when the policemen arrived. With nightsticks and pistols in their hands, the policemen fought a way through the crowd and drove off Degnan's assailants, who remained, however, gathered all around the car muttering threats against the motorman.

"There's a child under the car. May be there's two. Heaven knows how I hit 'em. I tried to stop, but I couldn't do it," said Degnan, brokenly, to his rescuers. Then he collapsed.

With McCarthy still standing guard over the motorman Archiopoli dropped off the car and looked under it. Pinned beneath the forward trucks by her right leg, which was terribly crushed, lay twenty-month-old Concetta Landria. Her twelve-year-old sister, Carmella, lay further back, her body apparently having been forced directly beneath the trucks. It was mangled almost beyond recognition.

Archiopoli saw at once that the larger child was dead. The smaller girl was still alive, however, and Archiopoli, managing to get her small body from beneath the wheels, carried it to a drug store on the corner of 110th Street, into which McCarthy took Degnan also, guarding him with pistol and club from the infuriated crowd which tried at first to take away the prisoner.

McCarthy stood guard outside the locked door of the drug store while Archiopoli telephoned for an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital and for the police reserves. Dr. Gillet and Dr. Smith both responded to the call for ambulances, the first attending to little Concetta, while Dr. Smith, after a glance, pronounced Carmella dead. The police reserves drove the crowd away from the drug store, into which several had made attempts to force a way past McCarthy, only to be frightened back by his club and gun.

Concetta was taken to the Harlem Hospital, where she will probably recover. The body of Carmella was taken to the police station, where Degnan was taken also. The motorman said the first thing he knew the two children were directly in the path of his car, and that, although he applied the brakes with all his strength and with the greatest haste, he was too late.

"The larger girl tried to save her baby sister," said the motorman with tears in his eyes. "I saw her push the little one out of the way. She was not quick enough to save herself, however, after having stopped to care for the baby."

The children were daughters of Mrs. Elvira Landria, a widow, who lives at 2,136 First Avenue, near the corner of 110th Street. The children had had a couple of pennies to spend, and had gone across the avenue to a candy store. They had been returning when the car struck them.

"TRIAL MARRIAGE" UNTRUE.

Mr. and Mrs. Glover Merely Gave an Anniversary Party.

Investigation by a TIMES reporter yesterday of the story sent from South Orange, N. J., on Friday last that Mr. and Mrs. William Muir Glover, in celebrating the tenth anniversary of their marriage, were to be married a second time by the Rev. George Mooney of the South Orange Methodist Church, as a result of an agreement made between them at the time of their marriage ten years ago, showed that the statements made in it in regard to a so-called "trial marriage" were unfounded.

The facts are that last Monday Mr. and Mrs. Glover celebrated the tenth anniversary of their wedding, and in honor of the occasion gave a family party. The Rev. George Mooney explained to THE TIMES reporter yesterday that he would not countenance such a thing as a "trial marriage," that he had known Mr. and Mrs. Glover for some years, and that they were members of his congregation.

Mr. Mooney thought the story about a "trial marriage" originated probably from a flippant remark being construed wrongly by some one who overheard it. There was no truth, Mr. Mooney said, in the report that Mr. and Mrs. Glover went through a second marriage ceremony.

Will of the Late Cyrus Clark.

The will of Cyrus Clark, filed for probate yesterday, disposes of $100,000 in real and personal property. Walter D. Clark, his son, receives $100 and one-fifth of the residue, and another son the same bequest. To his three daughters is left $2,600 each and one-fifth interest each in the residuary. Several old servants were also remembered.

Not a Hamburg-American Tug.

The report printed in yesterday's newspapers that it was a Hamburg-American Line tug which sank at her pier in Hoboken on Monday was incorrect. The tug which sank belonged to the fleet of another line. The Hamburg-American tug reported sunk met with no accident and is doing duty now in the Hamburg-American fleet.

The test supreme for the talents of the tailorman is afforded by Summer Apparel for Men

It requires no expert knowledge to understand how difficult it is to construct a garment of light weight which will retain its shapeliness to the very end of its service.

The paddings and interlinings of the heavy-weight garments are by some makers employed to cover "a multitude of sins"—and to some extent such adjuncts do serve to hold the shape of the garment, even though it may be indifferently tailored.

But the Summer Suit, to be comfortable, must be devoid of every superfluous ounce of weight—and that means expert tailoring.

Saks Summer Suits, at $15 to $43 are fashioned of the most approved hot-weather materials made abroad or at home, and are perfect examples of what trained brains and fingers can accomplish in the production of hot-weather apparel which will preserve its original shapeliness and distinction until the end.

A remarkable tribute from the Boston Transcript:

"Those who love 'The Three Musketeers,' those who devour the romances of Anthony Hope and Marion Crawford, those who want always something doing, and who want it told in crisp, vivid, tense style, at rattling good speed, must get 'The White Mice' for the week-end trip."

MESSRS. CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just published a new novel, THE WHITE MICE, by RICHARD HARDING DAVIS, of whose various books they have sold over a million copies. This New Novel, already in its third printing, is a story of love and adventure in the manner of SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE, and promises to surpass it in popularity.

OLD BOARD QUITS FIGHT ON HEINZE

New Board Will Probably Re-elect Him President, His Stock Control Being Unshaken.

HEINZE WAS ILL YESTERDAY

Nothing Serious, It Is Said—District Attorney Wise to Push Robinson Contempt Case To-day.

The old Directors of the United Copper Company, who were surreptitiously ousted by the stockholders favorable to F. Augustus Heinze at the meeting in Hoboken on Wednesday, decided at a meeting at the company's offices at 74 Broadway, yesterday, not to contest the action.

The discarded Directors were somewhat miffed when they learned yesterday morning that they had been unseated and that a new board had been elected to succeed them. There were threats of going to court about it. Some of the Directors expressed doubt of the legality of Wednesday's proceedings. They did not think, they said, that a majority of stock was represented at the meeting, and they argued, therefore, that the action of the stockholders would not stand in court.

After some hurried telephone conferences in the morning, the unseated Directors began to view the situation in a different light. They had been involved in disagreeable contempt proceedings in connection with the disappearance of the books of the copper company, and the experience of George Baglin, the Secretary and Vice President, who spent a day and a night in the Tombs for contempt in this connection, did not cheer them.

Five of the old Directors met at the company's offices shortly after 3 o'clock. William J. Curtis of the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, who was the representative of the Mercantile National Bank on the old Board of United Copper Directors, appeared first, with Alfred Jeretzki, an associate of his in the law firm. Soon after Mr. Curtis arrived there appeared Sanford Robinson, formerly counsel to the United Copper Company, who is to have a hearing before Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court to-day in the contempt proceedings resulting from his alleged connection with the removal of the much-wanted books. Robinson was accompanied by his personal attorney, Joseph Cotton. The other Directors who attended were George Baglin, Chester Glass, and Horace Abel. Soon after the Directors went into conference Stephen Brooks Rosenthal, counsel to Heinze, appeared, with the minutes of the Hoboken meeting under his arm. Rosenthal told the Directors that there was no use in their thinking of contesting the action of the stockholders. He went over the list of those who had voted to throw out the old board, and showed that they represented 276,000 shares of the total of 500,000, considerably more than a majority.

"It was the annual meeting of the stockholders, you know," said Rosenthal, "and they had a right to vote for whom they pleased. You might as well accept it. Kicking won't do any good."

This argument, backed up by the record of the votes, with their stock representation, soon convinced the old Directors. They took a vote, and, by unanimous consent, agreed to consider themselves out of the board.

While the old Directors were in session an effort was made to call a meeting of the new board. They were asked to come to the United Copper Company's offices, where a room removed from that in which the old Directors were in conference was set apart. Only three of the new Directors, Richard R. Kilroy of Butte, Mon.; Abraham V. Wyckoff of Newark, and one other responded, however, and the meeting was postponed until to-day. The new Directors, being all friendly to Heinze, will, it is regarded as certain, promptly re-elect him to the Presidency.

United States District Attorney Wise refused to commit himself yesterday on the question whether he would demand the books from the new Board of Directors. All he would say was that the Directors are subject to subpoenas.

During the day, an attorney, who said he represented certain of the minority stockholders at the Hoboken meeting, visited Mr. Wise. It was believed that he urged action of some sort by the District Attorney as an outcome of the stockholders' meeting. He refused to give his name.

Mr. Wise's activities in the United Copper-Mercantile affair will be directed particularly to-day to his effort to have Lawyer Robinson punished for contempt of court. This will come up at 1:30 P. M., and he will have to produce the books of the United Copper Company or satisfactorily explain how it was that he permitted them to be removed after, as Baglin alleges, Robinson heard a conversation in which Heinze spoke of having the books taken away. Robinson was a Director at the time of this alleged conversation. If he cannot clear himself Mr. Wise will insist that he be sent at once to the Tombs.

F. Augustus Heinze was not at his office yesterday, and it was said that he was ill at his home, but might be at his office to-day. His illness was not serious, it was said.

DEDICATE DAVIS PARK.

Birthplace of Confederate President at Fairview Made a Memorial.

FAIRVIEW, Ky., June 3.—Among the trees which have grown up about the birthplace of Jefferson Davis since the year, early in the nineteenth century, when the Davis family removed to Mississippi, the Jefferson Davis Memorial Park was dedicated to-day. Northeast across the State is Hodgenville, near which Abraham Lincoln was born eight months after his great opponent.

CITY BREVITIES.

A check for $25 was received yesterday by THE TIMES from George Eade of 245 Broadway to aid the widow and five children of Motorman John McElive, who was crushed to death at College Point, L. I., between two trolley cars on Memorial Day while saving the life of a nine-year-old girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Renard of West Twenty-third Street will sail on the Deutschland to-morrow for Europe, stopping at Paris, London, Vienna, Berlin, and the principal cities.

Edward E. Herbert and Joseph Gilbert, employes of the Longacre Athletic Association in West Twenty-ninth Street, and six prizefighters and their seconds were convicted yesterday in Special Sessions of breaking the prizefighting law. Herbert and Gilbert were fined $25 each. The others were released under suspended sentences.

Judge Adams in the Admiralty branch of the United States District Court handed down a decision yesterday dismissing the libel for $250,000 filed by the steamship United States of the Scandinavian-American Line against the steamship Monterey of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company. The counter libel filed by the Monterey for $80,000 was sustained.

TROOPS NOT FOR CUBA.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—There was considerable perturbation at the War Department to-day over the report that it was holding the troops in the Department of the Gulf in readiness for sudden shipment to Cuba in case an emergency should arise. Gen. Arthur Fridge, Adjutant General of the Mississippi National Guard, on whose authority the report was printed, said he had his information direct from a high army officer stationed at the War Department, but Secretary Dickinson denied emphatically this afternoon that the War Department is contemplating any such employment for the troops of the Department of the Gulf or for any other regulars.

According to the War Department, when Gen. Fridge asked one of the General officers there about the troops for the Mississippi Encampment the General asked his aide if there was any reason why the battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry at Fort McPherson should not be sent. The aide replied that there was none unless it were the strike situation in Georgia. When it appeared possible a few days ago that the War Department might be called upon to use troops in Georgia in protecting mail trains this battalion was among those considered for that contingency. Gen. Fridge, the War Department says, probably confused this talk about the Georgia case with other talk which he may have heard about Cuba, and that this would account for the error in what he said.

EX-QUEEN WINS IN COURT.

Judgment of $11,600 Against Liliuokalani Set Aside and Trial Ordered.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The $11,600 judgment in default awarded against ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia last April in favor of her former Court physician, Dr. Charles H. English, was to-day set aside by Justice Stafford of that court. The annulment of the judgment was on a showing that Liliuokalani had a meritorious defense and that she had been unaware of the suit.

Mrs. Lydia Dominis, as the former Queen is now known, swears that Dr. English is a resident of Cincinnati and not of this city, and that he filed suit against her in August, 1900, in the Circuit Court of Hawaii. While the suit was progressing, she says, negotiations were entered into with Dr. English and he accepted $1,300 in settlement of all claims against her.

NEW CHICAGO-BOSTON FLIER.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 3.—The New York Central will begin running a new twenty-five-hour train from Chicago to Boston on June 20. It will make two and a half hours better time than the present schedule. On the same date another train from New York to Chicago, which will be run virtually as a second section of the Lake Shore Limited, will make the distance in twenty-four hours and forty minutes.

The Boston train will be known as the Overland Mail, and will leave Chicago at 8:25 A. M., arriving in Boston at 10:30 the next morning.

The New York train will leave at 5:20 P. M. and arrive in Chicago at 5 P. M. the next day.

With the recent increase in travel between Chicago and New York the company has had to put on two dining cars for the first time on both the Twentieth Century and the Lake Shore Limited. The Limited is carrying about thirteen cars each trip, while the Twentieth Century carries eight or nine, and frequently is sent out in two sections.

RESENTS ATTACK ON FRANCE.

Prof. Poulett Disputes President Jordan at College Commencement.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—During the Bryn Mawr College commencement exercises to-day President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford University angered Prof. Poulett, instructor of French at the college. Dr. Jordan was speaking on "war and mankind." He said the best men of ancient Greece and Rome had been sent out and killed in battles, while the weaker men stayed home and became fathers of the race, and made the same remark apply to France during the war with the Germans, adding:

"Spain, Italy, and France show the effect of their blood-stained battlefields. France by her own confession is a weak and decadent nation."

At this point Prof. Poulett jumped to his feet, exclaiming, "That is not true!" He then stalked out of the room and did not return.

JOHN DICKINSON IN PARIS.

Missing Broker Seen in French Capital by Chicago Grain Man.

CHICAGO, June 3.—A notice of "suspension for debt" of John Dickinson, the stock and grain broker, of New York and Chicago, was posted on the Board of Trade here to-day. The failure of the firm of John Dickinson & Co. occurred several weeks ago, and was followed by the disappearance of Mr. Dickinson.

A private letter just received here states that the writer, Edward Higgins, formerly a prominent grain man, met Mr. Dickinson in Paris some days ago. Mr. Higgins added that Mr. Dickinson was living at a hotel and seemed broken in health. He ignored Mr. Higgins's salutation.

New Plant for Sulzbacher Firm.

The Swarzschild & Sulzbacher Company have under consideration the building of a new packing plant at some point in the Southwest, either Texas or Oklahoma, at a point convenient to the cattle distributing centres and the Gulf ports, for export trade. The exact location proposed for the plant has not been made public, but it is said that several cities in Texas and Oklahoma have offered inducements to get the plant, some localities offering both cash bonuses and land. The Swift and Armour interests have plants in Fort Worth.

RUSSIAN STUDENTS HELD ON SHIP HERE

LIKELY TO BE DEPORTED

Representations Made That the Quartet Are Wanted in Russia for Political Offenses.

Ivan Maslennikoff, Constantin Grueff, Ivan Worinkin, and Fedor Kassinmiroff, four Russian graduates of the University of Moscow, are being held as stowaways on the liner Russia, belonging to the Russian volunteer fleet which arrived in port on Sunday.

Two lawyers called at the Broadway office of the line yesterday and offered to pay the fares of the four men on condition that the money should be refunded if they were deported to Russia. The agent declined to accept the fares under such conditions. He said that if the lawyers paid the steerage fares unconditionally he might accept the money and land the men at Ellis Island to be dealt with according to the immigration laws.

It has been alleged that the four young Russians are wanted for political offenses in their own country and that one of them was implicated in a plot against the Government. The Embassy at Washington, it was understood, was in communication with Ellis Island regarding the detention of the four Russians in case they were landed from the steamship.

The agent, when asked about the political side of the affair, said that he had nothing to say except that the men were stowaways and had no money. Under the law they could be deported to Russia as stowaways, he said, and that was probably what would happen.

Simon O. Pollock, a lawyer of 320 Broadway, who represents the Political Refugees Society, and helped to defend Jan Pouren, called up the Commissioner's office yesterday afternoon and will have a hearing this morning at Ellis Island. He said yesterday that there might have been some trifling political trouble in the past lives of the four refugees, but that it was nothing serious.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—So far as the Russian Embassy here is concerned the arrival of the four Russian stowaways on the steamship Russia is of no interest. This statement was made to-night by Prince Nicholas Koudacheff, Chamberlain to the Czar and First Secretary of the embassy.

According to Prince Koudacheff, the embassy has received no instructions from St. Petersburg concerning the four students, nor has it taken any action to exclude them. When asked about the reported attempt of one of the four on the life of the Czar, the Prince laughed.

"It is a mare's nest," he said. "The chances are that the men are being held as stowaways."

The fact that the Russians in New York were subscribing to a fund to prevent the deportation of the four men did not seem to interest the secretary.

The State Department has heard nothing of the matter, and no appeal has been made to it so far.

BARS SHARPERS FROM SHIPS.

Collector Loeb's Order Meant to Save Sailors from Crimps.

Collector Loeb issued an order yesterday which he believes will prevent seamen on vessels arriving from being victimized by sharpers. When vessels arrive and anchor in the bay they are at once visited by solicitors for sailors' boarding houses. This is now forbidden. In making public the new order the Collector says:

"For some years solicitors for low-class sailors' boarding houses and dives of various descriptions have been in the habit of boarding ships as soon as they anchored, and have endeavored to entice sailors ashore and fleece them out of their hard-earned wages.

"By the Collector's orders, no solicitors or peddlers of any kind will be allowed on ships within twenty-four hours of their anchoring, except the representatives of the Seamen's Church Institute. This means that sailors will have an opportunity to be taken ashore and obtain a safe and reasonable place to board without being the victims of sharpers."

LIZZIE M'DAID MUST GO BACK.

Sorry, Says the Little Girl, but She's Going to School Again to Learn.

Lizzie McDaid, the 11-year-old Irish girl who has been held on Ellis Island since May 18, is to be deported to-morrow, on the ground that she is feeble minded and therefore cannot land in the United States.

The deportation order was originally made out to take effect last Saturday, but the interest taken in Lizzie McDaid by some visitors to Ellis Island caused a petition to be sent to the Department of Commerce and Labor in Washington, and she was held for another week pending a second examination by the Medical Board. The second examination, however, only confirmed the first, so Lizzie McDaid will be taken aboard the Anchor liner California this afternoon and will sail to-morrow for Moville. Winifred McDaid, her aunt, who brought her here, will sail back with her.

"I am sorry I can't land in America, because my aunt in Philadelphia will worry so much about it," said Lizzie McDaid yesterday, "and she was so good, saving up the $100 to pay Aunt Winnie's fare and mine from Ireland to New York. Every one here has been kind to me, and I feel sure that they have done all they could to help me, but if the law says that I mustn't stop here, I suppose I must go.

"Please thank the kind friends in the city," the child added earnestly, "for all their goodness to me. I know they have done all they could, and I shall not see them again to thank them myself. When I get back to Ireland I shall go to school again and learn all I can, so that in two or three years, when I grow to be a big girl like auntie, I can come to America again and not be sent away."

"We shall go back to the farm near Donegal, where my mother lives," said Winifred McDaid, "and perhaps we may come again in time to come."

She spoke hopefully, but there was a quaver in her voice. It has taken her sister in Philadelphia a long time to save the $100 paid for the passage of the two.

Inspectors, matrons, and all classes of employes on Ellis Island have taken an interest in the McDaid case, and there were general expressions of sympathy yesterday for the couple.

SWINDLERS ON ELLIS ISLAND.

Greek Immigrants the Victims—Commissioner Warns Steamship Companies

Immigration Commissioner Williams telephoned to the offices of the various Atlantic steamship companies yesterday requesting them to exercise greater care in giving out orders to persons to meet relatives on Ellis Island. This action was caused by the number of crooks and confidence men who get on the island under the pretense of meeting relatives and use the opportunity to fleece ignorant immigrants.

The worst offenders, it was said, are Greeks, as there is no Greek society at present to protect or warn arriving aliens from Geece. Eight Greeks were sent away from Ellis Island on Wednesday for attempting to wheedle money out of their countrymen, and two were caught there yesterday. One had eight passes to the island from steamship companies in his pocket.

Chevalier Antoine Frabasilis, the Greek interpreter at the Immigration Bureau, said yesterday that dishonest Greeks came there and posed to their ignorant countrymen as officers of the United States Government. They obtained money, which they said was to obtain employment for the immigrants.

RUSH FOR SMUGGLED FINERY.

Women Flock to Custom House—Big Lot to be Auctioned Off.

The elevators in the Custom House were overworked yesterday to accommodate the hundreds of women who visited the civil service room on the fifth floor, where were exhibited hundreds of articles of women' apparel which are to be auctioned off to-day by Marshal William Henkel in continuation of the sale of smuggled goods seized in several trunks which were landed from the American liner New York.

On two long tables were shown an array of dresses, shirtwaists, cloaks, and furbelows to gladden any woman's heart. All day long a stream of women, and some men, passed by the tables admiring and examining the dainty articles of linen, silk, and satin, and departed vowing to be present at the sale.

The goods to be offered to-day are of higher class, it is said, than those offered on Wednesday. Some of the gems are two pongee coats, blue and tan embroidered; Princess gowns of black silk, magnificently embroidered; a beautiful gray chiffon gown, a robe of turquois and crystal beads on tulle, a sable skin and six tails, a two-piece suit of blue serge, gold trimmed; two costly Princess gowns of white organdie, with lace insertion and embroidery; lingerie and waists of all descriptions, besides yards and yards of lace and dress trimmings.

The sale to-day includes 175 articles in all.

SUICIDE THEORY WEAKENED

Position of Wound Indicates Right Hand Was Not Used, and His Left Hand Was Crippled.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Evidence supporting the theory that Dr. John T. Binkley, Sr., of Evansville, Ind., met his death at the Wellington Hotel here yesterday at the hands of a robber was adduced at the Coroner's inquest to-day. The evidence weakened the theory of suicide.

The testimony showed that Dr. Binkley was 82 years old. Save for a left hand crippled by rheumatism his health was good. With other members of his family he came to Chicago yesterday, and remained in his room while the others went on a shopping tour. When his daughter, Mrs. George Upchurch, returned, about 5 P. M., with her daughter, Elinor, they found the shades drawn and the old physician apparently asleep in an easy chair. The flood of light let in by raising the curtains disclosed his blood-stained face. He sat with his right hand nearest to the bed, which was about a foot away.

The pistol lay on the bed, with one chamber empty. The bullet, however, had entered his left cheek and lodged in his brain, inflicting a wound from which, it is said, death must have been instantaneous. His coat and waistcoat were found open, and the wallet which he habitually carried in an inside waistcoat pocket was missing, as was his watch. A small sum—$2.41—was found on the dresser in the room. His valise, in which he carried a few medicines and toilet articles, and which had been on his knees when his daughter left him to go shopping, was found in a public toilet room twenty yards from the room, and of the existence of which the decedent is said to have been in ignorance, his own room being provided with similar facilities. The door of the room was not locked.

Dr. John T. Binkley, Jr., a son of the Evansville doctor and founder of the Chicago Hospital, testified that death had taken place half an hour or forty minutes before the return of Mrs. Upchurch and her daughter.

The Coroner's physician, Dr. Joseph Springer, testified that, contrary to current reports, he had found no powder marks surrounding the wound.

"From the crippled condition of his left hand I should say he had not fired from that hand, and the position of the wound would indicate that the right hand was not used," said Dr. Springer.

BILLARD BILL IS PASSED.

Connecticut House Puts Restrictions on the Issue of Securities.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 3.—The bill incorporating the John L. Billard Company, a holding concern for the Boston & Maine stock of Mr. Billard, passed the House this afternoon.

The measure places no limitation on the amount of the capital stock, but an amendment provides that "increases of the capital stock shall be only in the way and to the same extent as provided by the general corporation law passed in 1903." It contains also the amendment of Representative Bishop, which limits the amount of bonds to 75 per cent. of the market value of the stock, and another amendment providing that a copy of the annual statement of the company shall be filed with the Secretary of State for the information of the public.

NO NEW EDDY CHURCH

But First Christian Science Church Is After Ninety-seventh Street Corner.

Concerning a report that the First Church of Christ, Scientist, had bought the property at the southwest corner of Central Park West and Ninety-seventh Street, adjoining the church edifice at Ninety-sixth Street, Virgil O. Strickler, First Reader of the congregation, said last evening:

"It is not true that the church has bought the Ninety-seventh Street corner. Some steps have been taken looking to the acquisition of the property, and a meeting is to be held next Monday night at the church to consider the matter.

"Even in the event of our buying the adjoining plot, there is no intention of erecting a new church thereon or of enlarging the present edifice. The purchase will be made, if at all, solely for the purpose of controlling the situation and of preventing the erection of any structure on the Ninety-seventh Street corner that might be detrimental to the church."

Cruiser New York on a Trial Trip.

The armored cruiser New York, which has just been commissioned after being rebuilt at the Boston Navy Yard, left New York yesterday for a trial trip, with the Board of Inspection and Survey on board. She will return to-day preparatory to getting ready to sail for the Mediterranean, there to become the flagship of the new armored cruiser division of the Atlantic fleet.

Visiting Fire Chiefs

—You cannot afford to overlook these Fire Hose Facts

Eureka Fire Hose, bought fourteen years ago by the City of New York, can be seen today in regular use by some of the hardest worked engine companies in the city—in the inflammable paint and dry goods districts.

Eureka Hose has been successfully used for many years in the cold Northwestern cities and towns of the United States and Canada, and even in Alaska, without complaint of freezing or undue water absorption.

This proves its adaptability for cold, as well as warm climates.

Eureka Four-Ply High-Pressure Fire Hose

Made of four plies, all woven simultaneously and bound together in a solid homogeneous fabric, Eureka Hose plies are yet so distinct that one or two of them can be entirely worn away or removed without injury to those remaining—leaving an absolutely complete and serviceable two-ply, rubber lined hose.

No hose whose chief recommendation is low price can meet this test. Do you know of any other hose that has such qualities?

We will make this conclusive test for you any day, at our factory in Jersey City, under the supervision of any expert, whether he be Fire Chief or hose manufacturer.

Couple one section of Eureka Hose with sections of every other kind in use. Then administer water pressure until the bursting point is reached. Eureka Hose will survive them all and can safely be put back into service after the contest.

Eureka Fire Hose

Eureka Hose is effectively safeguarded against rot or mildew. The antiseptic process it undergoes is the result of 30 years of study and experiment, and with ordinary Fire Department care, this process insures constant pliability—whether the hose is wet or dry.

Any official specification that does not require a four-ply, circular and solidly woven fabric, with a modern-idea rubber lining, will not secure for you the best hose.

It is false economy to look for quantity rather than quality—and dangerous, also, where fire hose is concerned.

Almost every severe conflagration brings forth new Eureka Hose testimonials in the shape of emergency orders. No greater tribute can be paid to any sort of fire equipment.

On April 13th, an order for 5,000 feet of Eureka Hose was telephoned for from Rochester—when part of that city was ablaze. Within twelve hours this hose was delivered and in service.

A week earlier, under like conditions, a similar order came from Fort Worth, Texas, and was filled with equal promptitude and to the great satisfaction of the citizens and authorities of that community.

There are various reasons why Eureka Hose is not universally used. The only sane one is unfamiliarity with its virtues.

That is why we want you to call at our office. We want to show you why "Eureka" is the best hose made.

Don't wait until you are in the market for hose. Come in at any time—you will be cordially welcomed.

IDLE FRENCH MONEY TO COME TO AMERICA

Listing of Steel and Other Stocks on Bourse Expected to Bring It Out.

PARIS BROKERS ARE GLAD

Rubber Will Be First Stock on Bourse and Steel Must Wait on Technicalities Till Fall.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 3.—The Bourse will be trading in United States Steel Corporation stock within a few months. It only remains to complete various technicalities and steel will then have a new market. It will not be the first American stock to be offered on the Paris Bourse, as formalities will be concluded first in behalf of United States rubber, having been undertaken several months ago, and probably in behalf of Utah Copper.

The difficulty heretofore in the marketing of American stocks in Paris was due to the fact that the stock certificates were made out in the names of individuals. The French want the certificates made out to bearer, as the transactions are often in small amounts and single shares are frequently bought and sold.

Through the arrangement made by the Morgan syndicate, including the Crédit Lyonnais, the Société Générale, and Comptoir d'Escompte, the Bank of France purchased a large block of the stock, which it deposited with the Bankers' Trust Company of New York. The latter will issue certificates against this for any number of shares made out to bearer. These may be traded in here.

The importance of this enterprise on the part of Mr. Morgan and his associates cannot be overestimated. Its success will open the French field for many other American stocks, and at the same time will put new life into the Paris market, which is sadly in need of active securities. Thus far only a few American railroad bonds have been listed, such as those of the Pennsylvania and the New Haven, and in them there has been little trading. The news of the expected listing of steel shares has been received with general rejoicing among the Paris brokers, who have been almost starving to death for want of commissions.

The Syndic, or President, of the Bourse, who has done much to secure Government approval of the plan, assured me that the steel shares would be eagerly absorbed.

May Bring Out Hoards.

Prince Poniatowski, the President of the French finance corporation, said:

"I look for a new era in the Paris stock market. Millions are now lying idle in France. The talk of numberless old stockings doing duty as banks is not legend, but fact. In recent years investors have been better informed about American corporations and railroads, and the manner in which they weathered the panic was a great object lesson here.

"French stocks are lifeless. If they move 10 francs up or down it makes a sensation. Our railroads and good industrials pay less than 5 per cent., with little chance of enhancement of value or dividends. Steel is the best possible American stock to introduce. Its history is known, and the names of Mr. Morgan and his associates are familiar. You may be sure that no stock will be listed that is not thoroughly investigated."

The statement is made here that the syndicate formed to sell the steel common shares obtained them at $63.50 each.

Formalities to be Observed.

It was learned yesterday that the red tape incidental to the listing of the "bearers certificates," representing the 100,000 shares of United States Steel common stock which are to be traded in in Paris, will postpone the actual market for these securities in the French capital until the Fall. The Bankers' Trust Company, which is the depository of the shares, against which the certificates are issued, is also the custodian of 50,000 shares of the preferred stock of the United States Rubber Company of a par value of $5,000,000, of which bearer certificates are to be traded in on the Bourse to-morrow or the next day for the first time. This company was the first industrial to use the plan now adopted by the United States Steel Corporation, and made its application last November.

Maurice Leon of 60 Wall Street, counsel for the French banking house of Dupont & Furlaud, which is the agent for the bearer of certificates of the Bankers' Trust Company, explained some of the details of the listing plan yesterday. He said that as a necessary preliminary a full history of the company with certified copies of the certificate of incorporation, lists of assets and properties, and other data must be filed with the Ministry of Finance for investigation and published in the Bulletin supplement of the official journal of the French Republic, which corresponds to our Congressional Record, where the facts may be easily accessible to all French citizens.

In addition similar information must be submitted to the Bourse authorities and arrangements made with the brokers on the Bourse. Finally, responsible financial agents satisfactory to the Government and Bourse officials must be appointed and guarantees must be given for the payment of the annual stamp tax of 6 centimes per 100 francs of capital represented in the certificates, or about 6 cents on every $100 share. Other taxes are paid by the owners of the certificates. These include a transfer tax of 20 centimes per 100 francs, or about 20 cents per share, and an income tax of 4 per cent. on the dividend paid.

The United States Rubber shares are represented by certificates made out in denominations of one share each, indorsed by the depositary of the original stock, the Bankers' Trust Company, and each certificate bears a number corresponding to the number of the stock certificate. The dividends are represented by coupons, each payable by the Paris financial agent, who in turn collects from the company through the Bankers Trust Company. Mr. Leon explained that the French investor does not want to register his ownership of stock, and for this reason bearer certificates are issued, which are transferable without red tape.

In addition to the United States Rubber shares the Bankers' Trust Company is also depository for shares of the Utah Copper Company, which are also in process of listing on the Bourse.

FRANCE IS GROWING NOW.

Statistics for 1908 Show 46,000 More Births Than Deaths.

PARIS, June 3.—The vital statistics of France, which in 1907 showed an excess of 19,892 deaths over births, and led to the most pessimistic predictions for the future of the French race, have now been published for 1908. These show an excess of 46,441 births over the deaths for that year.

AMERICAN LODGE IN LONDON.

Taft Congratulates Freemasons on Its Establishment.

LONDON, June 3.—The American Lodge of Freemasons, for American citizens in London, under the Grand Lodge of England, was consecrated in Grand Lodge to-day by Lord Ampthill, Provincial Grand Master. Sixty grand officers were present, as well as the Deputy Grand Master of Pennsylvania, F. C. Vanduser.

Robert Newton Crane was chosen the first Grand Master, and James MacDonald Senior Warden. The membership includes twenty-three other Americans. President Taft sent the following cablegram to Lord Ampthill:

"I congratulate you, your brethren, and the American lodge on the day of its consecration, and felicitate the lodge on its peculiar creation as additional evidence of British good feeling toward the United States, and as an additional bond betweeen English and American Masons and nations."

A cordial message was sent by cable to President Taft in response to his greeting.

GRISCOM TO START HOME SOON

Will Present His Letters of Recall in a Few Days.

ROME, June 3.—Ambassador Griscom, who is retiring from the Diplomatic Service, will present his letters of recall to King Victor Emmanuel in a few days, and intends to sail next week for New York accompanied by the members of his family.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—About June 10 is the time Ambassador Griscom is expected to present his letters of recall to the Italian Government, according to a State Department announcement to-day. Between that time and the end of the month John G. A. Leishman, now Ambassador to Turkey, who is to succeed Mr. Griscom, will present his letters at the Italian Court.

Oscar S. Straus, the new Ambassador to Constantinople, is expected to assume his duties early in August.

CONGO LIBEL SUITS DEFERRED

Belgium Had Once Refused to Delay Action Against Americans.

BRUSSELS, June 3.—A dispatch from Leopoldville, in the Congo, says the trial of the suits against two American missionaries, the Rev. William Morrison, and the Rev. W. H. Sheppard, on charges of libel, originally set for May 25, has been postponed to July 30.

This action was brought by one of the Congo concession companies that has a monopoly of rubber gathering in the Kasai region. It claims $20,000 damages from each of the men for "caluminous denunciation." The circumstances are such that the suit is considered practically one by the Belgian Government against the missionaries.

The Washington Government last month requested the Belgian Government that the hearing of this case be postponed, but Belgium replied that because of insurmountable legal obstacles this was impossible.

CZAR TO VISIT KING EDWARD.

Monarchs Will Meet at Cowes in August—Italian Trip Unlikely.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 3.—Emperor Nicholas will visit King Edward at Cowes on Aug. 2. The Russian imperial squadron will go first to Cherbourg, arriving July 31 and staying until the next day. It will then cross over to Cowes and, according to the present arrangement, return from Cowes to Russia in time for the manoeuvres of the imperial guard, which begin on Aug. 12.

This visit will return the call made by King Edward on Emperor Nicholas at Reval a year ago this month.

The proposed visit of Emperor Nicholas to the King of Italy apparently has been abandoned.

FUNDS NEEDED IN ASIA MINOR.

Dr. Christie Tells of Conditions and Makes Appeal for Aid.

Dr. Thomas D. Christie, President of St. Paul's Institute at Tarsus, Asia Minor, has sent to this country an urgent appeal for funds for the relief of distress following the massacres at Adana. After describing the carnage in that town, he says in his letter:

> We in the smitten city, mourning over our dead, and working day and night to save life and property, were wholly cut off for three days from communication with our dear ones in Tarsus. On Saturday morning two of us reached them by a special train, guarded by soldiers. We found Mr. Imer, Mrs. Christie, and all the other ladies safe; and 4,000 poor refugees in our buildings and grounds.
>
> Our great need is of money with which to feed and clothe these thousands suddenly thrown upon us.

Funds may be sent to Dr. Christie in care of the American Board, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

AMERICAN HORSES IN PRIVATE SHOW

Lord Lonsdale Predicts Surprise for Visitors After Seeing Moore's Entries.

EXAGGERATED HIGHSTEPPING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 3.—American horses which will be exhibited at the International Horse Show at the Olympia, beginning on Saturday, were exhibited today. The display made by the American exhibitors will be sensational features in numbers, equipment, and luxurious installation. In these respects the Americans will excel all others. The question of quality, however, cannot be determined until the horses meet in competition and pass in review before the judges.

Lord Lonsdale, one of the leading authorities on show horses in England, to-day watched the private show of Judge William H. Moore's string in front of the Riding School at West Brompton. After the exhibition the eminent horseman expressed the opinion that the British horses would greatly surprise the Americans. His lordship, however, was careful to add, "To be sure the best British horses have never been put on show."

Lord Lonsdale proceeded to criticise very freely the action of the New Yorker's crack teams, particularly that of the forelegs, remarking that the high stepping was exaggerated, whether from a mistaken notion of training and too great use of toe weights or whether from faulty breeding he was not prepared to stay.

After inspecting the horses, Lord Lonsdale sat on the box with Judge Moore while the latter drove his best team up and down Holyrood Road, which thoroughfare the police rigidly reserved for the occasion. He looked as though he politely simulated the highest degree of enthusiasm. The exhibition was unquestionably a remarkable one and enhanced by the presence of several of E. T. Stotesbury's beautiful trotters, one span of which the Philadelphia banker drove himself. Judge Moore during the exhibition showed the pick of forty-eight horses he has entered in the harness classes.

A few horses of Alfred G. Vanderbilt's string were also driven, and some jumping was done by Canadian horses in the arena of the Riding School.

Rarely has a more magnificent collection of horses been seen on such an occasion. Mr. Stotesbury's trotters awakened special admiration, though the majority of the English spectators admitted that they were not at all qualified to judge their finer characteristics.

Walter Winans will be Mr. Stotesbury's most formidable competitor in the roadster classes. Mr. Winans was present during the exhibition, but had no horses on view, being satisfied to await the effect they will produce upon the spectators when they are put through their paces at the Olympia.

At a luncheon given prior to the exhibition Judge Moore, in a speech, hopefully suggested that Lord Lonsdale and other British horsemen respond to the initiative taken by the American owners in sending entries to the London International Show by sending over large exhibits of horses to New York to compete in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden next November.

To this suggestion Lord Lonsdale made no direct reply, but in a later conversation said to THE TIMES's correspondent that he thought the expense of such an undertaking would be so great as to preclude it, and he did not think sufficiently good results would be commensurate with the outlay.

George M. Webb, the manager of E. T. Stotesbury's stable, and who was to handle the Philadelphian's trotters at the horse show, is prostrated at Kensington Palace Hotel with heart failure, and his condition is regarded as serious. Mr. Stotesbury is very much upset over his manager's illness.

Only a few Americans witnessed the private view of American horses today. Among them were Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Fairburn, and Miss Natalie Fairburn. Alfred G. Vanderbilt was unable to be present owing to other engagements.

ROOSEVELT STARTS FOR AFRICAN JUNGLE

Goes to Visit Mission at Kijabe and Will Enter Wild Sotik District To-morrow

NEAR LAKE VICTORIA NYANZA

Natives Said to be Warlike but Amiable—People and Country Little Known to White Men.

KIJABE, June 3.—The Roosevelt special arrived here at this station at 5:10 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Roosevelt was delighted with the beauty of the scenery, especially the Rift Valley, on the way up from Nairobi.

All the porters of the expedition, who had preceded Mr. Roosevelt to this point, were lined up on the station platform and cheered him when the train pulled in. The American missionaries also were at the station to greet Mr. Roosevelt, and they invited him to dinner. It was decided, however, not to accept this invitation for to-night.

The members of the party will visit the mission to-morrow and have lunch there. The travelers will spend to-night under canvas in a camp that has been established near the railroad station.

The expedition will start for the wild jungle country of the Sotik district tomorrow or Saturday.

The special train carrying the Roosevelt party left Nairobi this afternoon and arrived at the Kikuyu escarpment about 4:30 o'clock.

Col. Roosevelt and Major Mearns rode on the cowcatcher of the locomotive from Kikuyu to this point, a distance of twenty-two miles.

On the way a hyena that got on the rails was almost run down.

Kijabe is forty-four miles from Nairobi in a northwesterly direction. The country between Nairobi and Kijabe is for the most part thickly wooded and high. The greatest elevation of the Kikuyu escarpment is 7,830 feet.

From this point there is a magnificent view. The traveler looks down some 2,000 feet into the Great Rift Valley—a rift which can be traced from the Zambesi to Palestine, though it reaches its finest development at about this point.

Elephants are plentiful in these forests, but they are fairly safe from the hunter, as the thickness of the growth renders their pursuit very difficult.

On their expedition into the Sotik district the members of the Roosevelt party will have their first experience of the African jungle. Some sections are very little known to the white man. The district is in the southern part of Kisunu Province, and consists, broadly speaking, of a series of meadows with numerous streams and strips of forests. The district is about seventy-five miles east of Lake Victoria Nyanza.

The Kisii people inhabit this territory, but they are little known to Europeans. They are said to be brave and warlike, amiable, intelligent, and good cultivators of the soil.

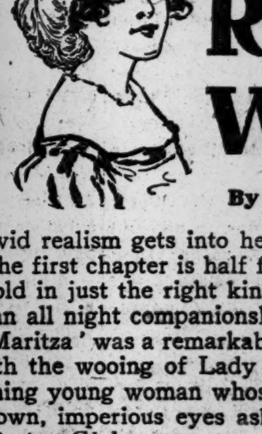
A Captivating Story of Love and Adventure By the Author of "The Princess Maritza"

A Royal Ward



A Royal Ward

By Percy Brebner

By Percy Brebner

"The atmosphere of vivid realism gets into heart to heart touch with the reader before the first chapter is half finished. It is just the kind of story and told in just the right kind of way to make the reader arrange for an all night companionship with the book. The author's 'Princess Maritza' was a remarkable piece of fiction. His new book deals with the wooing of Lady Betty Walmisley, the royal ward, a charming young woman whose personality was engaging and whose brown, imperious eyes asked questions and demanded answers."—Boston Globe.

THE CITY'S FERRY DILEMMA.

The situation regarding the ferries seems to be very much that known technically as "playing both ends against the middle." On the one hand the city's ferries are running about a million a year to the bad, Richmond alone absorbing in its ferry deficit all the taxes it yields to the common purse, and on the other hand the ferries which the city does not yet own are reducing their payments. The Long Island Ferry, for example, having lost $125,000 of traffic, and anticipating a total loss of $250,000 very soon, does not feel in position to pay much of anything for its dock privileges.

While affairs are in this discouraging condition comes Commissioner SPOONER with a requisition for two new boats, one to cost about a half million, and another to cost about a quarter million. How can these boats ever earn either their cost or their keep? It would be bad enough if the city ferries were run as economically as the private ferry enterprises, but they are run regardless of expense, with numerous hands, short hours, and costlier landings than private enterprise was able to provide even when the ferries were profit makers instead of tax earners. Even this does not state the entire case. The enormous gains in tax valuations due to the opening of the many transit enterprises are accompanied by serious if smaller losses in the localities whence the new communications drain population. If the city abandons its ferries entire neighborhoods will fall into decadence. If the city sustains its ferries upon its present scale of expenditure and deficit the taxes thus saved will be dearly earned. It is a dilemma from which there seems no escape.

CUBA.

The American people are unaware of any recent development in the financial and political situation in Cuba which calls for a third intervention of this country in the little Republic's Governmental affairs. The Cuban Minister at Washington denies reports of the bad state of his Government's finances. The statement that the War Department is holding in reserve certain troops for quick transference to Cuba in case intervention is necessary lacks confirmation. We may safely assume, in view of the absence of definite information on the subject, that intervention of the United States in Cuba is not imminent.

This big Republic and the little one of the Antilles are not enemies. There is never any danger of a precipitate onslaught of American troops on Cuba. If our soldiers ever go there again it will be because their going is for the best interests of both countries. The healthful condition of Cuba, financially and politically, is important to us. Internal disorder and pecuniary complications in which European States might become involved must not be permitted to develop there. But there are no visible signs of their development. The Cubans seem to be getting along with their new Government quite as well as could be expected.

DR. PETERS AND THE BREWERS.

The Rev. Dr. JOHN P. PETERS spoke well and wisely in his "plain talk" to the brewers in convention at Atlantic City. We do not infer that he accepts the prevailing idea in the brewing trade that "the prohibition wave has reached its height and reaction already begun to set in." But Dr. PETERS, who is as much in earnest as the most steadfast prohibitionist, in his desire to suppress drunkenness, believes in liquor laws which can be enforced and an effective regulation of the traffic in all alcoholic beverages. To the brewers he said bluntly that violations of the liquor laws discredited the liquor trade, and he urged them to help, rather than hinder, the proper revision of the laws.

The need of reforming the liquor saloons was one of the subjects discussed by the convention. The opposition of the liquor trade to rational liquor legislation is generally believed to be strong and determined. The reputable brewers and distillers could find no better way to lessen the odium which attaches to their business than frankly to support laws which would tend to make the retail liquor business decent, by abolishing "speak easies" and surreptitious sales, and the highly profitable trade in bad liquor.

"WHAT HATH GOD WROUGHT?"

The exceptionally interesting annual report of the Chamber of Commerce opens with an epitome of the growth of the United States in the years between 1858 and 1908. Starting with an allusion to the Chamber's record of the opening of the Atlantic cable in the earlier year, it puts together the marvelous figures which record the material growth of the Nation, whose future promises to be as much without a peer as its youth, and suggests the words of MORSE at the opening of the telegraph, as appropriate as regarding the cable, both American inventions. The later year, like the earlier, witnesses another American conquest of an element, the WRIGHT brothers' achievement having perhaps possibilities as unforeseen as those of the telegraph and the cable in their infancy. Cheap postage, which was an aspiration only in 1858, was accomplished in 1908. In the earlier and later years alike Canadian reciprocity was a live topic, and perhaps remoter now than then, to judge by the present-day truculence of some of our northern cousins. They are obstructing any advance toward reciprocity now as strenuously as the Chamber then was opposing any step backward in the commercial relations of such close neighbors.

Possibly most interest attaches to the figures relating solely to the United States. The only decrease in the entire list is for the commerce carried abroad in American ships, a falling off of 39 per cent. The greatest increase is in bank deposits, which have grown not less than 3,459 per cent. It might almost be said that this includes all the rest, for there can be no business growth which does not find expression through the banks. If the growth is disproportionately larger in this respect than in others, it is due, no doubt, to the fact that commercial exchanges duplicate themselves repeatedly. The next greatest increase is in the public debt, which has grown 2,375 per cent., while population has grown but 193 per cent. There is something too familiar about this growth of burdens faster than the backs which bear them, but how much more able burden carriers are the present-day backs appears from further comparisons. Wealth has increased 562 per cent., value of manufacturing products 684 per cent., railway mileage 747 per cent. The growth of these later elements of National strength acquires significance from the fact that they are a possession, whereas in 1858 they were all to be produced from the scant capital or borrowings of a people yet in their gristle, and still far from full growth. Most interesting figures are given also regarding the city's growth, but they cannot be reproduced here.

Pride goeth before a fall, and it is well that these marvels should be dwelt upon with moderation and restraint of spirit. "Lest we forget," it should be borne in mind that human affairs include strange mutations. Only a few years ago Lord SALISBURY was drawing a pregnant contrast between living and dying nations, with scant concealment of which class included proud Britain. To-day the country of our kinsmen is being referred to in their own prints as an old lady who has seen better days, and is now selling off, having experienced such reverses that she is now living on capital. Exuberant as our growth and strength must seem in comparison with such experiences, we have within ourselves the seed of weakness as well. Class distinctions, once almost unknown, are more obtrusive daily. There is jealousy of property, although without property it is difficult to conceive how we can exist, not to say grow. Our institutions seem less sacred than they were, and religious as well as political creeds seem very much in the melting pot. Is it not well to ask whether the too eager reformers among us can hope to surpass the achievements along old lines? And if any are in doubt about it, ought they not for their own sakes to throw their influence in favor of the influences which have strengthened us while others were failing?

MORALITY AND THEATRICALS.

The outburst of moral indignation in regard to theatricals is already exciting ridicule. The immoral influence of art and literature is a pretty large question. "Measure for Measure," "Monna Vanna," and "La Dame aux Camélias" are not "plays for Puritans," to use Mr. SHAW's classification, and that one of the three which has been most popular on the stage is open to the charge of falsifying human nature for sentimental effect. Some of the most famous pictures and books have been condemned by the professional and official moralists. On the other hand, plays condemned as grossly immoral are often only vulgar and coarse, and sometimes not more so than other current pieces which escape condemnation. As the wave of angry remonstrance subsides, the humorous side of the subject impresses itself on the public mind.

Cheap sentimentality, false views of life are probably as harmful to the young playgoer as frank representations of the evils which beset society. The experience of the British censorship shows that it is difficult, if not impossible, effectively to regulate the stage by law or official procedure. The public taste and judgment must be the last court. The public can suppress bad plays by avoiding them. But if we are going to suppress plays for immorality let us set up a standard of morality and abide by it. If free love is to be banished from the theatre let us make no invidious exceptions. If the histrionic depiction of the moral and sentimental effects of marital infidelity is bad in one play, let us be fair enough to admit that it is bad in all. How preposterous, in retrospect, seems the suppression of CLYDE FITCH's version of "Sapho" and STRAUSS's "Salome."

DR. HADLEY'S THUNDER.

Right here Dr. HADLEY makes a suggestion that should be considered by the heads of other universities than Yale. Athletics, he says, are popular because they supply common rivalries for men of different types of character. In the intellectual field rivalry may be introduced and sustained by the formation of four or five leading "honor courses," in which the studies are grouped to fit the needs of the "comparatively small number of types of mind" that make up the collegiate body. With competitions established and recognized in these courses, the best men may be expected to show what is in them.

This is the group system again, but without its compulsory features. To the objection that it would make difficult the study of the particular things a boy might need in after life, Dr. HADLEY replies boldly that the ideal college education is "one where a student learns things that he is not going to use in after life, but by methods that he is going to use." The definition includes both breadth and training. It would be difficult to formulate a better one.—THE TIMES, Feb. 24, 1909, upon President HADLEY's speech Washington's Birthday at Johns Hopkins.

What Dr. HADLEY said with Spartan pith and pregnancy at Johns Hopkins, President A. LAWRENCE LOWELL of Harvard has preached this week at Columbia, and in The Atlantic Monthly for June, with Attic breadth and brilliancy. As the Jupiter of Harvard Dr. LOWELL has an inherent right to wield Dr. HADLEY's educational thunderbolt. Yale owes to Harvard's example, as do the other American universities, the development of elective courses that has transformed them all. She now repays her venerable sister in kind. It was President ELIOT's mission to individualize the efforts of the American student body; it will be President LOWELL's and President HADLEY's task to lead in restoring to that body, under the more complex conditions resulting, its former definiteness of purpose and impulses of rivalry and attainment.

OREGON'S APPLES.

Mr. GEORGE T. POWELL, a horticulturist of this State, declared this week in a letter to THE TIMES that, in his Oregon competition, the New York farmer "is 'up against' the brightest men in our country"—Eastern business men who have gone there for their health and have put their restored energies into the business of growing apples. In The Progress Magazine for June Mr. OLIN D. WHEELER says that, owing to the methods of these Northwestern farmers, more money has been made in growing apples in the past decade than in any like period since the settlement of New England. Trainloads and shiploads of the sun-colored fruit move steadily across the continent and the Atlantic Ocean to England and other ports of Europe. Even Asia has taken some of them, and Australia gets thousands of boxes of the very best, and calls for more. Conditions of culture like those of Oregon obtain now, also, in the States of Washington, Idaho, and Montana, where small farms are made to yield thousands of dollars' worth of apples yearly.

In this State thousands of neglected and abandoned farms can be made to yield apples as abundantly, better-flavored apples than those of Oregon, and at as great profit. Our business men who are tired of the city should seek these farms in preference to the farms of Oregon.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Procrustes Brought Up to Date. Lack of backbone, in the metaphorical sense of that phrase, ought, of course, to exclude a boy from Annapolis, but it has just been proved there that when the vertebral insufficiency is only literal it need not defeat ambition to serve the country on the sea.

When LUTHER WELSH of Kansas City, who will be graduated to-day among the star members of his class and with only three of them outshining him, first applied for admission he passed brilliantly all the examinations save one, the physical, and in that he failed only in a single respect—he was an inch too short to meet the Government's requirements. Had WELSH been an ordinary boy he would have gone disconsolately home at that. Being extraordinary, he took thought about the increasing of his stature, put the common belief as to the impossibility thereof to test, and had himself subjected to the influences of a machine which stretched him out to the required length.

The process could not have been agreeable. When it was done with a rack in the old days the same thing was described as "peine fort et dure," and it was usually considered expedient that the operating chamber should have thick walls. Presumably WELSH's elongators were somewhat gentler than the servants of mediaeval Churches and States; perhaps he took an anaesthetic. However that may be, he gained his inch—whether permanently or just long enough to be measured is not stated—and entered the Naval Academy. There he has excelled in both books and sports, and everybody predicts that he will make a fine Admiral by the time another occasion comes for reviving that title.

The lesson of the episode, perhaps, is that no more in the army and navy than elsewhere should mere size count for much. Certainly the country shouldn't be deprived of an eager and efficient servitor merely because he would be less likely than a bigger man to be hit by the enemy's fire. The day of the giant warrior passed when swords went out and gunpowder came in, and military annals are full of stories about little fellows who conquered big ones through excess or superiority of brains. We feel sure that, on the whole, it would be better to mitigate a height standard than to force a promising middy to stand the strain of stretching. Some day a potential paragon of valor and skill may try to gain three or four inches instead of one and be broken in two—which would be too bad.

A New Phase of the Turkish Question. On the first page of the Government's daily newspaper, called Consular and Trade Reports, appeared yesterday an item that should have been suppressed in the interest of American morals. It occurs in the report of Consul General G. BIE RAVNDAL of Beirut, Syria, that an American drug agency has been opened there. "Under the new régime in Turkey," he announces, "many chemicals formerly excluded by customs restrictions, as, for instance, * * * cocaine, sulphonal, extract of cannabis indica, &c., are now admitted. A few articles, such as cocaine nitroglycerin, Indian hemp, &c., still remain on the prohibited list, but may be released at any moment."

A prime duty of Consular officers is to stimulate the export trade of this Nation by furnishing news of business opportunities in foreign countries. Their reports are embodied in the Consular newspaper. Sulphonal, cannabis indica, cocaine, and Indian hemp are drugs well known for their powerful hypnotic, anaesthetic, and narcotic properties, and pernicious habit-forming potentialities. Their use in this and other civilized lands is severely restricted. Their exportation to semi-civilized countries, such as the Philippines, China, and the Asiatic provinces of Turkey, is discouraged by every influence working for social and moral regeneration. This Government has entered into covenants to restrict, prohibit, or discourage the traffic. Our commercial bodies have repeatedly protested that the traffic in opiates by pauperizing and demoralizing foreign peoples, "dopes" instead of stimulating the development of foreign commerce. Yet we continue to import from Peru, free of duty, immense quantities of the cheap coca leaves from which cocaine may be derived without any requirement of skill or expensive apparatus. We should place this stuff under the prohibitory law and Treasury regulations that, since February, have applied to the importation of opium and morphine. Emphatically, it is wrong to corrupt the Government of the Young Turks and debauch its Asiatic subjects by exporting to them its mischievous derivative, or, for trade purposes, to spread the news through Governmental agencies that it is permitted.

HOMES NOT OWNED.

Regards Their Increasing Number as a Disquieting Symptom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A real estate promoter of the name of Van Fossen remarks in a recent number of THE TIMES that in Philadelphia 75 per cent. of the population live in their own homes. He says the percentage is even larger in such cities as St. Louis and Denver. Statistics on this subject are not frequently met with in the daily papers, and casual readers who have never investigated the subject may believe that the above quoted remarks are true statements of actual conditions.

The ownership of homes is a good measure of the financial condition of the wage-workers, because they usually own their homes when they can afford to do so. These figures are taken from the 1900 census:

Total number of homes in Philadelphia, 265,093; percentage owned by occupants, 11.1.

Philadelphia, known as the "City of Homes," because there are so many of them, and those who live in them do not own them! It is also called the "City of Brotherly Love," the traction situation at present being an illuminating example.

In St. Louis, another city quoted by our real estate boomer, there are 121,123 homes, and 87 per cent. are not owned by occupants, while in Denver 84 per cent. are not owned by the people who live in them.

Only 31.8 per cent. of American families own their homes, 53.5 per cent. rent their homes, and 14.5 per cent. have mortgaged homes.

The percentage of farms operated by tenants rises higher from decade to decade, as well as the percentage of mortgaged farms. In 1880 the American farmer owned 74.5 per cent. of the land he tilled; in 1890 he owned but 71.6 per cent. of it, and in 1900 only 64.7 per cent. These are most significant facts showing the tendency of the times toward concentration of wealth.

SCIENTIFIC CANNIBALISM.

That Is the Only Refuge in Logic for Meat Eaters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The point raised by Dr. Hopkins relative to the most natural proteid diet for man is one of very great interest, and deserves serious consideration. He contends that human flesh is most nearly allied to human flesh in its constitution, and for that reason is most suited for human food, if flesh be eaten at all.

Now, this is a position which the vegetarians have all along pointed out, and have contended that if meat-eaters were consistent they should feed upon not animal meat of all kinds but upon human flesh, since that most nearly resembles the proteid constituents of the body. In my "Food of Man" I have called attention to this fact, and used this as one reason for accepting the vegetarian diet. If the human race were consistent it should consist of either cannibals or vegetarians. The vegetable kingdom can easily supply the body with all the proteid it needs—that fact is acknowledged by all competent authorities in diet—and if it be urged that vegetable proteid is not suited for the body, then why is animal proteid of an entirely different constituency? The anti-vegetarians have never succeeded in answering this question successfully.

JUDGE GAYNOR'S PROTEST.

Thinks It Will Encourage Unpleasant Citizens to Defy Police.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Judge Gaynor may be a jurist, but his prejudice against the police, for some unknown reason, is quite apparent.

His present attitude will encourage the vicious classes of the community to oppose the police. And not only the vicious and criminal classes, but those unpleasant citizens who like a fight better than peace will be encouraged to nullify law and order.

I am sorry to see a man of his eminence in opposition to Commissioner Bingham and the police force generally. I think the police are justified in taking the pictures of perverts, degenerates, corner loafers, car rowdies, and their kind and class whenever they think it proper to do so.

We have too many vicious citizens among us, and there is need of the police having encouragement to keep them in place.

No Respectable Gooseberries.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A letter in to-day's TIMES on "The Profit in Apples" is very interesting. Could you persuade the President of the Agricultural Experts' Association to write something on the cultivation of gooseberries? I have been in this country over fifteen years and have not seen a respectable gooseberry. The kind one sees in the markets would not make even gooseberry fool. I should think, if properly cultivated, they would prove a source of profit.

TO STUDY FOREIGN AVIATION.

Signal Corps May Seek Hints for Aerial Patrol at Frankfort Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—It is probable that the Signal Corps will send one of its officers to Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, this Summer to attend the Aeronautical Congress to be held there. The decision of the corps to prepare plans for a complete aerial patrol system of the Atlantic coast has made it necessary to study the work of foreign governments in navigating the air. Gen. James Allen, Chief Signal Officer, spent some time in Europe last Fall studying the situation, and he may go again, although the choice has fallen on no particular officer yet.

Much interest attaches to the arrival in Washington next week of the Wright brothers. It is expected that Wilbur Wright will be able to give the signal officers much valuable information as a result of his close association with foreign aviators. The American inventor is intimately acquainted with the aeronauts of a half-dozen countries and has investigated closely the various types of aerial craft.

As Congress will be in session during the Wrights' stay, in the course of which they will complete the trials of their aeroplane for the War Department, special efforts will be made to have members of both the Senate and House attend the flights.

The carrying out of the plan to create a fleet of aerial sentinels along the coast, as stated this morning in THE TIMES, depends entirely on the willingness of Congress to appropriate the money necessary for the construction of dirigibles and the erection of balloon houses. Congress, in the past, has not regarded with favor the proposals to invest heavily in war balloons, but it is hoped to make many converts among its members.

LESS PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 3.—Municipal ownership, according to the sentiment of the National Electric Light Association, in convention at Young's Pier, is being rapidly checked. A report presented by Chairman Samuel Insull of the Committee on Public Policy says:

> One cause for the lessening of the movement relates to past and existing extravagance in municipal and State expenditure. To such an extent is this true, and so widespread is the increasing recognition of municipal waste and inefficiency that any opening of new avenues of expenditure is not likely to receive the support of the public.

The convention is due to adjourn to-morrow.

TAFT EATS THREE MEALS NOW.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The President, to the delight of members of his Cabinet, has returned to the luncheon habit. For some time before he entered the White House Mr. Taft contented himself in the middle of the day with an apple or two. His weight was increasing, and this abstinence was a part of a diet regimen adopted on the advice of a physician.

The President did not seem to mind, but the Cabinet suffered. At the Tuesday and Friday meetings Mr. Taft, not feeling the promptings of appetite, never glanced at the clock. As a result, when the conference broke up it was a common sight to see half-famished heads of departments scurrying for their homes or the nearest restaurant.

The President has decided to eat three meals a day hereafter, because he finds that his daily golf game or horseback ride is doing for him what diet did before. The decision was reached on his recent trip to Gettysburg, when he lunched with his brother, Charles P. Taft, on their private car.

A ZOOLOGICAL WONDER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of this morning Mr. Paul Howard describes in part the gyascutus and asks further information. I am able to throw some light upon the peculiarities of this rare quadruped, and cheerfully contribute the results of my researches.

The gyascutus, or gyasticutus, (a circumvallata,) was for a long time supposed to have become extinct. Its chief peculiarity consists in this: The two right legs are of equal length and long; the left legs, also of equal length, are short. Therefore the animal inhabits solely steep hillsides, and can advance only in one direction.

The method of capture is to come suddenly upon the gyascutus, and by a daring stratagem make it turn end for end. Naturally it rolls helplessly upon its back, and is then subdued and chained.

The gyascutus is held to be one of the fiercest of beasts and very powerful. Doubtless Mr. Howard and other faunal naturalists—our contemporaries—can recall the terror which pervaded our small communities when—as sometimes happened—this dreaded monster was reported to be at large. "Flee for your lives; the gyascutus has broke loose!" That was the terrible consecrated phrase.

It is thought that at one time, in pure derision, Mr. Roosevelt intended to stigmatize the trusts—now so widely known as octopi—with the hated name of gyascuti. It is admitted that the capitalistic combinations bear some superficial points of resemblance to the gyascutus, such as the rings within rings, the habit of advancing only in one direction, &c., but it is said the trusts, when confronted, do not suddenly turn about face, and the project dropped.

Col. Roosevelt has not yet secured a specimen of the gyascutus.

Abutting Values.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that Mayor McClellan intimates that the increase in land values produced by the building of subways should be taken by taxation to pay for the subways many people who expected to have subways built and the land values go to them will become lukewarm in advocating "more subways."

UNCLE SAM TO JOHN BULL.

Say, John,
What's the scare
That's sent you up in the air?
What's shoved a shiver
Into your liver,
And turned it white
In a single night?
Are you afraid that Kaiser Bill
Will load with sauerkraut
Those Kruppitudinous guns of his
And simply blow you out?
Or, do you fear
He'll soak you full of beer,
And when he's got you soused he'll come
And put Britannia on the bum?
Aw, Gee,
Wake up, J. B.,
What do you care
If he tries to throw a scare
Right into your midst?
Haven't you got the stuff
To call his bluff?
You may not want to fight,
But, by jingo, if you do,
You've got the ships,
You've got the men,
And got the money, too—
Or you can get it,
Which is just the same
In this little game.
Say, John, it makes me weary
To see you do the skeery
When Europe puts it up against the Guelph;
And the way your whole darn nation
Chews the rag of trepidation
Almost makes me want to swat you one myself.
What?
Great Scott!
What's that noise you're making?
It's mighty like a squeal;
Vas ist los mit Honnis?
Is he ausgespiel?

GALLERY NOTES.

Recent Accessions to Metropolitan Museum Include Interesting Works.

The recent accessions at the Metropolitan Museum make but a moderate showing this month, although they comprise interesting objects. In the department of paintings are a portrait of himself by William Rothenstein, a charming "Madonna and Child" by Lorenzo Monaco, a North Italian tryptich of the early fifteenth century, eight scenes from holy subjects, school of Giotto, and a "Madonna and Child" by Bartolommeo Montagna, in which the face of the young Madonna is singularly modern in expression and delicate in characterization.

Among the ceramics is a green celadon vase of the Ming dynasty, the gift of William R. Valentiner, who also has given a handsome piece of Persian brocade, silver and crimson in color, with the peculiar silvery lights on the red that we cannot manage to obtain in modern textiles. In the Recent Accessions Room is also a naïve group in stucco of the "Madonna and Child" carved by an artist of the school of Rosselino, and the gift of S. and S. Goldschmidt.

The loans during the month have been numerous, quite the most important being the large group of Barye sculptures and paintings from the collection of the late Cyrus J. Lawrence, which are lent by Mrs. Lawrence. These comprise ninety-two sculptures in the round, chiefly in bronze, and nine bas reliefs, with eight paintings and a group of drawings. They range from the examples of Barye's inimitable knowledge of animals in action, his ferocious beasts occupied with their prey, to the much milder representations of human beings with which the sculptor seemed always less at home, and with which also he usually was less successful. The latter class contains, however, the wonderful little "Hercules Carrying a Boar," which is reproduced in silver, and which shows how superbly upon occasion Barye could bring out the strength of a powerful man by emphasis upon the structural anatomy without exaggeration of the muscles. This collection of Barye sculptures, which is not only representative, but comprises proofs of the finest quality, has been arranged in Gallery 22, on the second floor, where it will remain during the Summer. The paintings and drawings are not yet on exhibition.

The Bulletin opens with an article on the Cesnola Collection by Prof. Myres, who has undertaken the reclassification of the collection, in which he states that a thorough cleansing of the more important objects in the collection is demanded by their condition and by "the greater attention which is now rightly given to questions of surface, finish, tooling, and other details of ancient craftsmanship." A thorough appreciation of this point and of the increased scientific and artistic value obtained for ancient objects by careful cleansing would clear the public mind of the prejudice that still lingers there against the removal of surface dirt from the art of antiquity.

The other two long articles in the Bulletin are devoted to the Fischbach collection of textiles, which was shown last month, and to the accessions of 1908 in the department of classical art.

A note is given to an admirable device called the "Museum Poster," which is to be hung in public places such as ferry houses and railroad terminals. The Metropolitan Museum, the American Museum of Natural History, the Museum of the Brooklyn Institute, and the New York Zoological Gardens have combined in printing this poster, which gives a railroad map of the city in colors, showing the location of these institutions, and in separate panels colored views of the museums and statements showing their location, means of access, hours of opening, and contents.

The complete list of the artists to be represented in the Hudson-Fulton Exhibition of Dutch Paintings is now ready, 120 in all, and also the list of contributors who are lending the paintings.

HUDSON-FULTON EXHIBITION.

American Section Will Show 30 Oil Paintings and Some Miniatures.

The American section of the Hudson-Fulton Exhibition will show an important group of paintings in connection with the objects of industrial art. Only a slight reference to these pictures was made in last month's bulletin. About thirty oil paintings will be shown, and a group of miniatures by American artists born before 1800. Among the painters represented are the so-called Primitives—Smibert, Blackburn, Woolaston, and Earle, while the later artists are Copley, Benjamin West, Fulton, Allston, Malbone, Sully, Stuart, Trumbull, Morse, Doughty, Peale, and Vanderlyn.

Perhaps the most interesting pictures of the group on account of the occasion are two portraits of Joel Barlow by Robert Fulton, lent by Judge Peter T. Barlow and by Mr. Robert Fulton Ludlow, and the portrait of Robert Fulton by Benjamin West, lent by Mr. Robert Fulton Ludlow. A catalogue of the exhibition will be issued in two parts and may also be procured combined in one volume.

OUR IMPORTS FROM CHINA.

Value of Tea from Shanghai Nearly $2,000,000, Raw Silk Over $5,000,000.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Consul General Charles Denby at Shanghai furnishes some interesting information about the harvesting and moving of some of the crops of China.

There are, he says, three crops of tea. The first or Spring crop is gathered about April 20, the second or Summer crop about May 20, and the third or "even flower" crop about June 30. The bulk of the yield is moved to the seaports promptly after gathering, and export to the United States and other countries continues throughout the year, the movement being heaviest during the last six months of the year. The total value of tea exported from Shanghai to the United States in 1908 was $1,954,891, of which 88 per cent. went forward between July 1 and Dec. 31.

In the country adjacent to Shanghai the farmers begin to gather the silk cocoons about June 1, and movement of raw silk to the ports begins almost immediately. Export continues throughout the year and is heaviest in the last six months. The value of raw silk, cultivated and wild, exported from Shanghai to the United States in 1908 was $5,250,216, of which 86 per cent. was shipped between July 1 and Dec. 1.

Three crops of rice are harvested in each year, but its export is prohibited by the Chinese officials.

Cotton is harvested in the late Summer and is exported throughout the year. During 1908 shipments were made for the first time in any quantity to the United States. The value was small, the total being only $66,900. About 90 per cent. of the cotton exported from China is bought by Japan.

The export of skins and furs is another important item in China's trade. These know no seasons, and throughout the year are marketed and sent to the various countries of the world. The total exported to the United States from Shanghai in 1908 amounted to $575,000. In addition the United States imported $410,000 of wool from Shanghai, more than half of which was marketed in the December quarter, the balance being distributed almost equally over the remainder of the year.

The manufacture of straw braid is one of China's greatest industries, though only a small proportion of the cargoes destined for the United States are shipped from this port. Returns show that $407,000 worth left Shanghai during 1908 for the several ports in the United States. This product is also marketed throughout the year.

The foregoing are China's principal articles of export and represent 83 per cent. of the trade from this port to the United States, the remaining 17 per cent. being divided among about 75 other items. The total value of cargoes shipped from Shanghai to the United States in 1908 was $10,545,423, of which $1,029,070 was shipped during the March quarter, $819,203 during the June quarter, $4,034,603 during the September quarter, and $4,662,547 during the December quarter.

DECREE BARS VOTES OF PREFERRED STOCK

LEGAL TEST TO BE MADE

Attorney General Holds That These Shareholders Cannot Be Excluded from Voting.

An action held to be of great importance among lawyers versed in corporation matters was taken yesterday by Justice Guy of the Supreme Court. In direct opposition to the views and practice of the present Attorney General, Mr. O'Mally, and his predecessor, W. S. Jackson, he granted a motion for a mandamus compelling the Secretary of State to file the certificate of incorporation of a certain company, although the certificate embraced a clause depriving preferred stockholders of the right to vote "for Directors and on other matters."

The writ has not been issued because the Attorney General has announced that he will take immediate appeal, and Andrew Gilhooly, who made the motion, has agreed to await the result of the appeal so as to avoid the delay of an application for a stay.

The action of the higher court will be watched closely not by lawyers only, nor yet by those who contemplate forming corporations, but by members of already existing corporations whose certificates contain a clause limiting the voting power of preferred stockholders.

Lawyers say that the question of the legality of such a clause only came up about a year ago with the revision of certain statutes, and that since then something like a thousand corporations whose main seat of business is New York have been forced by this interpretation, to the considerable loss to this State, to incorporate in New Jersey.

They say that the only reason the question has not hitherto been brought to a test was because of the delay of the necessary motions and appeals, which to the view of the incorporators overbalanced the inconvenience of incorporating in New Jersey, and of holding all their meetings there.

The reason so much importance attaches to the legality of this clause is that preferred stockholders, being entitled to preference of dividends over common stockholders, take a less active interest in the management of the corporation, since their dividend is practically fixed; common stockholders, on the other hand, in order to get dividends, must see that the corporation is properly managed.

The question depends on whether the clause "unless otherwise provided for in certificates of incorporation," at the beginning of Section 23 of the incorporation laws, which continues: "Every stockholder shall be entitled at every meeting to one vote for each share standing in his name," refers to any sort of limitation on the voting power of a division of stockholders, or merely to the matter of "cumulative voting" contained in Section 24.

The company represented by Mr. Gilhooly is the National Investing Company, incorporated by Stewart Browne, the banker, and others, for "buying and selling land, advancing moneys for credit thereon, and issuing monetary obligations." The Secretary of State, seeing that it contained a clause limiting to a considerable extent the power of preferred stockholders to vote, refused to file the certificate. Mr. Browne and his colleagues then determined to make a test case of the matter.

The sentence with which Jacob Frank, Deputy Attorney General, closes his brief shows the importance with which his office regards the matter. He says:

> If the theory of the relator be upheld it will permit a certificate of incorporation to provide that only one share of stock may vote out of innumerable shares issued, and will permit the vesting of the control of a corporation in the holder of one share.
>
> This would abrogate the rules applicable to the management of corporations which have been in existence from time immemorial, and would establish a new and dangerous precedent in this State.

Mr. Gilhooly said: "A provision in the certificate of incorporation that preferred stock shall have no voting power is a contract between two classes of stockholders which does not concern the public or violate any rule of public safety."

The question hinges on Sections 23 and 24 of the incorporation law. Section 23 reads:

> Unless otherwise provided in the certificate of incorporation every stockholder of a stock corporation shall be entitled at every meeting to one vote for every share of stock standing in his name. All members of the corporation may vote at such meetings by person or proxy.

Section 24 reads:

> The certificate of incorporation may provide that at all elections of Directors each stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as shall equal the number of his shares multiplied by the number of Directors to be elected, and that he may cast all of his shares for a single Director or may distribute them for the number to be voted for, or in two or more of them, which right, when exercised, shall be termed cumulative voting.

The Attorney General contends that the phrase "unless otherwise provided for" applies solely to cumulative voting, and does not alter the plain meaning of the last phrase of Section 23, which provides that all members of the corporation may vote their stock.

NO QUORUM IN HOUSE.

Consideration of Porto Rican Bill Interrupted and Adjournment Forced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—As soon as the journal had been read a long wrangle arose in the House to-day over the question of whether or not the Porto Rican bill should again be taken up. Mr. Macon (Ark.) was alert to the situation and announced that if the members simply wanted to talk he would not make the principal of no quorum, but if any votes were to be taken he would insist on a constitutional majority being present. "I don't object to anything that costs the Government nothing," he declared. The bill, he said, provided for a carpet-bag Government in Porto Rico. "We had an infamous carpet-bag rule once," he said, "and for that reason I shall demand a quorum when votes are taken."

An arrangement satisfactory to Mr. Macon could not be had and he forced a roll call on a principle of no quorum. One hundred and eighty members responded to their names, not a quorum.

Majority Leader Payne gave notice that if a quorum was not on hand Monday he would move to send for absent members.

The House at 12:45 P. M. adjourned until Monday.

MIKADO DECORATES J. J. CARTY

Order of Rising Sun Conferred Upon American Telephone Engineer.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Upon the joint recommendation of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs and of Communications, the Emperor of Japan has conferred upon John J. Carty of New York, Chief Engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Order of the Rising Sun in recognition of distinguished engineering services rendered to the Government of Japan. The insignia of the order were presented by Baron Takahira, the Japanese Ambassador.

For many years the Japanese Government has made an exhaustive study of the telephone systems of the world, and among American engineers this action of the Japanese Government is regarded as a recognition of the pre-eminent position of telephone engineering in America.

HIGH DEGREE DOGS SHOWN AT MINEOLA

More Than 1,000 Individual Entries at Ladies' Kennel Association Bench Exhibition.

ST. ANN'S PRIMROSE SEEN

English Foxterrier a Winner of 1,000 Prizes—The Long Island Set Out in Force.

With an individual entry list exceeding the thousand mark the Ladies' Kennel Association of America opened its seventh annual Summer bench show yesterday at the Mineola Fair Grounds. There was a strong representation of all the leading breeds on hand. The dogs were accommodated on long rows of benches in the exhibition, while two large rings, subdivided into eight sections, were roped off under the trees to facilitate the judging.

It was an exclusively social affair, and the Summer colonies of Cedarhurst, Meadowbrook, and the surrounding country on Long Island contributed to the crowd of spectators. During the day over 100 automobiles entered the grounds, while a continuous string of vehicles of every description brought many prominent persons to the show. Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Butler Duncan, Miss May Bird, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Bates, Mrs. Albert Zabriskie Grey, Miss Katherine Elkins, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, Mrs. J. Although the judges worked hard to complete their labors not more than half of the classes had been judged at nightfall. Several of the classes were exceptionally strong, especially the fox terriers and Pomeranians. In the former one of the most notable entries was St. Ann's Primrose, which won over 1,000 prizes in England and made its first appearance in this country. It is booked to meet Winthrop Rutherfurd's old champion Warren Remedy in the special class, and a close tussle is expected to-day. Two other candidates for special classes are Sabine Fernie and Sabine Rarebit, both entered by the Sabine Kennels of Orange, Tex.

The sable and black Pomeranians made an excellent showing. In this class Miss M. F. Sturges showed Pomfield Offley Sunny Atom, undoubtedly one of the best sable "poms" in America, while Mrs. Reginald T. Mayhew exhibited a wonderfully black coated dog, Dashing Billy, which should prove a worthy successor to champion Brown Elf.

MAGIC AT THE MARLBOROUGH.

Magicians, great and small, from all over the United States, and from across the water, assembled last night at the fifth annual dinner of the Society of American Magicians at the Hotel Marlborough. Hardly had the guests taken their seats when John W. Sargent, the presiding officer, arose and read a message reporting the recent death abroad of Leon Herrman, the third of the Herrmanns who have made that name famous in the land of magic. Immediately a table was brought forward on the stage erected in the rear of the room, and an empty plate upon which rested a white carnation was turned down in his memory.

Harry Kellar, the entertainer, who retired last year, was the guest of the evening and the first speaker. He told the diners of his early beginning as a magician, when, no more than a boy, he tramped from town to town with a pack on his back making a dollar here and there and gradually winning his way to the head of the profession. Howard Thurston, Kellar's successor, said there were more than 20,000 magicians in this country.

Just to show there was no hard feeling the audience sang "I Love My Kellar, but Oh, You Kid!"

Dr. Wilson, formerly a Methodist minister, but now a practicing physician and editor of The Sphynx, the official organ of all good magicians, said that he daily received letters from all over the world in Hindu, Spanish, and every other tongue, seeking enlightenment on the sacred laws of magic.

Following the dinner there was a performance of sleight-of-hand tricks by many members of the assembled talent, who were in turn introduced by Roltare, the conjurer. Linnett, a black-haired youth with a voluminous tie, did three card tricks, assisted by two bashful reporters. Rabine, a gentleman of the old school, with flowing moustachios and imperial, caused handkerchiefs to appear from all parts of his person and change color at will. Bamberg, who is of the fifth generation of magicians, did wonders with an apparently good cigar, causing a solid mahogany wand to disappear into thin air before the eyes of the audience. Secretary Werner produced an egg from space, and mystified all hands as completely as he had President Roosevelt recently, by tearing up a dollar bill and then restoring it whole to its owner.

DR. THEODOR BARTH, NOTED LIBERAL, DIES

AN ADMIRER OF AMERICA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 3.—Dr. Theodor Barth, the well-known German radical politician and journalist, died suddenly at Baden-Baden early this morning, aged 59. He had been suffering for some time from internal disorders, but his friends were unaware that his illness was destined to prove fatal.

Dr. Barth was undoubtedly the most intelligent authority on American affairs in contemporary Germany. He visited the United States in 1884 and 1896 and incorporated his impressions on both occasions in books dealing with economic and political conditions. He last visited America in 1907 and the impressions of that trip, after publication in the Frankfort Gazette, appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Dr. Barth was an ardent free trader, an advocate of democratic ideals, the long-time leader of the militant branch of the Liberal Party, and a Member of the Reichstag for several terms. He was a brilliant debater and a vigorous writer. Die Nation, which he edited until its demise in 1906 was a relentless critic of the present régime in Germany and especially of Chancellor von Bülow.

The ideal to which Dr. Barth devoted his last energies was the amalgamation of German radicalism with the Social Democracy. The betterment of Anglo-German relations and the crushing of the Anti-Semitic movement were also two of his favorite projects.

He is survived by his widow.

Dr. Barth had behind him thirty-five full years of work for Liberalism in Germany. He believed in the responsibility of the Ministry to Parliament, and in reducing the influence on the Government of the landed interests; he was opposed to excessive expenditure of the national energy on naval expansion and the enlargement of the army; and he favored the equitable redistricting of the Parliamentary constituencies and the substitution of the "one man one vote" principle for the three-class property system prevailing in Prussia.

Dr. Barth had been styled an extreme radical, and for some years he had been the leader of that group in the Reichstag. He lost his seat at the last election because he gave up a sure district to a friend and ran in a doubtful constituency.

He was an intense admirer of the institutions and political personalities of the United States, where he made many warm friends on his several visits. He wrote freely and temperately of American affairs, and issued a study of "American Economic Life" in 1884, and a book named "My American Impressions" in 1896. He traveled for several months in 1896 with William Jennings Bryan and other American campaigners studying electoral methods, and he also spent a considerable portion of the year 1907 in America, at which time he received the degree of LL. D. from Harvard University.

Dr. Barth's father was an East Indian planter and left him a considerable fortune, which he spent generously for political objects.

He was born in Duderstadt, Hanover, on July 16, 1849. From his thirteenth to his nineteenth year he attended the Gymnasium Andrianum in Hildesheim, and he spent the next three years studying law at the universities of Heidelberg, Leipzig, and Berlin, passing his examination as "Doctor juris utriusque," at Leipzig, in 1870.

In 1871 and 1872 he was practicing law in Bremen, for the next four years was Amtsassessor at Bremerhaven, and from 1876 to 1883 he was syndic of the Chamber of Commerce in Bremen, Bank Commissioner of the German Reichsbank, and General Secretary of the Deutsche Gesellschaft zur Rettung Schiffbrüchiger. He represented the three Hanseatic cities, Hamburg, Bremen, and Lübeck, in the committee of the Bundesrath which prepared the protective tariff of 1879.

Dr. Barth entered the Reichstag as member for the constituency of Gotha in 1881. In 1884 he was defeated in Gotha by a Social Democrat, but the next year he was again returned to the Reichstag at a by-election in Hirschberg, Silesia, which he represented up to 1898, when he was defeated. In 1900 he once more returned to the Reichstag from Wittenberg-Schweinitz, which he represented until 1903. From 1898 to 1903 he was also a member from Kiel in the Prussian House of Representatives, and from 1890 to 1893 he served in the Berlin City Council.

In 1883 he took up his residence in Berlin, where he founded Die Nation, a weekly, which was devoted to politics, political economy, literature, and art, and became, with the assistance of the best writers of the Liberal Party, the central organ of Liberalism in Germany. As a convinced freetrader, Dr. Barth was made honorary member of the Cobden Club. The meetings of the Interparliamentary Union he frequently attended in London, Berne, Rome, Christiania, always working for good-will among nations and the principle of arbitration in international disputes.

Writing on May 10, 1907, Andrew D. White, so long Ambassador to Germany, said of Dr. Barth:

"No one in the whole German Empire has deserved better of all patriotic and thoughtful Americans than he. For many years, as a member of the Imperial Parliament and as the editor of a leading journal, he has endeavored to make his countrymen understand us, and has rendered great service in so doing. During the Spanish-American war his journal, Die Nation, was one of the two of the highest class which showed a fair and just appreciation of American conduct and motives.

"Throughout Dr. Barth's whole course, whether in Parliament or in the office of the admirable journal of which he was the editor, he showed the same spirit—the spirit of fairness, of justice, of opposition to all sudden outbursts of passion, to new prejudices aroused and old prejudices renewed. His quiet, sane, sober judgment and his belief in constitutional freedom enabled him always to distinguish between the mere temporary ebullitions of popular passion and the sober thought of the American people."

The Rev. William T. Dixon.

The Rev. William T. Dixon, a widely known negro preacher, who had been pastor of the Concord Baptist Church, in Duffield Street, Brooklyn, for forty-six years, died yesterday at his home, 106 Adelphi Street. He taught school at Stonington, Conn., and later in Flushing, L. I., until 1863, when he became pastor of the Concord Church. He is said to have officiated at more funerals and marriages than any other clergyman in the city. He leaves a widow and four children. His body will lie in state in the Concord Church from noon to-day until 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, when the funeral will be held.

SIR CHARLES THEATREGOING.

Likes "The Blue Mouse," Which He Will Produce in England.

Sir Charles Wyndham, the English actor-manager, who has acquired the English rights to "The Blue Mouse," attended the performance of this piece last night at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, where it is being presented under the management of the Shuberts.

Asked if he thought that "The Blue Mouse" would be a success in England, Sir Charles answered emphatically in the affirmative.

"I feel very confident that 'The Blue Mouse' would make a London success," he said. "I am much pleased with the production here to-night. I have already seen the German production in Berlin, and beyond doubt this American presentation goes with more speed."

CYRIL MAUDE REAPPEARS.

He and Winifred Emery Receive Warm Welcome in London.

LONDON, June 3.—Cyril Maude and Winifred Emery received a warm welcome on their reappearance to-night at the Playhouse Theatre in the farce, "A Merry Devil," by W. B. Fagan. The piece is beautifully set, and gave Mr. Maude wide scope in one of his typical comedy parts, while Miss Emery was no less successful.

The play is interesting, also, as showing the versatility of the writer, whose more serious work, "The Earth," was recently produced at the Kingsway Theatre.

OLDEST EX-POLICEMAN DEAD.

Applegate Joined the Brooklyn Force Before the Civil War.

Daniel B. Applegate, called by his familiars "Toothpick Dan," the oldest ex-policeman and the last of the "Leatherheads," as the Brooklyn police were known before the metropolitan force was organized, died in East Orange, N. J., on Wednesday, at the age of 87.

For many years he was one of the best-known figures around the Brooklyn Borough Hall. He became a policeman in Brooklyn before the civil war, and was the first Brooklyn man appointed to the Metropolitan force.

After twenty-six years of service he retired from the force and became a special policeman at the old Park Theatre in Fulton Street, where he came to be looked upon as a landmark.

AUGUSTE DURAND DEAD.

Was Head of Firm of Music Publishers in Paris.

Auguste Durand, head of the firm of H. Durand & Co., music publishers in Paris, died there on Tuesday. He was born in Paris in 1830, and studied harmony and counterpoint under Bazin and Savart and the organ under Benoist. At the age of 18 he was first organist at St. Ambroise, but gave that up to continue his musical studies in Italy. Returning to Paris in 1853, he was appointed organist of the Pantheon when that edifice was restored to religious uses under the name of St. Geneviève. In 1857 he became organist of St. Roche, and the following year he went to St. Vincent de Paul, where he remained until 1874, when he retired to devote his energies to the music publishing business.

It was from him that Oscar Hammerstein secured the rights to the French operas with which he made such a success at the Manhattan Opera House. Durand composed a mass for orchestra and many works for piano and organ. He was an officer of the Legion of Honor.

The Rev. Samuel H. Hirdansky.

He was 61 years old and came to the United States from his birthplace, Kovno, Russia, in 1888. BROOKLYN HANDICAP WON BY KING JAMES

RESTIGOUCHE WAS SECOND

Gravesend, L. I.

TWENTY-THIRD RUNNING.

Distance, one mile and a quarter.
1—King James, 126, (E. Dugan,) 3 to 1.
2—Restigouche, 114, (G. Burns,) 3 to 1.
3—Celt, 127, (Butwell,) 1 to 3.
4—High Private, 102, (J. Butler,) 10 to 1.
5—Frank Gill, 116, (Scoville,) 15 to 1.
Time—2:04.
Previous record for the stakes, 2:04 1-5, made by Celt in 1908.
Value to the winner, $4,000; to the second horse, $700; to the third, $300.

In the fastest race ever run for the Brooklyn Handicap, 2:04, Samuel C. Hildreth's colt, King James, won the famous Gravesend fixture yesterday, with his stable mate, Restigouche, second, and James R. Keene's Celt, the warmest favorite that ever started for the stakes, beaten off behind, third.

The race, the twenty-third running of the big event, marked the opening of the Brooklyn Jockey Club's Spring meeting, and drew an attendance estimated at 15,000 to witness a contest that developed unexpected and unusual happenings at every stage of the struggle. One of the most remarkable of these was the spectacle presented in the finish, when King James, ridden by Eddie Dugan, and Restigouche, ridden by the stable jockey Guy Burns, racing presumably in one interest, fought out, urged on by whips and heels, striving to beat each other as earnestly as both, further back up the stretch, fought to beat off Celt.

Another singular fact in the result of the race was the three placed horses, each descended in the male line from the stallion Himyar, the winner as a grandson of the famous Dixiana horse, with a second cross of Himyar through his grand dam, while the second and third horses, both bred by James R. Keene, are by Commando, grandson of Himyar through Domino.

Race Better Than Expected.

The contest was so vastly better than the promise of the race, for which the lightest field that ever ran for a Brooklyn started, that the pleasure of the crowd of spectators was not even marred by the defeat of the favorite, Celt, starting at such a short price as practically to shut off public support and turn the greater portion of the betting crowd to the support of King James, while Celt ran for the professional betting men as a 3 to 1 on favorite. Only the three horses placed ever figured in the contest, the other three runners never getting near enough to them to even attract attention.

All the notable men of the turf were in the assemblage, with Lieut. Gov. Horace White, as the guest of Richard T. Wilson, Jr., mingling with the groups of breeders and turfmen in the clubhouse, and one of the most interested spectators of the saddling of the Brooklyn Handicap horses in the paddock. The public attendance filled the grand stand, which was the only inclosure for the public, the field stand remaining closed. In the club boxes were so many women visitors that there was general comment on their presence, as Gravesend in former years made only modest appeal to fashionable patronage.

Police There, but no Arrests Made.

As a change from the conditions of last year, the policing of the grounds was managed by plain-clothes men from Brooklyn Police Headquarters, and the only uniformed policemen were those in the gray of the race track special force. The city policemen, acting as detectives, were under Deputy Police Commissioner Hanson and Borough Inspector Russell, and numbered twenty-five. Sheriff Hobley had twenty-five deputies at the track under instructions to watch for violations of the law prohibiting bookmaking. The office of District Attorney Clarke also was represented, but the day passed without an arrest or anything resembling friction between the police and county authorities and the race track management.

In his assurance to the county officers that he would assist in enforcing the law, Philip J. Dwyer, President of the Brooklyn Jockey Club, has stated that where the police suspect men of violating the law, but are not able to secure positive evidence, the men under suspicion will be excluded from the grounds until they have satisfied the police, and with the precautions taken the betting men contented themselves with liberties comprehended in "oral" betting, under the court decisions that have been handed down.

The weather was rather gloomy, and there seemed a prospect of rain when the crowd began to gather at the race course, but the day proved fair, though sultry, and the track, only dampened by an early shower, was fast and good.

Big fields ran for all the races, with the single exception of the $5,000 Brooklyn Handicap, which brought out exactly the field announced officially overnight, without any of the added starters which were talked of by horsemen. The big event was run as the fourth race, and the horses were called to the post at 4:10 o'clock, after warming-up canters, from which only King James was missed. Celt warmed up, as usual, with the roan pony, long familiar as a fixture in the Keene stable, and was so eager to run that he ran away from the pony in a style most unusual for the pony, which in many years past has been permitted to keep abreast of the Keene champions.

At the post Berkeley, ridden by J. Bergen, had the rail; Restigouche, ridden by the Hildreth Stable jockey, Guy Burns, next to him; King James, Dugan up, being third from the rail; High Private, J. Butler up, for his first mount in the East this season, in the saddle; Celt, ridden by Butwell, being fifth, with Frank Gill, Scoville up, on the outside. Frank Gill was responsible chiefly for a short delay at the post, the barrier rising for the start, with High Private the first to show, Celt, King James, and Restigouche following in that order, with the positions shifting in the first half dozen strides to Restigouche first, King James second, and Celt third.

As the horses settled down Restigouche drew out a length and a half in front, King James galloping almost at his heels, while Celt, neck and neck with King James, moved over and ran close beside King James, keeping him pinned on the rail. The positions were unchanged in the run around the paddock turn and into the back stretch, though King James appeared to carry Celt out a bit coming to the turn into the back stretch, and Butwell there drew his whip and struck Celt twice, while the watching crowd wondered what it was for.

The horses then were nearly seven furlongs from the finish, and Celt was going well beside King James, though even under the whip he did not increase his pace any. Coming into the back stretch Restigouche, carrying a fast pace and going strong and freely, moved slightly away, and Celt dropped back from King James a bit, but only for a few strides, Butwell seeming to become uneasy on the favorite and urging him up to King James again. Celt drew abreast of King James about the five-furlong pole, and Butwell, to keep him there, went to the whip again before they got to the far turn, and Celt, under the whip, only kept abreast of King James, with Restigouche still a length and a half in front, making the pace to the middle of the last turn. Then King James began to slip away from Celt, and though the Keene colt had looked beaten for nearly half a mile then, it became plain that he was no longer a contender for the winner's share of the stakes.

Race Down the Stretch.

Coming into the stretch Restigouche raced a trifle wide, and King James, slipping away from Celt, moved after him in a hard struggle to get up and beat his stable mate. There had been no declaration to win in favor of either King James or Restigouche, and as King James closed steadily Burns, jealous of having an outside jockey on the better horse from his stable, but anyhow doing his full duty in his effort to win, drove Restigouche with the whip. In another few strides Dugan on King James was whipping, too, and King James was racing his best under lash and heels to get up at the last sixteenth pole. From there on King James held Restigouche safe, though he was straightened out and racing his best when he passed the winning post first by a scant length, with Restigouche, ridden hard into the last few strides, second, three lengths away from Celt, third, while five lengths further back High Private was fourth.

The time, 2:04, was one-fifth of a second faster than the previous record for the Brooklyn Handicap, made by Celt in the race a year before, when Celt, with 106 pounds, or twenty-one pounds less than he carried yesterday, won as a three-year-old. The fractional time, 0:23, 0:35 1-5, 0:47 4-5, 1:00, 1:12 2-5, 1:25, 1:38, and last mile in 1:41, marked not only a record for the Brooklyn Handicap, but a remarkably good and somewhat surprising performance for Restigouche, which was weeded out of the Keene stable last year, to humble his former stable mate and the present star of the Keene establishment, Celt, as he did in his task as pacemaker for King James.

While the spectators, the majority of whom rejoiced that the greed of the layers and the short price against Celt had saved them from backing the beaten favorite, still were applauding King James, Jockey Butwell caused a sensation by hurrying from the scales to the Stewards' stand. The crowd jumped to the conclusion that he was lodging a complaint of foul, and the supposition was that his complaint was because King James seemed to carry Celt out on the turn into the back stretch.

Butwell's complaint was one of the most singular ever made, and when he stated that Restigouche had pulled out to let King James come through and win, near the head of the stretch, the frivolous nature of the claim was overlooked by the Stewards, as Butwell's charge was dismissed. If Burns, on Restigouche, did anything more than making pace to help King James win, it was not apparent, for Burns was trying his best to make Restigouche beat King James into the last strides of the race.

The winner of the twenty-third Brooklyn Handicap scored his seventh consecutive victory, earned in extremes of the United States and Canada, when he galloped home first yesterday. King James, a plain but well-grown brown colt, 4 years old, by Plaudit-Unsightly, by imported Torchbearer, second dam Hira Villa, by Himyar, went into the Brooklyn stripped clean and without hood, bandage, or any other than simple racing tackle.

King James's Victories of 1909.

His victory was his third in the East this Spring, he having won the $5,000 Metropolitan Handicap on May 13 at Belmont Park, taken train then and run and won the $5,000 Toronto Cup last Saturday at Toronto, returning at once to New York to win the Brooklyn Handicap. In California King James was beaten in his first race of the Winter campaign, and then started his winning career by winning a purse, following this by winning in straight order, the Burns Handicap, the San Francisco Handicap, and the Speed Handicap, the last, six furlongs, in 1:11 4-5, his total earning since he was transferred to Hildreth by J. E. Madden last Summer being computed by Hildreth at $60,000.

King James was one of the best of the three-year-olds in New York last Fall, when his racing was stopped for the time by a split hoof, with which he pulled up after, finishing second, beaten a head by Fair Play, for the First Special at Gravesend. The same Hildreth, whose King James beat the famous son of Commando, Celt, is the Hildreth who with Beau Gallant beat Commando himself for Mr. Keene in the Matron Stakes at Morris Park in the only race that Commando ever lost until he broke down as a three-year-old.

James R. Keene, owner and breeder of Celt, had nothing to say of Celt's defeat except that in his opinion the horse had not been sufficiently seasoned in actual races. It is a fact, though, that Celt, when he won the Brooklyn a year ago, had just one race before he started for the Brooklyn, and won the Jockey Club Race at Belmont Park, just as he won the same fixture in his one race before the Brooklyn this Spring.

The racing through the card at Gravesend was spectacular and interesting, with the closest finish of the day in the sprint handicap, first on the programme, in which De Mund, after racing in the lead from end to end, stuck it out, and in a bitterly fought finish won by a head from King Cobalt.

In the $2,500 Criterion Stakes for fillies two years old, Woodford Clay furnished the winner in Ocean Bound, a smart brown filly, from his fast old mare, Flying Ship, Angerona finishing second and Greenvale third.

CINCINNATI, June 3.—McIntire began to weaken in the fifth inning, when he hit one man and was found for a double. In the sixth he hit two men, which, with two doubles and a single, gave the locals 4 more runs. Fromme pitched good ball for Cincinnati, striking out ten Brooklyn batsmen. Score:

Cubs Raise Pennant; Split Up $10,000.

CHICAGO, June 3.—The Chicago Nationals raised their third pennant to-day and afterward defeated Philadelphia by the score of 4 to 3 in a twelve-inning game. The regulation ceremonies were gone through in raising the flag, including the parade across the field by a band and both teams. After the flag was raised President Charles W. Murphy presented Manager Frank Chance with a check for $10,000, to be divided equally among the members now with the team. Twenty-one men will receive $455 apiece, the remainder going to the attachés of the team. Fraser, Lundgren, Slagle, Kling, and others who were with the team when it won the championship last year, received no part of the bonus. The game was loosely played and passes by Moren were instrumental in helping Chicago to score all its runs. Moren forced in the winning run with the bases full and two out in the twelfth. Score:

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 3.—Pittsburg defeated Boston to-day by a score of 9 to 8, after having a score of 8 to 1 against them. Both teams had bad innings, and each had six runs scored against them in one inning. The day was dark, and at times it was hard to see the ball. The locals used four pitchers, and McCarthy was replaced in the fourth for Boston after he had forced in two runs on bases on balls. In this inning Wagner knocked a home run, with the bases full. YANKEES OVERHAUL BROWNS IN EIGHTH

WADDELL INJURES AN ARM

Vicissitudinous—that's what yesterday's game at American League Park was, whether the word is in the dictionary or not. Manager McAleer of the visiting Browns, while traveling to the park in an automobile, was the victim of a falling window, which shattered the glass over his graying locks. That was but the beginning of the vicissitudes. The last one was the score—7 to 5, in favor of the Yankees.

Waddell seemed to have the better of the pitching battle. The Browns made the first run in the fifth, though they had had the Yankees in several close places before that time. In the fifth Jones beat out a very weak infield hit; McAleese did likewise, sending Jones to second. Stephens and Waddell flied out. Elberfeld ran in front of Austin to take Hartzell's grounder, but fumbled, and it went out onto left field, whereupon Jones scored.

In the same inning the Yankess tied the score. Laporte doubled down the third base line, and took third on Austin's sacrifice bunt. Kleinow chopped the ball wodn near Ferris, who threw to catch Laporte at the plate. He had plenty of time, but the ball struck the runner in the back, jumped over his and Stevens's head and Laporte scored. But the next inning the Browns broke the score with Ferris's terrific home run drive to right field.

In the seventh inning, however, the Yankees took three runs, which seemed to cinch the game for them. Chase, the first man up, singled to left. Laporte meant to bunt a sacrafice, but he was safe at first on Jones's muff. Austin chopped the ball down on the third base line. Waddell ran to get it, did get it to third in time to catch Chase, but fell flat on the ground, the shock knocking the wind out of him for some minutes.

The game was held up while Waddell was given water and sympathy. Kleinow singled to centre, filling the bases. Laporte was on his way home, but Farrell grabbed him and threw him back on third, thus saving an out. The bases were full and only one out. Brockett's grounder to short forced Kleinow at second, but he was safe at first and Laporte came home. Cree then drove the ball to right field and brought in both Austin and Brockett. Hemphill struck out for the third time.

The score was 4 to 2, with only two more innings to go. That seemed safe. But in the first half of the eighth Brockett gave Hartzell, the first Brown up, his base, and then Warhop succeeded him in the box. But Warhop gave Hoffman, the next man up, his base. Ferris's long sacrifice fly to Engle advanced the two runners a base each. Wallace's dodging little single to close centre brought in Hartzell. Williams flied out to Engle, and then Jones's fierce double to upper left field brought in both Hoffman and Wallace.

Here, then, was the score not only tied by the Browns, but bettered by one run, 5 to 4. Pelty went in the box for Waddell, however, whereupon the Yankees not only went up even again, but took two more runs in addition. Pelty gave Elberfeld first. Engle advanced him with a single. Chase advanced them both with a sacrifice bunt. Peltey gave Laporte his base, also, and the bases were full, with only one out.

Demmitt went in to bat for Austin and his long sacrifice fly to centre brought in Elberfeld. Keeler got up to bat for Kleinow. Engle was on third, the game was tied, and the remaining time short. Laporte started to steal second, and Engle played in for the plate. Williams hurled the ball quickly back to Stephens. It went over his head, and Engle brought in a run, while Laporte went on to third.

Keeler was given his base, Vaughan running for him after the first base. Warhop's single to left brought in Laporte. Cree went out, Jones to Pelty. The Browns did nothing in their half of the ninth. The score:

FIVE SEATTLE CARS ARRIVE IN BUFFALO

Had Easy Day's Run—Hard Schedule Confronts the Drivers To-day.

OTHER AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, June 3.—It was nothing more than a pleasure jaunt for the five cars competing in the New York to Seattle contest to make the run from Syracuse to this city to-day in ten hours, the time decided upon by Pacemaker Gerrie. The distance is only 190 miles, and the roads are in splendid condition. All five cars arrived on time and in perfect condition.

The drivers are becoming impatient for the go-as-you-please schedule, which will be in force after the contestants leave St. Louis, the last control station. Then it will be a race to the Pacific Coast for the M. Robert Guggenheim Trophy and $5,300 in cash prizes. At present Pacemaker Gerrie is holding the cars to twenty miles an hour, so that the speed laws of the various States through which the cars pass will not be violated.

All along the route large crowds greet the cars, and in every city the contestants are given an ovation. When the cars left Syracuse at 7 o'clock this morning Pacemaker Gerrie rode in the Acme. The contestants lunched at the Powers Hotel in Rochester after a run of 103 miles. This was the only checking station on to-day's route. From Rochester to Buffalo the cars bowled along on macadam pavements as though on a parkway.

The longest run of the trip between New York and St. Louis must be made to-morrow. The cars will leave Buffalo at 7 o'clock A. M. and go to Toledo, 314 miles distant. As the roads between Buffalo and Toledo are notoriously bad, the cars will be thoroughly tested. It will be the first real tryout of the relative merits of the small light cars, such as the Fords, and the heavier, higher-powered cars, like the Acme, Shawmut, and Itala.

H. S. Firestone and J. F. Singleton of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company are spending a few days in New York, having come here on Tuesday to see the start of the New York to Seattle contest. The Ford car in which John Gerrie set the pace the first day of the contest, the two Ford entries, and an Acme care are equipped with Firestone tires. Mr. Firestone announced yesterday that he has perfected the Firestone demountable rim.

Twenty agents of the Mitchell Motor Car Company of Racine, Wis., held a meeting yesterday at the Manhattan Hotel to discuss plans for the 1910 season. The agents, who came from all parts of the country, purchased from the factory 4,000 automobiles, valued at $5,400,000, and after they had been given their allotments William Mitchell Lewis, General Manager of the company, called a meeting to gain a consensus of opinion regarding the plans of the agents for meeting the public demand for automobiles next year.

Mr. Lewis said that the company will manufacture 6,000 machines for the 1910 market, an increase of 50 per cent. over last year. The demand at present, he said, far exceeds the prospective supply. The 2,000 cars reserved by Mr. Lewis are for distribution among agents who could not attend the meeting yesterday. Mr. Lewis entertained the agents at luncheon, after which he made a brief speech.

BIG GOLF FIELD FOR JERSEY TITLE

MONTCLAIR LINKS CROWDED

Ex-Attorney General Griggs Fails to Get in Championship Set and Withdraws.

Golfers from nearly all the leading clubs in New Jersey devoted to golf assembled a hundred or more strong on the links of the Montclair Golf Club yesterday to begin play in the annual State championship tournament. While the gallery was a large one, it by no means equaled that of the contestants, as eighty-four aspirants for the title now held by Jerome D. Travers drove off from the tee in the eighteen-hole qualifying round. Veterans, notables, and newcomers were in the field. Ex-Attorney General Griggs came over from Paterson for the contest and played with Oscar Woodward of the home club, but when he saw that his score of 89 was not good enough to get in the championship set of sixteen he withdrew. Archie Graham, who has held the State title twice, had a similar experience. He has not been playing much lately. His game was by no means up to its old time form, and when he did 89 he also retired.

Charles W. O'Connor of the Essex Country Golf Club surprised some of the knowing ones by leading the field with a score of 76, which gave him the gold medal. E. M. Barnes was second best with 78, and then came Max Behr, regarded as one of the dangerous men in the tournament. He was runner-up to Travers last year for the National championship, and recently won the club championship of Baltusrol. He did 79.

Beside the championship set three other sets qualified for cups. Trophies have also been offered for match play contests by the defeated eight in each set.

The sport of the day was further enlivened by a club team match, in which there were half a dozen entries. Englewood won by a total of 326 for the four players, beating Essex County of Orange by six strokes, and Montclair was third. Those who qualified for the championship and other cups with match play results of the first round were:

First Sixteen—C. W. O'Connor, Essex County, 76; E. M. Barnes, Englewood, 78; Max H. Behr, Morris County, 79; Arthur H. Lockett, Englewood, 80; Paul Harrison, Montclair, 80; C. B. Storrs, Essex County, 80; F. A. Marsellus, Yountakah, 80; Oscar Woodward, Montclair, 80; F. M. Olyphant, Englewood, 80; F. A. Wright, Canoe Brook, 81; W. B. Bremner, Montclair, 81; M. K. Smith, Morris County, 81; H. O. Christl, Forest Park, 82; L. W. Callan, Englewood, 82; C. B. Brown, Montclair, 82; A. Morrell, Hackensack, 82.

BOWLERS WON'T COMPETE.

Endurance Match Called Off—Buffalo May Join A. B. C.

Owing to the refusal of the bowlers to compete the twelve-hour endurance bowling contest between representatives of the East and West, scheduled to be a feature of the National championships at Madison Square Garden yesterday, was called off. The reason given was that the weather was too warm, but underlying this was the fact that the bowlers were dissatisfied with the amount of the prize money, which was $150.

It now develops that Buffalo, which was a bidder for the National tournament of next year against the successful Baltimore bowlers, has not taken its defeat with good grace. It is now stated on the best of authority that the American Bowling Congress, a rival organiation to the National Bowling Association, has made overtures to the Buffalo bowlers to desert the National Association, and the inducement offered is the American Bowling Congress tournament for Buffalo next year. John P. Floss of Buffalo, who is Vice President of the National Bowling Association, was in this city several weeks before the opening of the present tournament soliciting the aid of the New York bowlers in giving Buffalo next season's tournament, and since the convention in which Baltimore won he has not shown any interest in the progress of the present event. As he is one of the most influential of the Buffalo bowlers and an officer in the National Association, his attitude is taken as the straw to show which way the wind blows.

In the interest of peace between the National Bowling Association and the American Bowling Congress it is understood Garry Herrmann, owner of the Cincinnati National League Baseball Club, has proposed that a committee be appointed to draw up some agreement which would bring the two organizations in harmony, as has been done by the National and American Leagues in baseball.

The leaders in the National championships are as follows:

Individuals, Three Games.—Edward Thompson, New York, 699; Charles Buonomo, Rochester, 671; Fred Hegeman, Brooklyn, 670; Charles Lunsman, New York, 652; H. J. Miller, New York, 644.

Two-Men Teams, Three Games.—Bowls and Windheim, Utica, 1,243; Carl and Haller, Brooklyn, 1,230; Helitas and Cohn, Brooklyn, 1,215; Smith and Gebhard, Buffalo, 1,211; Edwards and Weissert, Buffalo, 1,210.

Five-Men Teams, Three Games.—Corinthian No. 8, New York, 2,899; Sunset, Brooklyn, 2,831; Ko Ko, New York, 2,810; Jamaica, Jamaica, L. I., 2,809; Bronx Central, New York, 2,804.

NEW SPEEDWAY RECORDS.

Record-breaking performances marked the weekly matinée of the Road Drivers' Association yesterday on the Speedway Drive. Joseph F. Gibbon's Claro reduced the best pacing time to 1:02, while Wilmar, a California horse, by F. Kilpatrick, negotiated the half mile in 1:04. The performances in the other classes also eclipsed the time made by the winners earlier in the season. Claro made a break in the first heat and lost to Who Knows, but the latter was outclassed in the next two heats, Claro pacing the second heat in 1:02¼ and the third in 1:02. Wilmar in the free-for-all trot traveled too fast in the first heat and was unable to reach Sid Axworthy in the second and third heats.

George H. Huber made a splendid showing with the Pandit family. He captured the Class F trot with Black Pandit, won the Class E pace with Helen Pandit, and scored a victory with Lizzie Pandit in the Class F trot.

ROCK RIVER, Wyo., June 3.—I arrived at Laramie at 7:45 last night in a very feeble condition because I was unable to get any regular nourishment. The towns are so far apart that it is impossible to get anything in the line of refreshments on the way.

The country is full of cows, but no milk can be had; chickens are at a premium, consequently no eggs. I depend mostly upon eggs and milk, and without them I feel lost.

I had all sorts of experiences yesterday. I passed through a tunnel half a mile long which gave me the horrors. Snow is everywhere in evidence from recent storms. The massive hills, full of large rocks and decomposed granite, make such a wild, lonesome picture. I am told this is the beginning of the Laramie desert. Japanese are employed as section hands along the Union Pacific Railroad. Not being able to converse with them I am deprived of another accommodation which was always willingly granted by the American section hands employed on this railroad. The roadbed is laid in decomposed granite, and is the best I have walked upon.

COLLEGES TO FIGHT A. A. U.

Stanford and Colorado Resent Declaration That They Are Professionals.

DENVER, Col., June 3.—Colorado colleges under the leadership of Colorado University, and aided by Stanford University, will fight the ruling of Chairman Bert Martin of the Rocky Mountain division of the A. A. U. declaring Stanford and the University of Colorado track teams professionals and ineligible to compete at Chicago next Saturday.

What promises to be a long drawn out battle was started when a decision of Mr. Martin was received. Colorado University takes the stand that the A. A. U. holds no jurisdiction over its athletes in college meets so long as these affairs are not scheduled A. A. U. affairs. However, it is accepted that the university athletes cannot compete at Chicago, but an appeal will be taken and a heated battle is promised to obtain the amateur right of the college men of Colorado as well as Stanford University. Hope is expressed that a compromise may be effected whereby the Stanford athletes may compete at Chicago.

Suspended Athletes to Compete.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Dr. George K. Herman, President of the Central Amateur Athletic Union, who is to referee the intercollegiate track and field games here next Saturday, said to-day there would be no trouble between the Central body and the conference association concerning the suspension of Leland Stanford, Jr., University by the Rocky Mountain Amateur Athletic Union.

"According to the dispatches shown me to-day," said Dr. Herman, "the only reason for the suspension of the Stanford and Colorado teams is that they competed in a dual meet without sanction from the Rocky Mountain Amateur Athletic Union. As a matter of fact, such sanction is not necessary for a dual meet, and I cannot see how the Stanford team is disqualified in the meet here next Saturday."

Chamber of Commerce Favors Plan to Install New System of Accounting.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday the principal business was the discussion of the report of the Committee on Finance which indorsed the efforts of Controller Metz to have installed a new system of accounting in the city's books. The Controller was present and he offered an amendment to the resolution adopted last week calling on the Board of Estimate to appropriate $50,000 at its next meeting to enable the Controller to "employ the temporary expert assistants imperatively needed to make the new system entirely effective."

The original resolution appealed to the Aldermen to unite with the Board of Estimate in making this appropriation. Controller Metz's amendment transposed the position of the two city bodies in the resolution. The resolutions were adopted unanimously.

G. Waldo Smith spoke at length of the deplorable condition of the American merchant marine, and proposed the appointment of a special committee which should investigate conditions and press upon Congress such legislation as may improve present conditions. The committee will be appointed by the Executive Board.

These new members were elected: Lemuel C. Benedict, Daniel Birdsall, Robert A. Drysdale, Joseph H. Emery, Joseph F. Johnson, Robert H. Montgomery, George Ramsey, Wallace Reid, Henry B. Seaman, Alfred M. Thorburn, Francis F. White, Alfred R. Whitney, Jr., Edwin W. Winter, and Henderson M. Wolfe.

UNTERMYER DIDN'T CALL IT "CRIMINAL"

But He Told Mr. Parsons That Sugar Trust's Treatment of Segal Was Illegal.

SPARHAWK TELLS MORE

Says Parsons Accepted Interest on Loan, but Refused to Give Up the Bond Coupons.

John Sparhawk, Jr., the Philadelphia lawyer, who was counsel for Adolph Segal, the controlling power in the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, in the proceedings which led to the Pennsylvania Company's suit for $30,000,000 damages against the American Sugar Refining Company, now on trial before Judge Holt, in the Federal Court, was again the chief witness in the case yesterday.

John G. Milburn, chief counsel for the American Sugar Refining Company, cross-examined Mr. Sparhawk on his evidence of Wednesday, when he testified in effect that the American Sugar Refining Company had lent Mr. Segal $1,250,000 through a dummy, and then prevented Mr. Segal from repaying the loan by shutting down his plant. Mr. Sparhawk also testified to a conversation between himself, Samuel Untermyer, and John E. Parsons, in the latter's office in 1905. There had been an advertisement of the sale of collateral held by the Sugar Trust as security for the Segal loan, and Mr. Untermyer and the witness, he said, told Mr. Parsons that if any further steps were taken along that line an injunction would be secured. On direct examination Mr. Sparhawk had testified that Mr. Untermyer had said to Mr. Parsons that the loan and the accompanying circumstances were illegal and in restraint of trade.

In cross-examination Mr. Milburn wanted to know if Mr. Untermyer had called the transaction "a criminal offense treated diplomatically."

Mr. Sparhawk would not permit it to be put that way.

Further cross-examination concerning that interview brought this statement from Mr. Sparhawk:

"The interest on the loan was offered to Mr. Parsons in the January preceding; this interview was in June, 1905, and Mr. Parsons refused to take the interest. Then we offered at that time, in June, to pay the interest, and though he then consented to take the interest, he refused to surrender the bond coupons."

Then, the witness said, Mr. Untermyer said to Mr. Parsons:

"You are preventing the Pennsylvania Company from doing business which would enable it to pay this loan."

Mr. Sparhawk said Mr. Parsons made no comment on this. This interview is the main basis of the conspiracy charge on which the present suit is based.

Samuel Untermyer then took the stand and told of the interview in Parsons's office, corroborating Mr. Sparhawk's story of it. Mr. Untermyer also produced copies of letters which had passed between himself and Mr. Parsons. In one of them Mr. Untermyer wrote:

> If your clients insist on that refinery being kept closed until the loan be paid you are driving Segal to the wall by forcing a sale while the plant is not in operation. His only alternative would be to fight.

In another letter Mr. Untermyer wrote to Mr. Parsons:

> When Segal made that loan he had no idea that Kissel was acting for your clients, and he did not understand the conditions which were afterward forced upon him.

Ex-Gov. Frank S. Black, counsel for the plaintiff company, then put in evidence the average quotations of raw sugar for all the years since 1903, in December of which year the loan was made. At the conclusion of the day's session Mr. Black said that he would finish his case to-day.

Cross and Hyland Matched.

Leach Cross, the local lightweight, has accepted an offer to fight "Fighting" Dick Hyland in a forty-five-round contest on Saturday afternoon, June 26, at Coffroth's club, at Colma, Cal. The match will be at 133 pounds, weigh in five hours before the contest. Cross defeated Hyland in a six-round contest in this city a year ago.

FISHING AND FISHERMEN.

Weakfish weighing from one pound to one pound and a half are being caught freely in Jamaica Bay. In Broad Channel on Wednesday quite a number of boating parties brought to shore good messes. Charles Lever and Andrew Tavin of Brooklyn caught ten a short distance from the trestle, and not one weighed less than a pound. At the Raunt, Beach Channel, Bergen Beach, and Rockaway Point successful catches of weakfish were made and quite a number of blackfish were taken.

Fishermen who have made City Island in the vicinity of the bridge their stamping ground for years are enthusiastic over the prospects of a great run of blackfish and porgies. Not for many years have so many anglers been seen on week days at this part of Pelham Bay at this season of the year, and few have returned home without a mess of some kind. On Wednesday two members of the Harlem Fishing Club close to Jordan's Landing caught ten blackfish and six porgies on the last of the ebb tide. Several of the blackfish weighed close to two pounds, while the porgies were of excellent size and quality.

Cruising around Coney Island on the motor boat Dolphin on Wednesday, twenty members of the Amarinth Fishing Club of the lower east side had fine sport with weakfish, blackfish, and porgies. More than 180 fish were caught, the eagerness with which weakfish took the bait being a surprise. One was pulled up by Henry Devine weighing nearly three pounds. The big piers at the island are filled with fishermen daily.

At high tide yesterday, which was about 11 o'clock in the morning, Capt. Nick Cox of Long Island City, who has been fishing Jamaica Bay for years, made a fine haul of weakfish, blackfish, porgies, and a few big eels in Goose Creek. The veteran in his two hours of operations got a mixed collection of twenty-eight, the best individual record thus far this season.

William Hammell, a well-known New York angler, has just returned from Greenwood Lake after a three days' fishing trip. He says that large-mouthed black bass are numerous, with quite a run of pickerel. Fishing for small-mouthed bass is also improving.

VANDERLIP FOR REGULATION.

Investors Disposed to Support Properly Supervised Monopolies, He Says.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 3.—Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank of New York, in an address before the National Electric Lighting Association, in session here to-day, advocated regulation of lighting monopolies by public utilities commissions. Mr. Vanderlip, who spoke on "Electrical Securities," qualified his statement by insisting that the control of commissions should be reasonable in its exactions placed on lighting companies.

Mr. Vanderlip said: "The clearness with which the public is coming to recognize that its rights are safeguarded by monopoly, and then subjecting the monopoly to reasonable regulations, is a safeguard which the investor appreciates. An investor wants to put his money in securities that have a wide market. With the creation of such issues investors will be satisfied with a lower return, and the investment field which will observe this type of security will enormously broaden.

"It seems to me that there are the strongest economic reasons for combining all companies into large ones. The utilization of the great water powers now being so rapidly developed will tend for the combined management of the various large areas. The progress which is being made in long distance transmission is of the greatest importance in this respect.

"The tendency of the times, it seems to me, is distinctly in the direction of recognizing the controlling character of the electric lighting business. We are on the whole a very sensible people. We believe in business initiative, and do not care to have great business enterprises retarded by red tape methods. The public wants fair play, and is in a position to demand and get it. The commission which demands fair and reasonable treatment of the consumer, and in return secures the corporation from piratical attack of competitors organized only to be bought out, will in the end prove a bulwark to the security holder.

"Given intelligent management, accounting which embraces ample charges for service and fair rates which do not offer a field for legislative attack, I see no reason why funds in the most ample supply should not be found to absorb all the securities of this type that it is necessary to create."

RATE HARMONY ON NORTHWEST LINES

St. Paul's New Road Will Make No Cuts When Its Extension Is Opened Up.

REPORT OF AN AGREEMENT

Northern Pacific Sold to the St. Paul Needed Land and Traffic Relations of Rivals Are of the Best.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, which is on the point of beginning through traffic to the Pacific Coast over its new line, will not make any effort, it is learned in responsible quarters, to cut under the rates of the Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, and Great Northern. Reports were in circulation in the financial district yesterday that an agreement had been reached regarding important matters between the St. Paul and the Northern Pacific, and it was assumed that the reports had reference to this rate situation.

Beyond this fact, however, reference was made yesterday, as an evidence of the friendly relationships existing between the St. Paul and the Hill lines, to the fact that the new line of the St. Paul runs over ground at several points which was sold to the St. Paul by the Northern Pacific. These transactions were arranged long ago, of course, but no very definite knowledge regarding them had been had in the financial district, and they were regarded in a new light yesterday in connection with the reports of an agreement between the two roads.

The St. Paul, in its efforts to establish itself in the Northwestern States which it has penetrated by its new line, might well have undertaken, it was argued yesterday, to seek traffic by establishing lower rates than those maintained heretofore on the older lines. That no such purpose exists on the part of the St. Paul argues strongly, it was said, that the policy of the St. Paul will be to maintain friendly relations with the older lines in this territory rather than to seek to increase the traffic over its new line by offering reduced rates.

The land which the Northern Pacific sold to the St. Paul to round out its right of way included some at Tacoma as well as at various interior points. The St. Paul's new line closely parallels the Northern Pacific land. Only recently the Harriman lines reached an understanding with the Hill lines regarding the Harriman extension to Seattle, and on part of this extension the St. Paul is jointly interested with the Union Pacific. These agreements thus bring all three systems into more or less close harmony in the Northwest.

NEW ATCHISON SHORT LINE.

Pacific-Gulf Route Will Open Up Rich Farming Country.

President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison, who came east to attend the Directors' meeting on Wednesday, before returning to the West yesterday said that the Atchison means to build the line from Texico to Brownwood, which will give it the shortest line from the Pacific to the Gulf. The line, moreover, will open up a rich agricultural section.

The farming outlook in the Southwest, and more particularly in the Atchison's territory, President Ripley said, was fair if not more than fair. Farming has made vast strides in the Southwest, he said, and better methods of cultivation nowadays largely prevent the loss of crops which occurred in earlier years.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Strengthens at End of Nervous Day—Closes 1 to 5 Points Up.

Cotton continued nervous yesterday on the eve of the Government report, but received a little more general support in the late trading. The market closed steady at a net advance of 1@5 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 2 points, and during the first few minutes the active months sold 2 to 3 points net higher, notwithstanding lower cables than due.

Wet weather in the eastern and central belts and reports that the crop in these sections has deteriorated since the Government's condition figures were compiled were sustaining factors.

ESTIMATE BIG COTTON CROP.

The Financial Chronicle Figures on Nearly 34,000,000 Bales.

The annual estimate of the cotton acreage prepared by The Commercial and Financial Chronicle was made public yesterday, showing the acreage for the season of 1909 to be 33,862,406, an increase of 1.05 per cent. over the planting of 1908, which was 33,512,112 acres. Acreage increases appear, according to the estimate, in South Carolina, Alabama, Texas, Arkansas, and Oklahoma.

The Chronicle's correspondents report that the crop, while not so far advanced as at this time last year, is well cultivated, with the fields well cleaned of weeds and the plants in good condition to overcome any ordinary adverse conditions.

The Journal of Commerce estimate, also put out yesterday, makes the acreage 32,206,000, a decrease of 3.5 per cent. from last year's, and places the condition at 82.1, compared with 79 in 1908 and 69 in 1907.

TRACTION EARNINGS BETTER.

Subway, Elevated, and Surface Lines All Show an Increase.

The net income of the Subways, elevated, and surface lines in Manhattan for the first three months of this year was $1,603,875, according to figures made public yesterday by the Public Service Commission. Of this amount $1,574,203 went to the Interborough—$1,291,440 to the Subway and $282,763 to the elevated.

The gross earnings of all the lines totaled $17,094,186, being an increase of $934,159 over last year. The earnings of the elevated were greater than the Subway, the figures for the former being $3,521,230 and for the latter $3,321,525. The latter, however, was an increase of over $400,000 over last year, while the elevated earnings only increased $28,000.

What Was Found in the Lair of Abdul Hamid

WHAT has been found in what Francis McCullagh characterizes as the "lair" of Abdul Hamid, late Sultan of Turkey, will be set forth at length by Mr. McCullagh in The Times next Sunday. It is an astonishing story, quite equal in its actualities to any imaginings of fiction. It is a story that everybody should read to more fully understand the despot whom the Young Turks have "removed."

There will be many other features in The Sunday Times to interest, instruct, or entertain. There will be an extended description of some unusual experiments in spiritualism recently held in Washington; a capital story by Winston Churchill describing his journey down the White Nile; an interview with Dr. E. C. Spitzka, the eminent alienist, who tells much that he has learned of the workings of Anarchists the world around; many highly interesting letters from school children, who tell what they would do if they had a million dollars; the full story of the plans for the fortifying of the Panama Canal, with striking illustrations; an enjoyable satire by Thomas L. Masson on "Custom-Made Intellects," with some observations on the Humorists' International Union; another of the amusing "Letters of a Japanese Schoolboy"; an article of much value showing the cost in human life of the building of great works; clever caricatures on passing events by Hy. Mayer, and many other features in wide variety.

The Picture Section of The Times next Sunday will contain splendid reproductions of half a hundred photographs in about as wide a variety as may be imagined. A set of unusual pictures will tell the story of how the Mauretania begins one of her dashes across the Atlantic, pictures full of interest and action. There will be a fine series on the recent military fete on Governor's Island; two half-page reproductions of notable paintings; a capital grouping of photographs of the out-door dances and games of the girls of the Washington Irving High School; a page of pictures of the race meeting of the amateurs at Morristown, N. J.; a page in which all women will be interested, carrying many designs for Summer costumes just received, with adequate description, from leading modistes of Paris; pictures of society women, of plays and players, and many other photographs of interest.

SENSATIONAL RISE IN STEEL

On a volume of business which ran close to 1,500,000 shares, prices of a score of stocks touched new high records in the course of yesterday's market session, and in a limited number of issues, including Southern Pacific, Southern Pacific preferred, United States Steel common, United States Steel preferred, and Union Pacific, advances bordering on the sensational were made. It is impossible, of course, to designate exactly the parts played in so striking a market movement by manipulation and by genuine buying, but the confinement of the activity to a relatively small group of stocks with the greatest advances in these shares makes fair the assumption that pure speculation was the dominant factor in the day's business. Various explanations, real and fancied, were forthcoming to account for the uprush in the Steel shares and the Southern Pacific stocks, as well as for the gains elsewhere, but the majority of these bore such unmistakable evidence of their common origin with the advances themselves as to deserve little credence. This is always the case in so wild a market as yesterday's, but what is not so often to be found at such a time is so convincing an array of evidence of decided business improvement. Railroad earning statements submitted confirmed the indications of expanding trade which previous traffic returns, far above those of 1908, had disclosed; reports of the reopening of parts of steel plants long closed were received from many points in the steel and iron regions, and confirming the betterment here was the statement of the Steel Foundries Company for the quarter ended May 1 with its increase of $353,000 in net earnings over the same quarter of the preceding year. Copper metal rose in London under a strong demand, and this strength was reflected in a further advance here and in substantial orders from large consumers, and as if to guarantee a continuation of the improvement betokened by all these matters the State reports of Ohio and Kentucky on Winter wheat as of June 1 placed condition much above that on May 1, and better, in fact, than at the same time a year ago.

No further engagements of gold for export were announced during the business day, but exchange rates were strong once more, and the prospects are for additional shipments. An interesting report of the day in connection with the money situation was that which emanated from Washington to the effect that the Treasury would very shortly call in $20,000,000 of United States deposits from the National banks, a move which, with any long-continued speculation upon yesterday's scale would, together with the reviving demands of trade, very materially affect money rates. The English Bank report was unusually poor, losses in reserves and cash having been very heavy.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The market was somewhat irregular yesterday, with July showing most weakness in the afternoon. Weather news favored the crop. It was clear in the Northwest and showery in Winter wheat States, but late advices from the Southwest were that owing to rank growth rust was threatened in parts of Tennessee and Missouri. Only 155,000 bushels of wheat were received at interior points, compared with 290,000 bushels a year ago. Cash wheat in New York was quoted: No. 2 red, $1.50 asked, in elevator, and $1.50 nominal, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.37½, both free on board, afloat, and nominal.

CORN.—Heavy buying of July was resumed yesterday, and the whole market had a generally firm tone. Only 168 cars were received at Chicago, where 182 had been expected, but the estimate for Friday was somewhat larger. Liverpool was up ¼d. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted 86c, elevator, and 82c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 84½c, and No. 2 yellow, 84½c, free on board, afloat, all nominal.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Hopes and Fears.

While prices were rising violently yesterday on a huge volume of trading, discussion among commission houses turned mainly on how long the market could keep up its pace. About seven out of ten would-be purchasers seemed to be of opinion that the rise would continue, but at the same time perhaps half of those who entertained such a view were afraid to buy stocks lest they should get landed on the culmination of the movement. The skeptics pointed out that a sharp rise in prices usually winds up with a great burst of strength and sensational advances in some stocks on enormous transactions. Accordingly, they had grave suspicions as to the character of yesterday's demonstration. There were many extremely confident bulls, however, who argued that the market had only got nicely underway, and could see no reason why the brakes should be put on for some time. They contended that the extent of the business revival had not yet been fully impressed on the public; that the crop outlook had recently become brighter than before, and that, with assurance of easy money for several weeks more at least, it would simply be a waste of good ammunition not to push these advantages to the utmost.

⁂

Big Bond Dealings.

What impressed the optimists on the stock market very much was the large expansion in bond transactions on the Exchange. These were more than double the amount of the previous day, reaching upward of $10,000,000. While the buying was pretty well distributed throughout the list, it was the convertible issues which came most prominently to the front, virtually all of these scoring sharp advances in company with the rise in stocks. The heavy dealings in the convertibles militated somewhat against the argument that the absorption of bonds was purely for investment account, as the convertible issues are frequently bought by speculators just as freely as stocks. Nevertheless, the assumption is warranted that a good deal of the buying of the convertibles was by investors who desired to obtain advantages which might accrue through the further rise in stocks on which they formed a call, at the same time guarding themselves against such violent shrinkage in the market value of their security as might occur in the stocks.

⁂

Southern Pacific Rumors.

In point of strength Southern Pacific common overshadowed all others by a gain of nearly 6½ points, making a new high record at 130¼, but the preferred was not far behind, with an advance of nearly 5 points. All sorts of rumors and conjectures accompanied this bulge. Among them was the familiar one of an increase in the Southern Pacific common dividend to 7 per cent., along with stories of an early retirement of the preferred shares. Inasmuch as the company has the option of calling in the latter at 115, the smart advance made by that issue did not appear exactly to coincide with the early retirement idea. One feature of the preferred stock, however, which some lost sight of, was the privilege of the holders to convert it into common, share for share, and that would appear to be a more logical explanation for its following up the advance in the common. There were also reports that the company had a deal under way for disposing of its oil lands. This, of course, carried with it in the minds of speculators the possibility of some extra distribution to shareholders. Directors of the road, however, denied knowledge of any such proposed distribution.

Swapping Common for Preferred.

Some brokers thought there was a good deal of swapping of United States Steel common for the preferred shares, which, they said, may have partly accounted for the rise of about 5 points in the latter. After the heavy rise in the common, which made another new high record yesterday, advancing 2 points more, some figured that they would be on safer ground by selling out the common and buying the preferred, on which 7 per cent. dividend returns were regarded as a practical certainty for years to come. They thought that the speculative position of the common involved a good deal more risk. Furthermore, it was contended, that if the common should keep on advancing, the preferred could not but be sympathetically affected. Rumors also arose that the corporation intended to offer the preferred shareholders a very liberal amount of 5 per cent. bonds in exchange for their stock. Several years ago the company offered to retire the preferred stock by an issue of these bonds at par, but the plan did not meet with general acceptance.

Short Interest in Steel.

From the way in which some of the professionals were talking one might suppose that the short interest in Steel common had reached dangerous proportions. It is quite likely that the amount of the bear commitments in the stock was greatly exaggerated, and it also seemed probable that those with outstanding contracts for the decline had become a bit nervous. One well-known professional operator, who on Wednesday sold 20,000 shares of Steel common, supposed to be for the short account, was credited yesterday with selling out about the same amount of long stock in other corporations. Several other traders were believed to have acted in a similar manner. The assumption was that they were letting go of other securities to protect their position in Steel, a guess which may have been right and may have been wrong. Nevertheless, some well-known traders did not hesitate to say that they did not altogether like the looks of the continued rise in the Steel shares, thinking that it might precipitate technical weakness elsewhere.

Curb Stocks Reflect the Upward Movement on 'Change Only in Minor Degree.

HEINZE SHARES AGAIN DOWN

United Copper, Davis-Daly, and Ohio Copper Sag Under Heavy Selling —Other Coppers Strong.

The curb market reflected in only minor degree yesterday the rise on the Stock Exchange, and while trading was active in many issues and prices well maintained, price movements upward were confined to fractions. The Heinze stocks again suffered declines in the face of the general strength and were actively sold on the decline. United Copper after opening at 9½ rose to 9⅝ and declined to 8⅞, which was the closing price after transactions of 6,900 shares. Ohio Copper sold between 4⅞ and 4, closing at 4 5-16 after transactions of 23,900, the largest day's trading since the height of activity during the recent Heinze-Lamar campaign. Davis-Daly was also unusually active, reporting transactions of 15,900, during which the price dropped from 4⅞ to 4, closing at 4 5-16.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

United States Steel a Feature on the London Exchange.

LONDON, June 3.—Money was in restricted supply on the market to-day owing to the repayments to the Bank of England. Discounts were dearer on reports that Tuesday's gold had been taken to the Continent instead of by the bank.

Trading on the Stock Exchange continued irregular and uncertain owing to profit-taking in verious directions, particularly in Kaffirs. These securities, after sharp movements, closed lower, but above the worst for the day. Gilt-edged securities eased on lack of support and the poor bank statement. Grand Trunk was easy on poor traffic returns, but copper shares were better with the metal.

United States Steel monopolized the attention of traders in the early dealings. These shares opened higher, but later lost their initial gains. The rest of the list at noon showed little change from yesterday's New York closing. In the afternoon Wall Street bid up the Harriman issues and Steel sharply, and in spite of a slight setback in the other issues the market closed firm.

Money, 1¼@1¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1⅝@1¾ per cent., and for three months' bills 1⅝@1¾ per cent.

PARIS, June 3.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm until just before the close, when they became heavy. The private rate of discount was 1¼ per cent., an advance of ⅛.

BERLIN, June 3.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was dull. Canadian Pacific was lower on reports of floods. African diamond shares rose on reports that fresh discoveries have been made.

Bank of England.

LONDON, June 3.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes: Total reserve decreased £1,056,000, circulation increased £215,000, bullion decreased £840,840, other securities increased £1,459,000, other deposits increased £1,537,000, public deposits decreased £1,056,000, notes reserve decreased £1,001,000, Government securities unchanged.

The proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to liability is 45.61 per cent., against 47.84 per cent. last week.

Bank of France.

PARIS, June 3.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes: Notes in circulation increased 159,500,000 francs, Treasury deposits decreased 59,875,000 francs, general deposits decreased 107,350,000 francs, gold in hand decreased 1,650,000 francs, silver in hand decreased 325,000 francs, bills discounted increased 72,650,000 francs, advances increased 4,200,000 francs.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 3.—The local market was rather quiet to-day. Stocks were in good demand, however, but there was considerable realizing by commission houses, and while prices are somewhat higher all around as a result of the day's trading, still advances are by no means as large as might have been expected. Amalgamated sold up to 87½, North Butte to 56, while the balance of the list is generally fractionally higher. Mass Mining was the exception to the general rule, this stock making a further decline of over 3 points, to 9, closing at a slight rally.

National Railways of Mexico

(FERROCARRILES NACIONALES DE MEXICO)

Prior Lien 4½% Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds, Maturing July 1, 1957

Interest payable January 1 and July 1.

Principal and Interest payable in New York in United States gold coin; in London, in Sterling, at the rate of $4.86 per pound sterling; in Germany, in Reichsmarks, at the rate of M.4.20 per dollar; in France and Switzerland, in Francs, at the rate of Fcs.5.18 per dollar; in Amsterdam, in Guilders, at the rate of Fls.2.48 per dollar; in Mexico City, in Gold Pesos, at the rate of 2 gold pesos per dollar.

Principal and interest payable without deduction for any tax which the Company may be required to pay thereon, or to deduct therefrom, under any present or future law of the United States of Mexico, or of any State or Municipality therein, or of the United States of America, or of the State of New York, or of any Municipality in said State.

D. P. Bennett, Esq., Vice-President of the National Railways of Mexico, in a letter dated May 29, 1909, addressed to the undersigned, writes, in part, as follows:

"Referring to the issue of $24,000,000 of the Company's Prior Lien 4½% Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds, I beg to state:

"These bonds form part of a total authorized issue of $225,000,000 (which may be increased by $6,000,000 additional bonds ranking pari passu with the other Bonds of the series, to retire £1,200,000 4½ Per Cent. Prior Lien Bonds of the Mexican International Railroad Company or other bonds which may have been issued to retire them). Of the amount authorized $89,225,077 have been issued, of which $28,465,100 are pledged as collateral or are in the Company's treasury, and a portion thereof forms part of the present issue of $24,000,000 bonds.

"The Prior Lien 4½% Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds of the Company were originally secured under a Mortgage and Deed of Trust to Central Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, by the deposit and pledge by way of first charge on the securities of the Mexican Central Railway Company Limited and National Railroad Company of Mexico acquired by the Company, but as the properties of the Mexican Central Railway Company Limited and the National Railroad Company of Mexico have been deeded to the Company, the Prior Lien 4½% 50 Year Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds are now a direct mortgage on the properties formerly owned by both these Companies subject to the liens of the outstanding bonds of the Mexican Central Railway Company Limited and National Railroad Company of Mexico. Additional securities of the above-named Companies as acquired are also to be deposited with the Trustee of the Prior Lien Mortgage.

"The bonds (by means of the deposit of bonds) are practically a prior lien charge on the entire Mexican Central Railway System (about 3,510 miles), and are a charge on the National Railroad Company of Mexico System (about 3,477 miles) subject to outstanding indebtedness of about $50,289,000 charged upon the property of the National Railroad Company, and subject, as to the lines of the Mexican International and Interoceanic Companies, to their respective outstanding issues, a large amount of which, comprising the voting control, is held by the National Railroad Company and this Company respectively.

"Sufficient Prior Lien Bonds and General Mortgage Bonds are reserved to redeem the outstanding Bonds and other obligations of the Mexican Central Railway Company Limited, and the National Railroad Company of Mexico, with the object that ultimately the Prior Lien Bonds may become an absolute first charge on the combined properties formerly owned by the Mexican Central Railway Company Limited and National Railroad Company of Mexico.

"The Bonds are to be further secured by the mortgage and pledge of all property acquired by the proceeds of any of the Prior Lien Bonds, and by the mortgage and pledge, with priority over the General Mortgage, of all property at any time embraced in the General Mortgage, or acquired by the use of any of the Guaranteed General Mortgage 4% Gold Bonds of the Company.

"The Prior Lien 4½ Per Cent. Bonds therefore RANK BEFORE THE $160,000,000 authorized amount of Guaranteed General Mortgage 4 Per Cent. Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds, maturing October 1, 1977, principal and interest and Sinking Fund instalments of which are unconditionally guaranteed by the Mexican Government (which amount of General Mortgage Bonds may be increased for refunding purposes, as provided in the General Mortgage).

"Provision is made in the Prior Lien Mortgage for the creation by the Company of a Cumulative Sinking Fund (the first annual payment in respect of which is to be made for the year 1917) calculated to be sufficient, with accumulations, to retire the entire issue at or before maturity. The Sinking Fund is applicable to the purchase of bonds in the market at not exceeding 105 and accrued interest, or by drawings at 105 on not less than ninety days' notice; the bonds are also redeemable in amounts of not less than $10,000,000, on any interest date after January 1, 1917, at 105 on not less than ninety days' notice.

"The Total Net Income (after deducting operating expenses) of the Lines now comprising the National Railways of Mexico for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, was (U. S.)		$8,933,001.87
The fixed and other charges, partly estimated, prior to interest on the Prior Lien Bonds of the National Railways of Mexico, for the current fiscal year will be:
Interest on Prior Lien and Consolidated Mortgage Bonds of the National Railroad Company of Mexico	$2,024,600.00
Other Charges	281,563.40	2,306,163.40
Leaving (on basis of last year's earnings) applicable to interest on the Prior Lien 4½% bonds		$6,626,838.47
While the interest on $84,759,977 Prior Lien 4½% Bonds (which amount includes the present issue of $24,000,000 Bonds) amounts to		$3,814,198.97

The Net Earnings for the first nine months of the present fiscal year show an increase of $674,637.53 U. S. gold over the same period of the last fiscal year.

"The Company now owns by direct ownership the properties formerly known as the Mexican Central Railway Company Limited, National Railroad Company of Mexico, and Hidalgo & Northeastern Railroad Company Limited; and controls through stock ownership The Mexican International Railroad Company, The Interoceanic Railway of Mexico (Acapulco to Vera Cruz,) Limited, The Texas-Mexican Railway and the Mexican Pacific Railway Company, and the total mileage is 6,987 miles."

The undersigned offer the above bonds for public subscription at 95% and accrued interest, at which price the bonds yield about 4¾% if held until maturity.

The subscription will be closed at the offices of the undersigned at or before 3 o'clock P. M. on Monday, June 7, 1909, the right being reserved to reject any application and to award a smaller amount than applied for. The undersigned reserve the right to close the subscription list at any time without notice.

A first payment of $50 in New York funds for each $1000 bond subscribed for must accompany all subscriptions. The balance of the amount due on bonds allotted upon subscription will be payable in New York funds June 22, 1909, at the offices of the undersigned, when engraved bonds will be delivered upon surrender of the allotment letter, duly endorsed.

If no allotment be made, the first payment will be repaid in full; if only a portion of the amount applied for be allotted, the balance of the first payment will be appropriated towards the amount due on June 22, 1909. No interest will be allowed on such first payment.

If any further balance remain, such balance will be returned.

Failure to pay the balance of the subscription price, when due, will render the previous payment liable to forfeiture.

The subscription will be opened simultaneously, in London, by Messrs. J. Henry Schröder & Co. and Messrs. Speyer Brothers,

in Switzerland, by the Swiss Bankverein and the Union Financiere de Geneve.

Bonds of this issue are already listed on the Stock Exchanges of New York, London, Amsterdam and Switzerland.

DOMINION COPPER CO.

To Stockholders and Bondholders

The Protective Committee wishes to remind the stockholders and bondholders that it is most important to have every available bond and share of stock deposited with it before twelve o'clock noon, June 4th.

On Friday, May 28th, there was but one bidder, an individual, whose bid was reported as that of the British Columbia Copper Company, which was largely represented at the sale. The Hayden Committee claims that this bid was made on its behalf. If this is true the failure of the British Columbia Copper Company to bid should be explained.

The Protective Committee desires to be in a position, if necessary, to wire a bid which it will guarantee at a postponed sale.

"COMMON SENSE."

1. All THE BEST AUTHORITIES AGREE that we are STARTING ON a period of development and GOOD TIMES.

2. REAL ESTATE has shown itself to be the BEST INVESTMENT through the period of business depression.

3. The rise in value of real estate during the coming prosperous period will be GREATER THAN EVER. Particularly accessible property ON THE NORTHWARD GROWTH of the city along TRANSIT LINES.

4. $500 if left IN A SAVINGS BANK at compound interest will amount to ABOUT $740 IN TEN YEARS. Experience shows that $500 INVESTED IN PROPERTY of this kind IN TEN YEARS WILL INCREASE to $2,500 to $5,000.

5. THE SHREWD BUYER and investor has always SEIZED the opportunity. BOUGHT at sales of this kind. SOME RESELL at once AT A PROFIT. OTHERS hold for a year or two and make LARGER PROFITS, while those who HOLD FOR FIVE OR TEN YEARS make ENORMOUS PROFITS on their original investments.

6. SATURDAY AT 1 P. M. is the pyschological moment. GO TO THE HUTCHINS REAL ESTATE SALE, buy a lot and be one of those who "DID IT" rather than one of the many you have heard say "IF I HAD ONLY INVESTED at that sale just see what I would have made!".

THIS IS HOW YOU CAN LIVE RENT FREE

Six years ago I was building and selling Queen Anne detached 8 to 11 room houses in Flatbush at prices ranging from $4,500 to $6,000 each.

These same houses are to-day selling at prices ranging from $7,000 to $10,000 each. The owners have lived rent free and with a comfortable margin of profit besides.

I am now offering homes and home sites at Kissena Park, a much more accessible, more highly improved, and more promising location than was Flatbush, as here we have sewers, streets paved, curbed, and guttered; churches, schools, stores, etc., all established and near at hand. None of these were provided for the Flatbush territory until after the section was populated.

KISSENA PARK adjoins KISSENA LAKE PARK

One of the city's most delightful park purchases, and the property, which comprises over 4,000 lots, is laid out and ornamented with flowering shrubs and shade trees in such manner as to place it in direct harmony with this beautiful City Park.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

ROBERT J. LEEMON.—Robert J. Leemon, a painter of Middletown, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $528 and no assets.

GEORGE NORBURY.—George Norbury, a miller of Montgomery, Orange County, has filed a petition in bankruptcy here with liabilities of $9,257 and no assets. Of the liabilities $7,080 is a deficiency judgment in favor of the estate of Charles Norbury.

NATHAN SCHEYER.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Nathan Scheyer, dealer in pictures and frames at 72 Murray Street, show liabilities of $2,893 and assets of $1,016, consisting of stock, machinery, and office furniture, $850; tools, $10; accounts, $155, and cash in bank, $1.

MORRIS FREEMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris Freeman, merchant tailor, at 361 Canal Street, by these creditors: Sol Love, $74; Philip Epstein, $163, and Charles Bacal, $282, on an assigned claim of Julius Lande. It was alleged that he was insolvent, made preferential payment of $500, and removed goods worth $500.

W. H. SMALLEY.—William H. Smalley, formerly a milk dealer of Yonkers, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $1,581 and assets $196, consisting of accounts, $72; judgments, $74; tools, $50; patent for a milk can locker, and an interest in an invention for a gauge pin not patented, values unknown. Among the creditors is W. H. Drinkwater, $100.

GUARANTEE DENTAL COMPANY.—Joseph Semon has been appointed receiver in bankruptcy for the Guarantee Dental Company of Catskill, which has dental parlors in this city at 167 West Twenty-third Street, 205 Worth Street, and 2,293 and 2,895 Third Avenue, by George W. Plusch, referee in bankruptcy at Catskill, and his bond was fixed at $3,000. He was President of the company. The liabilities are $5,000 and the assets $3,900.

ANDREWS & COUPE.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Andrews & Coupe, (corporation,) advertising agents, 135 William Street, by Morris & Plante, attorneys for these creditors: New York Press Company, $277; the Tribune Association, $343, and Commercial Advertiser Association, $161, all for advertising. It was alleged that the corporation was insolvent, transferred property to various creditors to prefer them, and admitted in writing insolvency, inability to pay debts, and willingness to be adjudged bankrupt. The corporation was incorporated on Aug. 5, 1905, with capital stock of $10,000, which was increased to $25,000 last September. William T. Andrews, who was formerly President, was succeeded in February, 1908, by Frank J. Coupe.

MENDELSOHN & FINKEL UMBRELLA FRAME COMPANY.—Application has been made to Judge Hand of the United States District Court to confirm a sale of the machinery, stock, and fixtures of the Mendelsohn & Finkel Umbrella Frame Company of 740 Broadway and Unionport, N. Y., for $17,050 to Max Siff by Cohen Brothers, attorneys for Jesse Watson, receiver of the company. Charles Shongood, auctioneer, conducted the sale at Unionport on Wednesday, and the large amount realized was a surprise to those present. Mr. Cohen said yesterday that this was due to the rivalry of Julius and Israel Mendelsohn of the company, who bid against each other for the property. The bidding started at $1,000, and the property had been appraised at about $6,600. It is said that Mr. Siff bought it for Julius Mendelsohn. The company made a self-opening umbrella frame.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday reversed Collector Loeb in his assessment of a 50 per cent. duty on wreaths composed of artificial flowers. The flowers were mounted on wire frames. Collector Loeb held that the articles should pay duty as "artificial flowers," with a tax of 50 per cent.

Benjamin Stearns & Co., the importers, set up the claim that the goods should be allowed to enter at 45 per cent. under the provision in the tariff law for articles composed in chief value of manufactures of metal. General Appraiser McClelland, who writes the decision for the board, says that the tribunal is satisfied that the merchandise under protest is not artificial flowers within the meaning of the Dingley tariff. Under the circumstances, the importer's protest is sustained.

A protest filed by Joseph Spiero of this city regarding the duty to attach to weighing machines was decided by the board adversely to the importer. It is alleged by the importer that the machines returned are of American production and therefore free of duty. It is held by the board that the merchandise, not having complied with the regulations of the Treasury Department, cannot be permitted to enter free of duty.

U. S. EXPRESS LOOTED, COUNSEL TELLS COURT

PLATT'S SWEEPING DENIAL

He Makes a Long Affidavit Declaring There Never Was a Conspiracy and That Management Is Honest.

The attack of the majority shareholders on the management of the United States Express Company to force the present Platt management to call a meeting of the shareholders was resumed in court yesterday, when charges of fraud and conspiracy were made by John L. Dudley, a holder of 100 shares in the company, to Supreme Court Justice Guy in an application for the appointment of a temporary receiver. Mr. Dudley asserted through counsel, Frederick H. Sanborn, that in 1901 ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, individually and as President of the company; Chauncey H. Crosby, Vice President and General Manager; Edward T. Platt, Frank H. Platt, James C. Fargo, President of the American Express Company, and Levi C. Weir, President of the Adams Express Company, entered into a conspiracy, a part of which is alleged to have been the election of Weir and Fargo to the Board of Directors of the United States Express Company, as a result of which business and valuable contracts of the company were diverted to rivals, to the detriment of the stockholders in the United States Express Company. Decision was reserved.

"These men," declared Mr. Sanborn, "saw a chance to loot the United States Express Company and improved it, while the Platts saw the opportunity to permanently hold high-salaried offices."

"That charge is not borne out by the facts in the case," retorted ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, counsel for the defense, in opposing the motion, "for, on the contrary, the company's records show that the officers of other companies to its Directorate have aided wonderfully in the development of the company's business."

Furthermore, Mr. O'Brien said that the charges were all false and baseless, were made upon information and belief; that the sources of the information were not disclosed except as to the affidavit of a former employe, who held a minor position in the company, and who had been discharged for embezzlement. He said that it was with difficulty he sat patiently and listened to such wicked charges against such prominent and honorable men as the defendants, for the management of the United States Express Company had been magnificent and was a tribute to the honesty and ability of the men who had it in charge.

"We will have a day," he continued, "when we can turn around, and we will ask him why he has kept up these unwarranted attacks upon the company and upon what he has based his groundless assertions." He said that since the attacks had begun $5,000,000 had been added to the earnings of the company.

An affidavit of former Senator Platt was then submitted by Mr. O'Brien, which read, in part:

"I am the President of the United States Express Company, and have held that office since March 1, 1880. During that period the officers and Directors have conducted its affairs and have protected its interests with the utmost integrity and efficiency. There is absolutely no foundation for any charge to the effect that the officers and Directors of the company or the defendants in this action have in any way failed to perform honestly and efficiently their duties. There has never been a conspiracy or plan on the part of the officers or Directors of the association to injure the company, to benefit its competitors, or for any other purposes whatsoever. The charges contained in the moving affidavits are without foundation, and the defendants have never given, either directly or indirectly, any just cause for the making of such charges.

"The association has been managed at all times for the best interests of its shareholders, and its officers and Directors have striven in every possible way to advance the interest of its shareholders. These efforts have met with material success, and the position of the association at the present time is stronger than it has been at any time during its existence, both as to the value of its assets and as to the conduct of the business.

"The statement in the moving affidavit that the defendants, Thomas C. Platt, Edward T. Platt, Frank H. Platt, and Chauncey H. Crosby, formed a fraudulent conspiracy, is false. No such conspiracy exists or has ever existed for the purposes mentioned in the moving affidavit, or for any purposes whatsoever. I emphatically deny that I or any of the officers or Directors of the association are conspiring, or have ever conspired, to throw the United States Express Company into the power and hands of its rivals to obtain individual profits themselves or for myself. And, on the contrary, I allege that the defendant officers and Directors have at all times conducted its affairs honestly and competently and without profit to themselves, either direct or indirect, other than the return received by them on the shares they own and the salaries received by them. These salaries are and have always been reasonable, and are not and never have been excessive.

"The election to the Board of Directors of Weir and Fargo was not the result of a conspiracy or any arrangement or agreement whatsoever, and there never was a plan or conspiracy whereby the business of the United States Express Company was to be sacrificed in favor of the American Express Company or the Adams Express Company, or for any purpose whatsoever. The paragraph in the moving affidavit to the effect that the defendants diverted and released valuable express contracts is false and without foundation, as is the statement that the Board of Directors ceased to make, and that they are not making, any serious efforts to increase the money order business. Every effort is being made by the United States Express Company to conduct its money order business profitably and aggressively.

"My attendance as a Senator of the United States in Washington while President of the United States Express Company was in no way a disadvantage to the company, for while there I always continued to attend to the duties of my position as President of the company. Physically I am not very strong or well, but I am entirely able to attend to my duties, and am at my office doing my work as regularly as any one, except that on Saturdays I generally remain at home."

WOMAN IN DURANCE, HE SAYS.

Lawyer Demands the Production in Court of Aged Mrs. Woodward.

Merrill E. Gates, Jr., chief attorney for the Legal Aid Society, applied to the Supreme Court yesterday for a writ of habeas corpus for the production in court of Mrs. Caroline S. Woodward, said to be aged and infirm, and who, Mr. Gates alleges, is unlawfully restrained by Mrs. A. E. Myers, who lives at 221 East 124th Street.

The petitioner says that since July, 1908, he has been the attorney for Mrs. Woodward in proceedings to obtain for her property to which she makes claim, and that some time ago, through the Charity Organization, he sought to provide a suitable home for her. Pending these arrangements, he says, she was taken in charge by Mrs. Myers, who still has her in her home. Prior to May 15 last, according to the petitioner, Mrs. Myers was not acquainted with Mrs. Woodward.

Mr. Gates said that Mrs. Woodward was apparently well born, but had no relatives to whom "she cared to go." The property to which she lays claim, he said, is in Florida, but its value is unknown.

"I sent a detective to see Mrs. Myers yesterday," said Mr. Gates, "but she refused to allow him to see Mrs. Woodward alone. Mrs. Myers says that her interest in Mrs. Woodward is based only on friendly motives."

CHARGES CEMENT MONOPOLY

National Cement Agent Makes Another Protest Against Building Code.

Several members of the Building Code Revision Commission stated yesterday that the chief objection to natural cement is that the grade is not uniform. One engineer, however, declared that the only objection he knew to natural cement is that when a building erected with it is torn down it is necessary to use dynamite.

Natural cement was used in the construction of the masonry of the Brooklyn Bridge and the Statue of Liberty and many large hotels, stores, and public buildings.

Another emphatic protest against the proposed new Building Code was made yesterday by George G. Gleason, sales agent for the Consolidated Rosendale Cement Company, the largest manufacturer of natural cement in the country. Mr. Gleason declares that the new code practically prohibits the use of natural cement in this city and turns the field entirely over to the manufacturers of Portland cement.

"It cannot be," said he, "that our cement and that of the five or six other natural cement concerns doing business in this field has been eliminated by the code on account of its unsafety. Over 70 per cent. of the masonry structures in the city in which cement was used in the mortar were built with natural cement. Up to a few years ago no other kind of cement was known. If the proposed code becomes a law, it will be a public declaration that a large part of the masonry walls in the city are unsafe.

"I myself have a pretty good idea why these restrictions against natural cement were put into the code, but I could not prove it in a court of law. The fact remains, however, that the new code turns the cement field in the city entirely over to one brand. This being the case, what will happen to the price if the code goes through? The present price of natural cement averages $1.15 a barrel; Portland cement, $1.50 a barrel. If the people are willing to stand for such manipulation as this, what can we do?"

NEED NEW CHILDREN'S COURT.

John D. Lindsay Appeals to the Mayor —Says Present One Is Inadequate.

A protest against the inadequate surroundings of the Children's Court at 66 Third Avenue, corner of Eleventh Street, has been sent to Mayor McClellan by John D. Lindsay, President of the Children's Society. The building now occupied by the court is an old one, used originally as the office of the Department of Charities. Alterations were made in 1902 to accommodate the Children's Court, but the great increase of work has strained the capacity of the court until its efficiency is seriously threatened.

In his letter to the Mayor Mr. Lindsay says:

> It is almost impossible many times to get the parents and witnesses into the courtroom. With nearly 12,000 children a year being brought before the Justice in that court, he has at no time proper facilities to examine the cases; neither can he hear the witnesses' statements.
>
> The atmosphere at times is almost unbearable, there being no adequate ventilation. The temporary rooms in which the boys and girls are detained on the upper floor are in a shameful condition. The matron furnished by the society has called its attention to this condition, particularly in the case of the room for the girls, on many occasions.
>
> In fact, the society has had reason within the last year to change its matron three different times because the person so employed declined to serve amid such surroundings. In the boys' department the situation is such that they have to sit on one another's laps, as sufficient benches cannot be provided and placed in the room.

Mr. Lindsay calls attention to the fact that Chicago, Philadelphia, and other cities have had buildings erected exclusively for the use of their Children's Courts. He says this would be a good plan for New York to adopt. If this cannot be done, he says, then the present court could be enlarged by the erection of an addition in the rear and by taking over the rooms now occupied by the Bureau of Dependent Children.

A better plan, he urges, would be to use part of the old college building at Twenty-third Street and Lexington Avenue. The upper floor would make an admirable courtroom, and, with some little alteration, the lower floors could be made adaptable as detention rooms, he says.

Mr. Lindsay urges the Mayor to investigate conditions in the Children's Court, and says the society of which he is President will lend its aid to whatever plan for improving the situation the Mayor may suggest.

LONGER SUBWAY PLATFORMS.

Commission Asks $1,500,000 - with Which to Build Them at Once.

The Public Service Commission sent a requisition to the Board of Estimate yesterday for an appropriation of $1,500,000, to be used in lengthening the stations in the Subway, declaring that when the improvement is made it will increase the lines' capacity 25 per cent. It is proposed to expend $1,150,000 on the stations in Manhattan and the Bronx and $350,000 on the Brooklyn extension, so that ten-car expresses and six-car locals may be operated. The present expresses have eight cars and the locals five.

Chairman Willcox in his leter to the board says:

> This improvement is necessary for the relief of congestion in transportation in New York. Even if no more passengers were carried the increased comfort to passengers would justify the increase in capacity. It is estimated that the city's population is doubling every thirty to thirty-two years, and that the traveling population is doubling every twelve years. It is manifest that the present accommodations cannot keep pace with this increase.
>
> The cost of the execution of this construction as extra work will be added to the cost of the subway, and be a part of the amount upon which interest and sinking fund charges are required to be paid by the contractor. Plans must be prepared at an expense estimated at $10,000.
>
> The board therefore transmits these requisitions to the end that the approval of the Board of Estimate may be given to the preparation of these plans and the execution of the work so that construction work upon some of the stations may be begun at the earliest moment.

The matter will probably be taken up at the meting of the board to-day.

The suggestion for this improvement was approved by the commission some time ago. It was part of the general Subway plan submitted by President Shonts of the Interborough.

LYNCHED NEAR STATE HOUSE.

Negro Taken from Jail—Gov. Willson Deplores It.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 3.—John Maxey, a negro, who shot D. C. Bowers, a circus man, last night, was taken from the jail here early to-day and lynched. The jailer showed resistance to the mob, but the door was broken down, the negro taken out and hanged to the St. Clair Street Bridge.

Gov. Willson said to-day that he was not aware of the lynching until several hours after it had happened. He deplored the affair, happening as it did within a few blocks of the State House.

4,500 WHITE WINGS MARCH IN REVIEW

PRIZES FOR THE BEST

Delegation of Suffragettes Raises a Row Because No Seats Are Reserved for Them.

From 2:30 to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Fifth Avenue was given over completely to the Street Cleaning Department, which held its first parade in several years. The Mayor stood with Commissioner William H. Edwards on the reviewing stand in Madison Square to watch his forces go by.

Stands were erected on both sides of the Avenue at the Square, and these were crowded with friends and well-wishers of the "White Wings," while the avenue itself was crowded with interested and curious bystanders, who watched some 4,500 men and a great many horses go by. It took just an hour and a half to pass the reviewing stand.

The Commissioner, to make things more interesting, had offered a silver cup to the borough which made the best showing, and Deputy Commissioner Hogan offered a silk banner to the district having the best kept stable. The judges were Col. Appleton of the Seventh Regiment, Major Frank Landon of the same organization, and Lieut. Col. McAlpin of Major General Roe's staff. They stood in the judges' stand and scrutinized the horses, men, wagons, and accoutrements to the minutest detail, but they were asked to send their judgment by mail to Commissioner Edwards. It will probably be announced this morning.

The parade was opened by a troop from the Traffic Squad, which escorted the automobile containing the Mayor and Commissioner to the reviewing stand. Following them came the motors containing the judges and other important personages who wanted to see the parade from the vantage point of the judges' box, and then came the "White Wings."

These men, who spend most of their days cleaning streets, marched by in spick and span regalia and in apple-pie order. The lines were usually straight, and the "right, left" perfect. And as each foreman passed and gave the order, all the men turned their faces toward the stand.

There were many bands. The Bronx divisions went in for boys' bands, but why the Brooklyn division, under Marshal Patrick Cunningham, was led by a band which played "Maryland" and "Dixie," nobody could explain, unless as one of the Deputy Commissioners suggested, "To show that Brooklyn is south of the Bronx!"

Supt. John F. Carroll of Brooklyn was in charge of the parade, and his aids were Julian Scott of the Bronx and Owen Murphy of Brooklyn. Besides succeeding in getting all the men lined up in front of the Hotel Plaza, they sent on ahead a special brigade of "White Wings" to clean up the avenue in front of the parade. Inspector McCluskey and Capt. James Post of the West Forty-seventh Street Station had charge of police arrangements at the reviewing stand.

A delegation of suffragettes who arrived while the parade was in progress protested vigorously because no seats had been reserved for them in the Mayor's box, but they were pacified when they got seats near by.

NO BRONX VOTES FOR METZ.

If He Approves Subway Terminal Plan, Says a Manufacturer.

Joseph Flanagan, a Kingsbridge manufacturer, created a diversion at a somewhat heated hearing held by Controller Metz yesterday on the request of the Interborough for permission to close certain streets in the Bronx to enable the erection of a reservoir terminal for Subway cars. Mr. Flanagan waxed indignant in his remarks against the plan.

"If you sign that paper," he shouted at the Controller, "you can go to the Interborough for your votes. Don't come to the Bronx or to Kingsbridge."

Assemblymen Crowley and Sheridan also spoke against the plan. It is proposed to allow the Interborough to build a terminal on the land between 238th and 242d Streets, Spuyten Duyvil Road, and Broadway. The company owns the land, and the streets which it is proposed to close have not yet been laid out, although they are on the city map.

PLANT MILLIONS DIVIDED.

Mrs. Graves Willed $220,000 to Charity and Bulk of Estate to Her Husband.

The will of Mrs. Margaret J. P. Graves, who, prior to her marriage to Mr. Graves, was the widow of Henry B. Plant, the railroad and steamship owner, was filed for probate with the Surrogate yesterday. The will makes direct bequests of about $3,000,000, and it is believed that the value of the estate is about $8,000,000. Mrs. Graves died on May 30.

To her husband, Robert Graves, she leaves a specific bequest of $1,000,000, one-third of the residue of the estate, together with her residence, horses, carriages, automobiles, and all personal property attached to the residence. A trust fund of $500,000 is created, one-half of which is to be for the use of her nephew, Michael Francis Loughman, and the income from the remaining half to be for the use of his children. The principal of this fund is to go to the children at the death of their father. A similar trust fund is also created for another nephew, Edward Joseph Loughman, and his children.

To Robert Graves, Jr., her husband's son, is left $25,000; Dr. George P. Glover of St. Luke's Hospital, $25,000, and to Bishop Bonaventure F. Broderick, $25,000. The Rev. James F. Duffy of St. Agnes's Church, Brooklyn, is to receive $5,000, and $20,000 is to be used in rebuilding St. Agnes's Church.

A large number of charitable institutions are remembered under the will to a total of $220,000. The Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum gets $25,000; St. Vincent's Hospital, $25,000; the Society of the New York Hospital, $25,000; Mt. Sinai Hospital, $10,000; Presbyterian Hospital, $10,000 for general purposes, and a like amount to be expended in the maintenance of an emergency ward; New York Mothers' Home of the Sisters Misericorde, $10,000; New York Infirmary for Women and Children, $10,000; St. Luke's Hospital, $20,000, for society work under the direction of the Medical Board, and $10,000 for the care and treatment of crippled children; Ursuline Convent, Bedford Park, $10,000; Hebrew Benevolent Orphan Asylum, $10,000; Society for the Relief of the Ruptured and Crippled, $10,000; Trustees of the New York Fire Department Relief Fund, $25,000, and the Hebrew Technical School, $10,000.

There are a number of other bequests, among them being $50,000 to Mrs. Jennie I. Hoadley; Miss Marguerite Maldorff, $10,000; Mrs. Bessie Plant, wife of Albert E. Plant of Bradford, Conn., $25,000; Thomas Surnyard, $25,000; Emily M. Blum, wife of William Blum, $25,000; Mrs. Addie Van Zandt, $25,000; Miss Mary Curran, $15,000; Miss Emma Hines, $10,000; Mrs. Mary Mullane, $25,000; Mrs. Dora Lockwood of Hoboken, $25,000; Stella Golibart of Washington, D. C., $15,000; Marguerite O'Brien, wife of Major Murrough O'Brien, $50,000, and each of the three children of George B. W. Wren, $10,000.

All of the residue of the estate, after the payment of the bequests, is to go to the husband, Robert Graves, and to the testatrix's two nephews, Michael Francis Loughman and Edward Joseph Loughman, in equal shares. The husband, the nephews, Bishop Broderick, and Frederick J. Middlebrook are named as executors, to serve without bonds.

$1,193 IN SUICIDE'S POCKETS.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., June 3.—A man, so far unidentified, was found hanging from the limb of a tree in the woods back of the Singleton silk mill on the outskirts of Dover late this afternoon. He had $1,193 in his pockets.

The man had been seen around Dover since Monday, and in a restaurant where he took his meals up to to-day it was noticed that he would frequently laugh softly to himself. On Tuesday morning he asked a druggist for some carbolic acid. The druggist refused to sell it. He was last seen alive about 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Two boys ranging the woods with their dogs discovered the body hanging near a big rock, from which he had jumped.

WHITRIDGE EXPLAINS QUEENSBORO LINE

Separate Car Company Had to be Formed Because of Third Avenue Receivership.

WILL HAVE TO PAY TOLLS

Applications Pending from Five Other Companies Seeking to Get Across the Bridge from Queens.

Receiver Frederick W. Whitridge of the Third Avenue Railroad Company explained yesterday why the Third Avenue Bridge Company was incorporated last week and why its incorporators were clerks in his own office. He said that the newly formed bridge company, if the franchise for which application to the city has been made is granted, would operate shuttle cars over the Queensboro Bridge, transferring to and from all lines of the Third Avenue Company.

Apparently amused by the charge that the bridge company had "dummy" Directors, Mr. Whitridge said:

"There is absolutely no mystery about this thing, and it is ridiculous to make excitement over it. It is true that the incorporators in this company are clerks in my office. The company was organized on the advice of Corporation Counsel Pendleton, and I selected the clerks as incorporators to meet the requirements of the Board of Estimate.

"A year ago I asked permission to cross the bridge. It was then pointed out to me that because of legal complications which might arise on account of the receivership of the Third Avenue lines it would be best to organize a separate company."

At the office of the Board of Estimate it was said that one of the reasons for the organization of the new company was that the tolls which would have to be paid to the city for passengers carried over the bridge would not have to come out of the earnings of the Third Avenue Company, which was in the hands of a receiver. The new bridge company would pay toll for the number of passengers actually transported across the bridge, and a possible legal complication would thereby be avoided.

Mr. Whitridge said that under the franchise which his company sought from the city passengers would be taken up at the Long Island end of the bridge and transported to the furthest limits of the Third Avenue lines for a single fare. His Company, he said, didn't own all the surface lines of the city, and to provide transportation across the bridge and over the Third Avenue Company's lines in Manhattan was all he could do.

Five other companies are asking for franchises across Queensboro Bridge, all of which applications are before a select committee of the Board of Estimate, except one, which has been approved by the Board of Estimate and is pending final decision by the Public Service Commission. This is the South Shore Traction Company, which is constructing a line through Long Island from Long Island City to Brookhaven, in Suffolk County. It wants not only to cross the bridge, but extend its line along Fifty-seventh Street to Eleventh Avenue, and south on Eleventh Avenue to Forty-second Street.

The New York & Queens County Railroad Company, which already operates an extended system of trolley lines in Queens, also wants to cross the bridge, but so far the city will not accept the terms it offers, nor will the company meet the demands of the city, declaring them unreasonable.

Two other corporations applying for franchises are the Manhattan and Queensboro Bridge Company and the Queensboro and Jamaica Railroad Companies. Neither of these companies has any trolley lines in operation, and no report of their applications has been made by the committee to which they were referred.

J. EADES HOWE ARRESTED.

"Millionaire Hobo" Was Urging a Crowd Not to Turn Strikebreakers.

An undertaker directed the attention of Policeman Sullivan of the Traffic Squad to a crowd of about 100 men, whom one man was haranguing at Twenty-sixth Street and Fourth Avenue last night. Sullivan found that the speaker was James Eades Howe, known as the "Millionaire Hobo," and that he was urging his hearers not to go to Philadelphia as street-car strikebreakers, but to come to his office at 44 Bowery, where he would provide work for all of them. Sullivan told Howe that without a permit he could not hold a meeting in the street. Howe declared that he was not holding a meeting, but was simply addressing a crowd of his friends, and when he refused to stop Sullivan arrested him.

In the Night Court Magistrate Cornell became very much interested in the prisoner. Howe explained that he had seen an advertisement telling that a strikebreaking office was to be opened at 111 East Twenty-sixth Street, and he said he had gone there to prevent men from going to Philadelphia. He and the Magistrate discussed his work among the poor at some length, and after complimenting him upon his efforts to help the poor and broken down, the Magistrate discharged Howe.

"If you ever get any hoboes or broken-down men here," said Howe as he left, "I hope you'll send them to me."

The Magistrate promised to do so.

FIRE HORROR HASTENED END.

Samuel Ashton, at one time one of Chicago's wealthiest men, a power in politics and formerly a Supreme Court Justice in Illinois, died at 7 o'clock last night in a four-room flat, which he occupied with his sister, Mrs. Lorraine Williamson, a widow and his only living relative, on the fourth floor of the tenement at 2,378 Eighth Avenue. He was 85 years old.

His death was due to old age and general debility, but according to his sister, his ill-health began after his experience in the big Chicago fire of nearly forty years ago, when his wife perished in the flames, and he lost the bulk of his property.

Broken in spirit, he came to this city and practiced law with little success up to two years ago, when his health gave out entirely. With rest and quiet, however, he was regaining some of his old-time vigor until about two weeks ago, when he dropped a match on the carpet after lighting a cigar, which kindled a small blaze on the floor.

A horror of fire had been engendered in him by his experience in Chicago, and at the sight of the flames he fell in a faint. Mrs. Williamson entered the room in time to put out the fire and rescue her brother. From that time Mr. Ashton had been confined to his bed.

Denies Exclusion of Negroes.

BOSTON, June 3.—James C. White, Secretary to Mayor Hibbard, to-day issued a denial of the story published recently to the effect that the only negro militia organization in Massachusetts had been excluded from all the city armories because of a clash between the Mayor and Adj. Gen. Brigham. Mr. White says there has been no controversy between the Mayor and the Adjutant General, and that the negro organization has not been excluded from any of the city's armories.
